Will those inclined to underestimate the importance of airplanes in the next war be good enough to read a few headlines that stretch in big type across the front page of the British newspaper, The Sunday Referee?

"Bombing Tests Alarm Naval Experts."

"Hits From a Height of 10,000 feet."

The British newspaper goes on to say:

"The Sunday Referee understands the Admiralty is seriously concerned with the results of recent bombing experiments from the air

"Up till fairly recently it has been maintained by the die-hard Admiralty officials that a ship could not be attacked by aeroplanes with any hope of accuracy from 10,000 feet.

Their arguments were twofold:

"(1) That the moving target could be struck by accident, and (2) that at less than 10,000 feet the battleship could defend itself.

"Although the full facts are known to many, their publication is not considered to be in the public interest.

"The Sunday Referee, however, feels that it is of urgent public interest to state that the bombing experiments have created an entirely new situation in official Admiralty circles. In fact, so acute is that situation that the experts are now asking whether the day of the navy as England's main defense is not practically at an end.

"Britain spent 44,000,000 pounds last year on the navy. In the same period of time she spent 17,000,000 pounds on the air force. What has the battleship school to offer as a remedy now against the menace of air attack and blockade?"

Could anybody in Washington find time, in the midst of all the initials, to take some interest in this statement?

The French army admits that it is impossible to protect Paris against air attack, even if the attack were announced in advance.

The British navy now discovers that its battleships will merely be targets for airplanes in the next war. Will this country continue building battleship targets for the airplanes of other countries and neglecting its own air force?

And, how long will it continue the policy of making the air force an annex of the army and navy, whereas marching soldiers and floating ships should be a mere annex of the air force?

Mr. West, of the Junior National Chamber of Commerce, says one million, five hundred thousand Communists are plotting to overthrow this government.

The famous "Seven Tailors of Tooley Street," beginning their exordium "We, the people of England," also planned to change things, but they did not. Mr. West's 1,500,000 Communists will not overthrow anything, either. Besides, they are not 1,500,000. The number of real enrolled Communists in this country is under 30,000, and there are perhaps 100,000 pale pink Communists.

If there were 1,500,000 there would still be about 122,000,000 Americans of a different color, determined to change this government in their way, if at all, and do it slowly.

Your government needs one billion, eight hundred and ninety-two million dollars, half cash, half in new bonds, to take care of indebtedness, due December 15. Nine hundred millions will

Kills Daughter, Turns Gun on Himself

By Associated Press

Proctorsville, Vt., Dec. 4—Norris Butler, 41, killed his 11-year-old daughter, Lavina, and then committed suicide by turing a .32 calibre revolver upon himselm in his home here today.

Police said Butler had been despondent and had threatened to take his own life and that of his daughter.

The child was shot while asleep in a room occupied by Butler, his wife and the girl. Butler called his wife outside and said that their son, Ross, who had just returned from a hospital after a shooting accident, wanted to see her.

While outside the bedroom, the mother explained, she heard the shots that took the lives of two of her family.

QUITS POST TO TAKE UP NEW JOB

State Bank Commissioner Arthur Guy resigned unexpectedly this afternoon.

The Governor has already filled nearly 100 posts, despite a request of Governor-elect Curley that these places be left for the "new deal" administration.

Guy resigns to become president of the Worcester Mechanics Savings Bank of Worcester early in January.

He expressed pleasure at having served under Governor Ely and asked that his resignation take effect as soon as a successor can be named.

At present, Commissioner Guy has under his supervision over 700 institutions with assets of more than three and a half billion dollars. He is directly responsible for 100 million dollars of closed bank funds.

Gloria's Mother Granted Appeal

By International News Service

New York, Dec. 4—The appellate division decided today that Mrs Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt may appeal from the order of Supreme Court Justice Carew giving custody of her heiress-daughter to Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney.

The appelate court held that Justice Carew's order was a final order and that it is appealable.

Miss Frederick's Husband Is Dead

Washington, Dec. 4 (AP)—Colonel Joseph A. Marmon, 59, who was married last January to Pauline Frederick, the actress, died today in Walter Reed Hospital. Miss Frederick was with him when he died.

Colonel Marmon and the actress met only a few months before their marriage. He served in the Spanish-American and World wars.

Mr. X's Call for Cat, She Says

The pet Persian kitty of Actress Gladys George, above, was sick, Gladys says, and that's why a gentleman, identified for the present only as "Mr. X," was in Gladys' room when her husband—and detectives—arrived. The husband, Edward H. Fowler of Springfield, is asking a divorce.

Cat "Not Only Cause" in Star's Divorce Suit

There's more than a sick Persian cat and a mysterious "Mr. X" behind the divorce action filed in New York against Gladys George, her wealthy Holyoke husband hinted today.

The former Boston Repertory Company actress, now the star of "Personal Appearance" on Broadway, told the cat story to explain the exit of "Mr. X" from her hotel room in the wee hours of Sunday morning.

Explaining that he was helping her treat the cat, Gladys added:

"Strike me down, there was nothing to my friend's call. It was just a visit. The story about the cat sounds silly, I know, but it's so."

But in the office of the Valley Paper Company in Holyoke, where he is vice-president, Edward H. Fowler, husband of Gladys since last December, gave a guarded interview on his marital troubles.

"I wouldn't have started suit for divorce if I did not have the grounds for it," he observed. "I don't think there is anything mean about that."

NOT MEAN, HE SAYS

The wealthy paper man added:

"I read the story in which my wife says I played a mean trick. Maybe it was a mean trick in her estimation but I don't call it that.

"There are a number of aspects in the case that I cannot discuss right now."

NEW HOUSING LOAN PLAN URGED

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 4—A direct subsidy plan for stimulating housing through which $1,000,000,000 of federal funds would be used in an attempt to put $4,000,000,000 of private capital to work is receiving consideration in high administration quarters.

The scheme now being studied would have the government make a direct gift of 20 per cent of a housing project.

The person receiving the subsidy then could obtain an 80 per cent loan on the remainder of the cost through the insurance guarantee method of the Housing Administration.

HOW IT WORKS

An example of operation of the plan would be as follows:

A man with a $500 lot wants to build a $5,000 house on his property. The government, after investigating through Housing Administration machinery, would advance 20 per cent of the $5,000, or $1,000.

With the insurance guarantee of the housing administration behind him, the borrower then could obtain from a bank or other lending agency a loan of 80 per cent.

This would mean a loan of $3600, putting the housing cost and the value of the lot together for a total of $4500.

$400 CASH NEEDED

This arrangement would require the borrower to put up only $400 in cash in addition to his lot.

Supporters of the plan say this operation would not interfere with private fields of finance or real estate and would get away from the 100 per cent direction out of Washington, which direct federal building would entail.

The twenty per cent subsidy was said to be enough to make up the difference between present rental levels and construction costs.

OTHER SUBSIDIES

Those considering the subsidy method also would include two other fields for government spending to help recovery which they say would not compete with private enterprise.

One would be that of 100 per cent federal spending on such work relief activities as flood control, roads, citizens conservation corps and possibly railroad crossing construction.

The second field would be that of partial federal spending through advances to cities, counties and states of which a portion would be returnable

Admiral Hussey Dies Suddenly

New Milford, Conn., Dec. 4—Rear Admiral C. L. Hussey, United States Navy, retired, of Washington, D. C., and Litchfield, dropped dead of a heart attack today after alighting from a train.

The 64-year-old retired officer, native of New Hampshire and holder of the U. S. Navy Cross, was stricken as he was about to enter his automobile to be driven to his Litchfield home.

SPEER WIDOW TELLS NEW DEATH FACTS

By JOHN H. NOONAN
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent.

Greenfield, Dec. 4—New and important testimony bearing upon the mystery murder of her husband was given by Mrs. Charlotte Welles Speer today at the secret inquest into the shotgun killing of the Mt. Hermon school headmaster, Dr. Elliott Speer.

Pale but composed, the young widow was on the witness stand for another hour and 15 minutes, making a total of four hours including her three-hour ordeal of yesterday.

Mrs. Speer, who knows the identity of the police suspect in the case, is understood to have related intimated details of Dr. Speer's professional duties and personal contacts at the Northfield School.

For the first time since the slaying of her husband on September 14 authorities had the opportunity of discussing personalities with her.

MAY BE RECALLED

It was estimated at the start of the inquest yesterday she would testify only about an hour, but when she left the stand this morning she agreed to remain available here for the rest of the week, and it is probable she will be recalled.

Today and tonight she will be given the opportunity of consulting certain of her husband's personal records which have been in cus-

REVERE PILING UP BIG VOTE

Precautions against lawlessness at Revere featured today's elections in 12 cities, seven of which are choosing mayors.

Revere citizens began rolling up a heavy vote when the polls opened at noon, with every balloting place under guard of state troopers, local and Lynn police.

The troopers were detailed to Revere after fear had been expressed that gangsters would attempt to dominate the election, yet mid-afternoon saw only one arrest—that of a man charged with being intoxicated at City Hall. He was identified as Gaspar Balsi of John Mooney road, Revere.

Revere's early vote indicated that 85 per cent of the city's registration would go to the polls.

"Gangsterism," and the unsolved murders of Nate Siegal and Jack Darris in Revere, were two main campaign issues that fanned popular feeling to white heat as its citizens voted for four candidates for the two mayoralty nominations.

Lieutenant Thomas Mitchell of the state police, with 20 troopers, was assigned to guard the polls by Governor Ely. Former State Senator Conde Brodbine and City

LANDING IN SEA, RADIO FLIERS

By Associated Press

Honolulu, Dec. 4—"Will land in sea," said a brief message at 8:30 a. m., today, Hawaii time (2 p. m. E.S.T.) from the Hawaii-bound plane of Lieutenant Charles T. P. Ulm and two companions, as they asked the army and navy to stand by.

The plane, "Star of Australia," carrying Ulm, Co-Pilot George M. Little john and Navigatir-Radio Operator J. L. Skilling, became overdue on its scheduled arrival here shortly after 7 a. m. today.

At 8:20 a. m., Hawaii time (1:50 p. m. Eastern time) the Globe Wireless station here, which had been maintaining continuous contact with the plane since 4 a. m., said Ulm had stated 35 minutes earlier that he had left only enough gasoline for 45 minutes of flying.

The Globe station was trying to guide the plane to its station off Kaena Point, about 20 miles from Wheeler Field, where Ulm had intended to land.

The aviators carried no life raft. They had an emergency condenser to distill ocean water for drinking, in addition to their regular supplies of sandwiches.

CROOKER IS ATTACKED AS CROWDS JAM CORRIDOR

Highlights of today's hearings on the racing commission:

Governor Ely and Attorney Crooker engage in verbal clashes.

General Charles H. Cole, nominated as board chairman, admits he knows "very little" about horse racing.

A fistic attack, sharp verbal clashes and testimony regarding happenings at parleys of leading horsemen today stirred hundreds of spectators who stormed the State House for a public hearing on Governor Ely's appointees to the new racing commission.

Of the three nominated, but not yet confirmed, General Charles H. Cole, chairman, appeared first as a witness. The other two, Charles F. Connors of Boston and William H. Ensign of Westfield, followed.

More than 400 jammed the hearing room when Governor Ely opened proceedings at exactly 10:30. Many more milled outside in the corridor, unable to gain entrance.

The fists flew at Attorney Crooker as he walked through the crowd that jammed the governor's office just before the hearing was moved from the council chamber to Room 370, the largest hearing room in the building.

State Trooper Desmond Fitzgerald, Governor Ely's special guard, pounced upon Crooker's assailant and ejected him from the building. He identified himself as an Arlington man. He was not arrested.

Crooker won his first victory

ody of the authorities since the crime.

Rev. Robert E. Speer, of New York, father of Dr. Speer, followed the widow into the grand jury room where the inquest is being conducted before Judge Timothy M. Hayes. Dr. Robert Speer is secretary emeritus of the Board of Presbyterian Foreign Missions and has devoted 40 years to the Mr. Hermon interests, having pursuaded his son to give up a promising teaching career at Princeton to take charge at Northfield.

The slain man is known to have discussed the remouldnig of the Mt. Herman faculty and various members of it with his father. Dr. Robert Speer testified for about an hour and was followed by S. A. Norton, cashier at the school.

Norton is believed to have given testimony refuting claims that two persons, one a suspect, gave authorities early in the investigation. Norton's records were depended upon by the investigators to break down the detail of an alibi given by the suspect several days after the morder.

RECORDS BACK EVIDENCE

Evidence corroborating Norton's is understood to have been given by George McEwan, treasurer of Mt. Hermon school, who brought school records from New York headquarters.

Miss Louise Lovell, personal secretary of the slain man, awaited a call to testify. It is understood she is prepared to testify that Dr. Speer never dictated to her two mystery letters which were seized by detectives early in the investigation from a person who claimed to have received them from the headmaster.

Asurprise at the resumption of the inquest was the appearance of Edwin Sunderland, New York law associate of oJhn W. Davis in New York.

Sunderland is attorney of record for the school and a trustee of it. He joined District Attorney oJseph T. Bartlett and District Attorney-elect David H. Keedy inp rosecution of the inquest.

Just before the secret inquest resumed, Wilfred W. Fry, chairman of the board of trustees of Mt. Hermon School, and Attorney John L. Grandin of Boston, also a member of the board, arrived in Greenfield.

They were at the board meeting on Sept. 15, the day after the shotgun-slaying, when two letters deemed highly important by the District Attorney and detectives were turned over to the trustees by a member of the school faculty.

The trustees' meeting on that day was to name a temporary headmaster of the school.

It hoped to provide for the court the explanation of a number of notations made by the slain headmaster in his personal diary. It hoped to prove that Headmaster Speer had expressed to his father definite opinions on certain faculty members in direct contradiction to contents of the questioned letters.

The "black index" contained names of those who borrowed books from the Speer library. It was the father's presentation of this data to the investigators which first led them to perusing "The Public School Murder," the English novel, which so closely parallels the Speer shotgun murder.

So valuable to their case do authorities regard the plot of this book and the allegation that their suspect read it and used its mechanics in this killing that District Attorney Bartlett declared today that the novel would be offered in evidence.

TO PRODUCE LETTERS

Asked if the letters referred to would also be given to the court, which is presided over by Judge Timothy M. Hayes, Bartlett replied:

"Yes. Those letters will also go in evidence."

The state contends, it is known, that the letters so often mentioned have been produced by the suspect in the case as evidence that he and the murdered man were on the most excellent of terms, whereas in reality the contrary was so.

The state further contends, in its circumstantial case, that these letters, if they are proved frauds, are evidence of a guilty person who tried to prepare his alibi beforehand.

Since Judge Hayes granted the request of District Attorney Bartlett for secret proceedings, Mrs. Speer's testimony could not be made public, but it was said that it was along the same lines as that on which the state is building its case.

State police expressed themselves as "amazed" at the wealth of detail she was able to furnish about the personal life of her slain husband and of his expressed opinions of certain faculty members.

Among the witnesses today scheduled to testify, one of the most colorful is Daniel van Valkenberg, blacksmith at the Northfield schools and a member of the community for more than 40 years.

He has high repute in this country as a hunter. He was a close friend of Dr. Henry F. Cutler, retired headmaster of Mount Hermon, and of his successor, the murdered Dr. Speer.

According to authorities, van Valkenberg often went hunting with Dr. Cutler, later with Dr. Speer.

Van Valkenberg, they say, went hunting with another man who has denied ever having owned a .12 guage shotgun and yet this blacksmith-nimrod declares flatly that this very man used a .12 guage shotgun while hunting with him.

BORROWED GUN

The pair of "mystery witnesses" scheduled to appear includes a former Mount Hermon student, now a man of 40 or so, who lives in Sullivan, Vermont, and who, it is hinted, has also valuable evidence about that .12 guage shotgun.

He, it is said, would tell the court how he borrowed such a weapon from a relative who was repairing the stock of it.

Another witness who has a graphic story to tell is Mrs. Constantine George, wife of the school chef and herself family cook for the Speers.

She was upstairs in her quarters at the time of the killing and raced down to the side of Mrs. Speer and the fatally wounded man.

Woman Held Not Nelson's Widow

Washington, Dec. 4 (AP)—A report that the widow of George "Baby Face" Nelson had been arrested in Toledo, OOhio, was described today by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Justice Department's Division of Investigation, as "having no foundation."

The report already had been checked by Justice Department agents, who are conducting a widespread search for the gangster's widow.

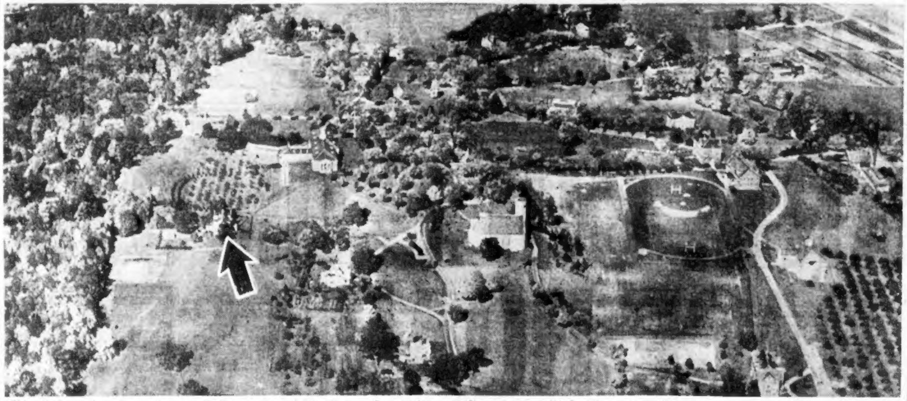
Air View of Scene of Northfield Campus Killing, Now Believed Nearing Solution



This airplane view shows the tree-shaded campus of Mt. Hermon school, Northfield, where a shotgun blast, fired through a window, took the life of Dr. Elliott Speer, youthful headmaster of the institution. Arrow indicates the Speer home, where the mystery murder was committed. The present theory of police is that the killer was a man familiar with the neighborhood and probably a close acquaintance of the victim.

Gladys George Faces Suit and All Over Cat

Gladys told reporters her version of the ill Persian:

"I had just been to a late supper with this gentleman at a Japanese place near 43d street and I went back to the hotel alone.

"I found my Persian cat was in a bad way. He had only got over an operation and when I came in he was running a fever and bleeding."

Gladys shed another tear. Then she went on:

"This actor (Mr. X) was the only friend I had in the hotel, so I phoned him and asked him would he go to the drug store and get some gauze bandage.

JUST HELPING OUT

"He got the gauze and brought it up to me. He was helping me put it on the cat when the telephone rang."

Here Gladys explained that she hasn't been living with her husband for some months and that she has been trying to get a divorce since last May.

Another reminiscent tear. Then she went on:

"Mr Fowler was on the telephone. He said:

" 'Hello, dearie. I'm over at the Grand Central station. Something important has happened. Can I see your, honey?'

"I said yes, come on up. Then the gentleman who was helping me bandage my Persian cat, said:

" 'Want me to stay?'

"I told him I thought may be I'd better see my husband alone on account of not having seen him for six months or so. So I told 'Mr. X' he'd better go."

When the gentleman opened the door to leave, Miss George continued indignantly, this is what happened:

"He faced a big detective and some little guy who showed a badge, and some woman from Springfield. I don't know her."

In a little more than 36 hours Gladys was served with "the papers." Husband Fowler filed his divorce action in New York Supreme Court.

Despite the fact that she got the bad news just before her show last night, Gladys went right through with the performance and had her audience cheering for two hours.

ALL BROKEN UP

But today she was all broken up and angry, and she called the whole business "preposterous and baseless and I can prove it." She said:

"Strike me down, there was nothing to my friend's call. It was just a visit. The story about the cat sounds silly, I know, but it's so."

Fowler is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George F. Fowler of Ingersoll Grove, Springfield, and is associated with the Valley Paper Company of Holyoke.

His wife once played with the Teacher Players in Springfield, but last year she got her real stage start in a repertory company here. She acted here for several months before seeking Broadway.

'But It Took Six of 'Em'

Here is Police Officer John E. Striplin of West Roxbury, under treatment at the Forest Hills Hospital, after having been beaten into unconsciousness by six hoodlums who attacked him when he went into a Hyde Park avenue night club to ask a young woman's brother to leave. Striplin's injuries are serious, but "it took six of 'em to lick me," he tells his nurses. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

PERSHING AID IS HIT-RUN VICTIM

James H. "Hubber" Murphy of Cambridge, who was the youngest member of the Yankee Division overseas and was personal bugler for General Pershing, was injured so badly early today by a hit-and-run automobile that he may die.

The war-time bugler, now 34, was struck at Belmont and Norumbega streets, Cambridge, while his mother watched from a window.

At Cambridge Hospital he was treated for a possible fracture of the skull, concussion of the brain and a fractured leg. His name is on the danger list.

Murphy, who joined the Yankee Division when he was only 16, and who was commended by the late President Wilson, risked his life two years ago to save a Harvard Business School student from drowning in the Charles River. At that time he suffered frostbitten legs and feet.

GANG BEATS UP POLICEMAN

Six hoodlums in a Forest Hills club beat a police officer almost into unconsciousness early today after he had gone into the place to get a young man out on the plea of the youth's sister.

The victim was John E. Striplin of Division 17, West Roxbury. He lives in Swallow street, West Roxbury.

Striplin was so battered that he was taken to Forest Hills Hospital, his uniform hanging in tatters from his body. His gun, club and badge were stolen by his assailants.

He is in serious condition with his head, face and body a mass of bruises, and a possible concussion of the skull.

Striplin, West Roxbury police said, was on his way home after completing duty at 1 a. m., when he met Miss Mary Buckley of West Roxbury parkway.

She asked him to go to the Arborway Club in Hyde Park avenue, Forest Hills, and get her brother, Howard, according to officials.

The woman herself told the rest of the story. Patrolman Striplin went into the club and the next thing she heard was a wild melee. Six men came running out. Then the officer staggered forth and collapsed.

Miss Buckley said that she heard one of the men who ran past her yell:

"Let him die. It's good enough for him."

Police said that they learned that Howard Buckley, the youth whom Striplin went in to see, was in the club.

Men Jailed for Poll Tax

William LaPlante, of Hawthorne boulevard, and Elside Parent, of Washington street, both of Salem, are in Essex County jail today to work, at 50 cents a day, until they pay their overdue poll taxes.

When they got to jail, they found five men from Gloucester and two from Beverly there on the same charges.

LaPlante and Parent were the first arrested during a Salem poll tax delinquency drive. They are overdue, police said, on their 1932 and 1933 assessments.

And if they are still in jail Thursday, when the 1934 taxes fall due, they'll be kept there until they work those off.

BUSINESS MEN SEEK OWN TAX

By International News Service

New York, Dec. 4—The manufacturers of America will ask the federal government to raise the funds necessary for recovery by taxing themselves directly.

The request will be made in the platform approved by the directors of the National Association of Manufacturers which will be presented tomorrow at the opening of the association's convention here.

The platform under the heading "Public Finance" reads:

"Substitute for existing state sales taxes and present selective federal sales and "nuisance" taxes an equitable non-cumulative manufacturers' sales tax levied at only one point of manufacture, collected by the federal government and equitably shared with the states."

This is the manufacturers' sales tax which Congress once rejected after a hard fight had been made for it against the opposition of many manufacturers.

The proposal to tax themselves is only one of the remarkable planks in this platform which shows a surprising willingness on the part of industry to "go along" with the New Deal. The platform also asks the continuation of the collective bargaining provisions (section 7a) of the NRA beyond its expiration next June and expresses a willingness to give approval to a "sound solution" of unemployment insurance.

The platform avoids direct conflict with the administration. The provision of the federal budget does not call for immediate balancing by economy. It also calls for rejection of "payment of the soldiers' bonus until due."

HANCOCK FINDS ISLE MUMMIES

By Universal Service

Los Angeles, Dec. 4—Mummified bodies of two shipwreck victims in the lonely Galapagos Islands were found by G. Allan Hancock, Los Angeles business man and patron of the arts, upon the arrival of his exploration cruiser Velero III, according to a radio dispatch received here today.

The radio dispatch read:

"Have found mummified bodies on Marchena Island. Will arrive Galapagos tomorrow. Will advise later."

It was assumed that the exploration party would communicate with living residents of the Galapagos group in an effort to identify the bodies and solve one of the deepest mysteries of the romantic South Seas.

From meager descriptions radioed by Captain Manuel Rodrigues of the fishing clipper Santa Amaro, who just found the bodies, the victims were identified tentatively as Alfred Loreny and a Norwegian sailor named Nuggeruud.

$48,000 for U. S. Watertown Plant

Washington, Dec. 4 (AP)—The Public Works Administration allotted $48,000 today for repairs and improvements of the War Department's arsenal in Watertown, Mass. The PWA funds are to be spent for materials and the relief administration is to furnish the labor.

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Washington, Dec. 4—A sweeping investigation of charges of irregularities in the administration of federal relief funds in New Hampshire and other states has been ordered by Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, it became known today.

The charges of waste and mismanagement came close on the heels of similar accusations brought by Senator Borah.

The conditions in the Granite State have been marked by nepotism and vicious political skulduggery, according to the charges laid on Mr. Hopkins' desk by a delegation of responsible New Hampshire citizens and now under probe by his investigators.

SENSATIONAL CHARGES

Among the sensational charges made to Mr. Hopkins of the handling of relief funds there, intended for poor and needy citizens, are the following:

That Edgar H. Hunter has collected a salary at the rate of $5000 per year — the largest paid to any CWA state administrator in the country—while holding his job as a member of the State Legislature.

That Speaker Elkins of the New Hampshire Legislature and his wife have acepted substantial salaries for clerical work done by them in the administering of welfare relief.

That Max Norton was paid a salary of about $100 per week as an "organizer" of the Relief Administration while holding his private job as bursar of Dartmouth College.

OWNS BUSINESS

That the salaried head of one of the relief stations, at $70 per week owns a business college and a printing plant and is a bank director.

That campaign literature for H. Stiles Bridges, recently elected Republican governor of New Hampshire, was distributed in the franked envelopes of CWA.

That poor and needy citizens were refused public relief because they were not known to be Democratic voters.

That $2,000 of CWA money was expended to repair a building at Concord, N. H., owned by John G. Winant, the retiring Governor of New Hampshire, who was chairman of President Roosevelt's special committee to settle the great textile strike and who is mentioned as a possibility for the Republican presidential nomination in 1936.

That another CWA official was the campaign manager for the gubernatorial aspirant.

That Miss Bertha L. Briggs was discharged as a CWA official "because I refused to make my end of the work a political football."

Governor Winant has replied that CWA workers were put onto his building without his knowledge and that when he discovered it he ordered it stopped and insisted upon paying the $2,000 cost out of his own pocket.

Hunter, the highly paid, is quoted as saying that he is "getting an immense kick out of the publicity." He says every cent of his salary was paid by the state, not by the national government. The bursar of Dartmouth says he several times tried to resign his CWA job but they just wouldn't let him quit.

STATE SENDS CHECKS

Secretary Ickes allotted $400,000,000 for CWA projects to Mr. Hopkins, and New Hampshire received its share. The state distributed both its own money and the national donation through its own checks. The administration of the fund was almost entirely local, but supervised by the national authorities. Since CWA quit its national program Mr. Hopkins' FERA has had a proprietary interest in the projects which are still functioning. His agents are now in the Granite State under instructions from him to probe the matter to the bottom.

Among the compainants of the New Hampshire condition was John H. Bartlett, a member of the Canadian Boundary Commission and former Republican governor of New Hampshire, who supported Mr. Roosevelt in 1932 and the Democratic ticket this year.

Senator Borah has received assurance that Mr. Hopkins' agents are deeply examining conditions wherever there may be reports of diversion of funds, intended for succor not of payroll patriots, but of unfortunate citizens.

Better Than Einstein And Only 7

HIGHEST RATING IN WORLD GOES TO N. Y. LAD

By Associated Press

Brooklyn, Dec. 4—He's smarter than Einstein, smarter indeed than anybody in the whole world including the Scandinavian, and he's only seven years old, going on eight.

Of course, it all depends on how "smartness" is determined. This particular child's rating is based on what is known as the Leland Stanford revision of the Binet Simon tests.

Under these tests the boy—his name is a guarded secret because his parents want him to grow up a normal boy and not be considered a prodigy—has an "intelligence quotient" of 230. The best Albert Einstein, the wizard of mathematics, can show is 205, which will give you an idea.

Just within the last two days the city has suddenly become extremely intelligence-conscious. Yesterday the papers made much of another seven-year-old lad who has an "intelligence quotient" of 196. It was publication of news stories describing that lad prompted authorities at the Ethucal Culture School of Brooklyn to make known the existince of their pupil with the 230-point rating.

To give an idea of how smart the boy is, it was noted that he grasped the mathematics by which the "intelligence quotient" is reached with the greatest of ease.

When Dr. Augusta Alpert, psychologist at the Ethical school, first interviewed the seven-year-old mental giant, the lad was asked: "What sort of things do you dislike?

The child replied:

"I dislike fights and arguments very much. As a rule they are needless and quite pointless, since nothing is ever settled by them."

The child's use of polysyllabic words, Dr. Alpert said, is natural and unaffected.

OFFICERS FACE INDICTMENTS FOR WRECK

Worcester, Dec. 4 — Even as a federal grand jury in New York was returning indictments against steamship officials for misconduct, negligence and inattention to duties in the Morro Castle disaster, a 21-year-old bride, one of the heroines of the tragedy, died here.

The girl is the former Ethel Knight, secretary at the Northampton State Hospital, who married William P. Celatka, also an employe of the hospital. She and her sister, Gladys, passengers on the ill-fated ship, were 14 hours in the water before being rescued. They saved a young boy.

Her parents charged today that the young woman died of a heart ailment brought on by the shock and strain of her experiences. Dr. Ernest L. Hunt, attending physician, said that he would await filing of the death certificate before stating the cause of death. But, he added:

"She had not enjoyed good health since the Morro Castle disaster."

Meanwhile, in New York, Acting Captain William F. Warms, Chief Engineer Eben S. Abbott, Henry E. Cabaud, executive vice-president and the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship Company, owners of the Morro Castle, faced seven indictment charges.

In addition to the misconduct, negligence and inattention to duty counts, the defendants were accused of fraud, neglect, connivance and violations of the federal statutes which cost "more than 20 lives, the exact number thereof, being to the grand jury unknown."

124 Lives Lost

The Department of Commerce placed the death toll at 124 lives, including passengers and crew. Other estimates made the number greater.

The Morro Castle, crack steamship plying between New York and Cuba, burned almost to a shell off the New Jersey coast in a raging gale on September 8.

Of the seven indictments returned, four named Captain Warms, Chief Engineer Abbott, Vice-President Cabaud and the steamship company separately. One named Captain Warms and Abbott together, one Cabaud and the company together, and one all four together.

Penalty in the event of conviction is a $10,000 fine and ten years in a federal prison.

The indictments set forth that the muster lists and station bills which assign passengers and crews

MRS. WILLIAM P. CELATKA

quate and that Captain Warms to stations and life boats in case of need, were insufficient and inade-failed to correct conditions, although he knew them as they were.

Failed to Call Help

Warms is also charged with failure to appraise himself of the serious condition of the fire, failure to radio for help promptly or direct his crew in fighting the fire and rescuing those in the water. Abbott is charged similarly, although not as fully as the captain.

The grand jury began its investigation of September 10, two days after the tragedy. It held 40 sessions and examined scores of witnesses.

Its indictment of Captain Warms marked the first time in 30 years that the government had prosecuted criminally a marine officer in New York for negligence. The last time was when the General Slocum burned with a loss of 900 lives in 1904.

Captain Warms had succeeded to the post of Captain Wilmott, when the latter died suddenly a few hours before the Morro Castle took fire.

GARBO TO QUIT FILMS FOR STAGE—LOVE MUST WAIT

By Universal Service

Berlin, Dec. 4—Greta Garbo next year will leave the movie lots of Hollywood forever to build a new career behind the footlights of the legitimate stage in Stockholm, she has told friends here, it was learned today.

GRETA GARBO

Her rejected marriage to Max Gumpel, young engineer, will have to wait on her ambition to place the name of Garbo alongside those of Duce and Bernhardt in the theater's hall of fame.

Her plans, as confided to Naima Wistrant, Swedish opera singer, and Tom Eriksen, Swedish film actor, now in Berlin, include purchase of the huge Stockholm concert auditorium and incubator for her stage career.

VICTOR SEASTROM

Having gained initial success before her own people in Stockholm, Greta would then—parralleling her film career—return to her American public via Broadway instead of Hollywood.

SARAH BERNHARDT

It is understood the actress desires to engage Victor Seastrom, Swedish male lead who is now doing pictures in the United States, to assist in assuring her success on the stage.

ALL TIES CUT

Miss Emma K. Bouchard, of Quincy, second wife of Alfred R. Saucier, of Milford, convicted bigamist, is free today of all marriage ties, having been granted a divorce in Norfolk Probate court, Dedham, by Judge Joseph R. McCoole.

She testified that she married Saucier, who was called the "steam-shovel Lothario" during his trial, in Detroit, and on August 13 was living with him in Braintree when told by police that he had another wife.

'Among Boston's BEST DRESSED WOMEN

(NO. 7)—Mrs. Clark Staples

Blues Favored

SHOPS FOR NOT TOO EXPENSIVE COSTUMES

By MARGARET D. O'CONNELL

Oh, for goodness sake—still another married woman!

Seventh to be named by the committee selecting 10 among Greater Boston's best-dressed women is . . .

Mrs. Clark Staples of 73 Chestnut Hill road, Chestnut Hill.

A lovely brunette with creamy skin and large eyes, who prefers the bright shades of dark blue for her costumes and is most likely to be encountered in a chic something of sapphire tone is the latest to be agreed upon by the judges, Mrs. Leland Powers, John Lavelle and John Whorf.

Mrs. Staples wore a new tweed costume of navy blue with a short jacket of rosy red when she received me at her early-Colonial home overlooking the reservoir.

The dress had an interesting Peter Pan collar of heavy black wool. With it she wears a tricorne hat that reminds me of Revolutionary days, even to a smart little cord that goes over the hair to hold it on. Said Mrs. Staples:

Loves Long Skirts

"I really don't know how much it costs to be a well-dressed woman. I've bought clothes in the most expensive shops and in the most inexpensive ones, and it seems to me that I have now struck a happy medium in finding just the right clothes at not too much money.

"By that I don't mean one should buy cheap clothes. Cheap clothes don't last and never fit. But where one needs so many changes today, one can't afford to buy very expensive dresses. It is not only the cost of the gown but of the shoes, bag and hat, and of the little accessories such as gloves and hose, that brings up the price of any costume.

"If one can find exactly the right hat, I think there is nothing so smart as the new mode of wearing hats with low-backed dinner and informal evening gowns.

"I do hope that we don't have to take too seriously the possibility of the return of short evening gowns. I love the long skirts and, although I'm tired of tunics I think they are very smart and do much to give the long silhouette that is so becoming."

Mrs. Staples' favorite hobby is gardening. Behind her house are a beautiful rock garden and sunken pool of her own design.

The selection of Mrs. Staples means that the married women are bound to be in the majority in the 10 subsequently completed. The committee's previous selections were:

Mrs. Robert Farrington, of Newton.

Miss Kathleen Moran, of Marlborough street.

Mrs. Gardner W. Bullard, of Berkeley street.

Mrs. Matthew J. Whittall, of Otis place.

Mrs. Willard Emery, of Mt. Vernon street.

Mrs. Charles A. Shea, of Dedham.

(The eighth selection of the committee will be made known by Mrs. O'Connell tomorrow in another discussion of clothes.)

TAXI
SEARCHED FOR SPARROW

An injured sparrow hiding under a taxicab tied up traffic at Boylston and Washington streets for 15 minutes today.

The bird was hobbling on the sidewalk. A woman attempted to pick it up.

A large crowd gathered. Finally the cab driver, Max Tobin, moved his cab.

DIDN'T SEE

Holden, Dec. 4—Ada Louise Bolte, 26, of Main street, was instantly killed and Margaret Stone, 16, was seriously injured when they were run down by a truck. They were walking with four other 16-year-old girls along the Holden-Worcester road. The other four girls managed to get out of the way. The driver of the truck, a 19-year-old Jefferson boy, told police that he did not see the girls in time to avoid the accident.

'Tarzan's' Mate

Los Angeles, Dec. 4—Mrs. Edgar Rice Burroughs, wife of the novelist-creator of "Tarzan," said today she plans to file a divorce action soon against her husband, in which she will charge incompatability.

Mrs. Burroughs said a property settlement has been arranged and that she may name a woman co-respondent.

Burroughs is in Las Vegas, Nev., working on a story.

Mrs. Burroughs and the writer have a married daughter.

Uncle Sam Has 100 Million Dollar Headache on Repeal

COUNTRY WENT WET YEAR AGO BUT TAXES DISAPPOINT

By International News Service

Washington, Dec. 4—Repeal enters its second year tomorrow, a $100,000,000 disappointment to Uncle Sam.

When the 21st amendment to the Constitution legalizing traffic in liquor, wine and beer became effective on Dec. 5, 1933, congressional sponsors and government officials estimated the Treasury would be enriched by $500,000,000 annually from excise and import duties.

Checking through its ledgers today, the Treasury finds the federal government has collected only a little more than $400,000,000 during the first year of repeal.

Approximately $364,500,000 was derived from tax levies on distilled spirits, wines, beer, rectifiers, fortifying brandies, liquor occupations, export stamps, bottled in bond stamps, container stamps, floor storage and brewers and dealers. Import duties collected by the customs bureau amounted to slightly under $40,000,000.

Several factors kept the liquor tax volume from reaching the $500,000,000 estimate. These included the bootlegger, general economic conditions, the cost of collecting taxes and the tardiness of various states in approving wet legislation.

2 'BUMPS' WOMEN'S HEADS GROW 'MANNISH'

By International News Service

London, Dec. 4—Modern woman's "bump of knowledge" is rising rapidly, but her "bump of motherhood" at the same time is growing far smaller than that of her ancestors, according to British phrenologists holding their annual exhibition in London today.

From observations made during the past few months on hundreds of different types of girls, the phrenologists have found that the head of the girl of today, compared with the head of a girl of a few generations ago, shows quite plainly that women are becoming less feminine.

"This is indicated by the shortening of the back of the head, where the urge for motherhood is indicated," said Dr. Ida Speeleman, one of the leading experts of the British phrenological society.

"In the ordinary way," Dr. Speeleman pointed out, "this part of the woman's head is far more developed than that of the male. But now it is becoming more and more masculine."

OBJECTING DR. PEASE, 80, IS STILL AT IT

By Associated Press

New York, Dec. 4—Dr. Charles Giffin Pease, persistent objector to tobacco, meat, alcohol and a good many other things, is 80 years old today and still objecting.

It was Dr. Pease, white-haired prophet of abstinence, who was instrumental in bringing about enactment of laws against smoking in elevators, subways and other public conveyances.

He still walks in Central Park daily, as he has done for the last 30 years, and warns nurses and mothers against giving their babies coffee, or cocoa.

"I can tell when babies are cocoa addicts," he says, "because their eyes become yellow and their skin degenerates."

His own skin is pink and clear as a baby's; this is because he explains:

"I never indulged in tobacco, coffee, tea, flesh, cocoa."

Most of his colleagues in the non-smokers protective league have passed on—Dr. Harvey Wiley, Dr. David Starr Jordan, The Rev. John Roach Straton and others.

HEIR

Not Angela's

By International News Service

London, Dec. 4—Lord Revelstoke, young heir to a banking fortune, today forgot all his woes brought about by pretty Angela Joyce's breach of promise suit.

Lady Revelstoke, whom he married—says Angela—instead of the actress, presented him with a son and heir Sunday, it was announced today.

Lord Revelstoke has double reason for rejoicing. Trial of the breach of promise suit has been thrust into the dim distance. Not far from the nursing home where "mother and baby are doing well," lies Angela, doing not so well. She was operated upon for mastoids, and her suit has been indefinitely postponed.

DEER LUCKY

Season Will Last This One Week

The deer hunting season, which will last for this one week, has been only moderately successful for the hunters so far, the Pittsfield and Springfield sectors reporting the most game bagged.

At least seven deer were shot near the Myles Standish reservation in Plymouth, with a 175-pound buck and a six-point buck being the best bags reported.

A 200-pound buck was reported shot near Pittsfield, and several 150-pound bucks and 125-pound doe were brought down. In Hampden a 150-pound spike-horn buck was shot, and another, weighing 175 pounds, was killed in Blandford.

BULLET Ends Life OF CHUM

ACCIDENT, SAYS HOLY CROSS BOY

TRAGEDY FOR JUDGE'S SON AT PARTY

By Associated Press

Torrington, Ct., Dec. 4—Timothy J. Lyons, Jr., 23, son of the judge of the Torrington city court, died today in a hospital of a bullet wound inflicted by a friend, William C. Kennedy, Jr., a freshman at Holy Cross.

The shooting, termed an accident by Police Chief Hugh E. Meade, occurred Saturday at a dinner party.

Kennedy, 22-year-old son of a prominen Torrington physician, was quoted as saying by Chief Meade that he fired a .38-caliber revolver accidentally as he playfully twirled the weapon. The bullet struck Lyons in the chest.

A technical charge of carrying a concealed weapon was lodged against Kennedy immediately after the shooting and he was reeased without bonds in the custody of his father, city police surgeon and an officer in the Connecticut National Guard.

An additional charge of manslaughter was lodged today against Kennedy. Arraigned in City court before Deputy Judge Peter J. Cavanaugh, the Holy Cross student waived examination and bonds for his release were fixed at $5000.

Questioned at the hospital soon after the shooting, Lyons was quoted by Lieut. Harry Copley, Sergt. Domenic Tremp and Patrolman Fraher as saying he was struck by the bullet after he had declined to accompany Kennedy to a party at another home.

As Lyons slumped to the floor, Kennedy said he knelt beside his friend and said:

"You know I didn't mean to do this, don't you James?"

"I know, Bill, it was an accident," Lyons was reported by Kennedy as having replied.

"James" was Lyons' middle name.

Lyons was graduated from Catholic University in the class of 1934.

New York, Dec. 4—Eight-year-old Carroll Livingston Wainwright, Jr., Gould family heir, is joyful today.

He hadn't, after all, run away from his aristocratic Bermuda home in vain. His wish to grow up "like other American boys," which led him to stow away on a northbound liner, is to be granted.

Word has been received here from Bermuda that his mother, Lady Hector MacNeal, the former Edith Gould Wainwright, plans to leave for New York to arrange for her son's Yankee education.

DIONNE DOCTOR PROPOSED FOR NOBEL PRIZE

By Universal Service

New York, Dec. 4—World honors await Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, savior of the Dionne quintuplets when, for the first time in 29 years, he leaves his Canadian wilds this week.

According to an announcement made here by Dr. Elmer Lee, child specialist, the name of the 51-year-old backwoods doctor will be submitted to the Nobel Commission for award of the 1934 Nobel Prize for outstanding medical achievement.

Coincidentally, dispatches from Toronto revealed that not only his home province, but all Canada is preparing signal acclaim for the modest practitioner.

Dr. A. R. Dafoe

PROPOSES AWARD

Submission of Dr. Dafoe's name to the Nobel commission is on the basis of recognition of the physician not only for his own care of the quintuplets, but as a symbol of the many thousands of unsung practitioners who are constantly meeting emergencies, Dr. Lee said. He added:

"I find strong sentiment in favor of this proposal. It has been the rule to award the Nobel Prize to laboratory men who have the facilities and funds of great institutions to assist them in the advancement of medical science.

"He is representative of the great unrecognized rank and file of medicine. In honoring him, they will be recognized and honored."

VETS' UNIT HIT BY M'CORMACK

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 4—Representative McCormack (D-Mass) said today he had written Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans affairs, to register his opposition to a proposal for consolidation of the veterans administration offices at Boston, Providence and Manchester into a single area.

The headquarters, under this plan, would be at the Veterans Hospital at Bedford, Mass.

"To remove any of the present activities of the Boston office would constitute a hardship. Bedford is a mental hospital. It is 13 miles from Boston, with no direct traffic lines available, and already is overcrowded."

be borrowed at interest, presumably, and new bonds, or debt certificates bearing interest, will be put out. Having paid out millions of interest the government will owe as much as it did before.

MUST the government continue the foolish policy of paying interest on its own money when it can print the money and pay its debts?

Why not give 1,892,496,500 nice, brand new green dollars to the holders of those two and a quarter per cent certificates that come due December 15, saying to the owners:

"Here is nice new money. Spend it and help recovery."

An old man of sixty walked along the railroad tracks near Atlantic City, waiting for a train to come and kill him. It came. He died. His farewell message, urging police not to look for his relatives, mentioned "poverty, sickness, pain and no work" as good reasons for suicide.

A few days ago, a lady, once "rich and aristocratic," killed herself with gas, giving the words, "ill, lonely, impoverished, despondent" as her reasons for leaving life. Much power is in words.

It was suggested here yesterday, after Stalin's friend and associate, Kiroff, had been killed, that Stalin might find a wholesale way to discourage such murders. He has begun finding them. Ten are reported executed within one hour of their arrest in connection with that shooting, and the Russian parliament threatens, if necessary, to revive the "Red terror" that wiped out thousands in the early days of the revolution. All connected, however remotely, with the assassination, are to be executed promptly.

President Roosevelt, at Warm Springs, is said to be discussing an end of the dole, a sort of "letting the old cat die out." Such old cats, like the morphine habit, die slowly, reluctantly, and sometimes not at all.

It is easy to pour out money, if you have it, hard to stop and retain popularity. The dole idea certainly cannot be given up this winter, unless conditions improve amazingly.

Fortunately, there are signs of improvement. Universal Service declares that sales in retail stores increased in 1934 by three thousand million dollars.

Learn that the people spent at retail this year twenty-eight thousand million dollars. They still have money, no other country has as much, but they need more.

In Dublin, moving pictures of the royal wedding were hissed, and when prominent persons appeared, one ardent patriot yelled: "There are the murderers." That seems exaggerated, waste of good hissing. The British royal family does not want to murder anybody. It wants peace and quiet.

Tim Healy, William O'Brien, Parnell, John Dillon, the real old fighting Irishmen, would not have hissed that mild wedding performance.

In the British parliament, Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, asked if he would strive for closer friendship with "our natural friends, the United States," replied: "That has always been the constant object of British policy."

Major-General Sir Alfred Knox interrupted, asking: "And also our friends the Japanese?" Sir John did not answer, and Japan is said to consider that she has been snubbed.

TWO ACTRESSES HUNTED IN BALM CASE

By Universal Service

Los Angeles, Dec. 4—A country-wide search has been launched for Vilma Aknay, the Ethel Barrymore of Hungary, and Sari Fedak, Hungarian actress, following their indictment by the courty grand jury on charges of perjury.

Miss Aknay was charged with three perjury counts, and Miss Fedak with one count of perjury in the true bills.

Warrants for their arrest were ordered issued by Superior Judge Fletcher Bowron and were turned over to the sheriff's office fugitive squad for service.

J. L. Butler, attorney for Ernest Vajda, Hungarian playwright, now in Hollywood, announced he had wired the United States immigration office in New York asking that the actresses be held "for warrants" if they attempted to leave New York, the port of entry for the two women when they came to this country.

The indictment came as the outgrowth of a $250,000 breach of promise suit filed last June by Miss Aknay against Vajda. She charged that she came to America on the promise that Vajda was to marry her.

Gold Strike on Coast Reported

Los Angeles, Dec. 4 (AP)—The Times says one of the richest gold and silver strikes since Goldfield and Tonopah, Nevada, in the early 1900's has been discovered in the vicinity of Mojave, Calif.

Gold Fields of South Africa is reported by the newspaper to have taken an option on 36 acres of the Holmes claim for a reported $3,500,000.

GOOD FRIENDSHIPS IMPROVE

WITH AGE. Likewise fruit cakes, so it is wise to buy the cakes now and put away to ripen. In our shopping around, we have found none better than the fruit cakes available at a chain store. Come in three sizes—small, 23c; medium, 59c, boxed and ready to ship; and a large, fancy-packaged cake at 95c. You might even pour a few tablespoons of brandy over the cake before storing, to bring out all its goodness and flavor.

THE HOLIDAY SEASON is the time for candies of all kinds. If you want to make your own for this time of year, we have the recipes used by Mr. Albert Carpenter, in our Cooking School, which we shall be delighted to send you. Mr. Carpenter comes from a family which for generations has been making candies, and you will find his recipes most successful.

AN ATTRACTIVE cheese slicer makes an excellent gift suggestion, for slicing packaged cheese, to be used at the table, or toasted cheese sandwiches, etc. Separates the slices from the brick as it cuts because in back of the wire strung tightly between the two ends, it has two tines extending from top. Wire is the very best piano wiring. The tines are made from the best premium stainless steel. Has a red pearl handle. Complete with a cheese board, $1.

ANOTHER GIFT SUGGESTION—Attractive China jars, gayly decorated, either blue on white or white on blue, containing one pound of candied ginger. Imported directly from China $1.25 a pound. A gift to delight any hostess for the jar will find many uses after its contents are gone.

YOU WILL WANT to buy two of the seven-piece household sets we have just found—one for yourself! Genuine, non-burnable handles in green or cream. Will not chip. The blades are of stainless steel. Set includes pie knife, utility knife, slicer, grapefruit knife, carving knife and two-tined fork. All for $1.25.

HAVE NO COLD FEET—either before or after purchasing electric pad, which is of a well-known make. Standard size. Has three heats and a thermostatic control to keep it from overheating. Now at the special price of $2.95—regular price, $4.25—to sell out a large supply. Comes in three colors, tan, pink and blue. Act quickly for an attractive, practical Christmas gift.

AND NOW WE HAVE a one-cup electric percolator which will make one cup of coffee in 5 minutes. Right in your own coffee cup. Fill the cup with water, set the percolator on top, put the plug into any socket and in 5 minutes you will have a cup of perfect coffee. $1.50 complete.

WE HAVE HAD so many requests about the steamer in which we made our plum pudding that we hasten to give you the information. The very same make—aluminum steamer—2-qt. size, sells for $1.65. The result is a nicely shaped plum pudding. Has top which fits on easily and screws into place so that no moisture can get into your pudding. Nice, also, to store the pudding to ripen for future use.

A TIMELY OFFER of interest is a kitchen ensemble of waste basket and step-on garbage container, selling for $1. In green, ivory or blue, to match your kitchen color scheme. Small size ideal for the small home or apartment.

NEW, ECONOMICAL and delicious. Try the steamed spiced pudding which is made from an old Cape Cod recipe, with seven different spices, raisins and citron. Stock on it as you will find yourself serving it again and again during the cold winter months, for while it is hearty and nourishing, it is also light and delicate. Inexpensive at 15c a tin. Will serve from 4 to 6 people. Made by the manufacturers of a well-known steamed fudge pudding.

Best Christmas Trade in Years Expected

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 4—The public is in a better mood to spend, government experts say. And so they expect Christmas trade to be the best in four years.

To their predictions that cash registers will jingle as they haven't done since 1930, John Dickinson, assistant secretary of commerce, added this note of cheer:

"The prospects for a big Christmas trade show very clearly the state of mind—a satisfied and optimistic state of mind.

"All of the evidence indicates the people are in a greater spending mood. But not for reckless spending such as we saw some years ago. This mood to buy can be directly attributable to more employment and more money in the people's pockets."

The government statisticians said:

Business generally is running ahead of last year.

October department store sales increased 7 per cent over a year ago, rural general merchandise sales are up 12 per cent, variety store sales 5 per cent and new motor car sales 9 per cent.

Louisiana College Paper Reappears

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 4 (AP)—After a lapse of two issues, The Reveille, Louisiana State University student publication, appeared on the campus today under the editorship of Miss Grace Williamson of New Orleans, and a new staff.

Miss Williamson, a member of the original staff that resigned over asserted censorship of articles criticizing United States Senator Huey P. Long, made peace with the faculty on the grounds that the students were not fighting censorship, but faculty supervision.

Death Victor in 4-Day Battle

Milford, Dec. 4—Four days' battle by volunteers on an inhalator proved in vain here today, when Michael D. Burke, 71, oldest fireman in Massachusetts, died in the home of his sister, Mrs. Mary Feeley.

Burke, who had a record of 51 years as a fireman and the credit of saving 14 lives during his career, was a victim of pneumonia.

Firemen and policemen here, others from Framingham and more from Natick worked the inhalator on their off time in an effort to revive the stricken man. Death came at 4 a. m.

Burke was a semi-professional baseball player of note in his younger days.

U. S. MAY TRAIN CITY SLEUTHS

By International News Service

Washington, Dec. 4—Training of police detectives by the Department of Justice may result from the national crime conference called by Attorney-General Cummings.

Cummings was reported today as feeling that the success of his agents in eliminating John Dillinger, "Pretty Boy" Floyd, and "Baby Face" Nelson, was due in a large measure to the type of training given them.

He knows few detectives of states and cities have had the benefit of scientific education in crime detection.

There will be submitted to the conference, made up of criminologists from all over the country, which meets here Monday and will be addressed by President Roosevelt, a plan for the establishment of a national institute of criminology.

MARTIN INSULL JURY SOUGHT

By Associated Press

Chicago, Dec. 4—Twelve citizens who never dabbled in Insull securities were sought today to try Martin Insull for embezzlement.

Insull, accused of embezzling $344,720 fro mthe Middle West Utilities Corporation, of which he was president, was officially placed on trial yesterday, but the case was adjourned until today by agreement.

Selection of the jury is expected to take three days. Then the state will attempt to prove what the federal government failed to do in its recent trial of Samuel Insull and 16 co-defendants—that the financial deals of the Insull utility heads were tinged with dishonesty.

Win, lose or draw—Martin Insull faces deportation from the United States. An immigration law charge that as an English subject he is in America without proper authority.

'Missing' Hunter Gets Ride Home

Rutland, Dec. 4—While 14 of his companions on a hunting trip were spending the night searching the woods, believing he was lost, John McGann, 22, of Glenwood road, was riding from Ware to Worcester and then walking the state highway home.

McGann separated from his companions in Prescott and after wandering about the woods for three hours found his way to a highway and from there was given a ride to Ware.

CROOKER IS ATTACKED BY SPECTATOR IN CORRIDOR

when he argued successfully that witnesses be placed under oath.

The question came up when Crooker asked:

"Is Walter E. O'Hara here?"

Governor Ely repeated the query and O'Hara responded and took the stand as the first witness. Here Crooker asked that witnesses be sworn, but Governor Ely demurred, declaring it would be setting a precedent in hearings.

23 MILLION GROSS

O'Hara identified himself as "the majority stockholder of the Narragansett race track and president of the corporation." He said he was in charge of general operations at the track which opened August 1.

Q. (by Crooker)—And it has been very successful, hasn't it? A.—Fairly successful.

Q—Now what would you say would be the effect on your business if the operation of legalized racing in Massachusetts came about? A—Well, if they operated against each other it would have some effect on the Rhode Island track, but if the two tracks didn't clash in dates, they would help each other.

Q—But if they raced at the same time, what would be the effect? A—Why, it would cut into the business a great deal.

Q—How did you feel about the campaign in Massachusetts to obtain legalized horse racing? A—I didn't feel too badly about it.

Q—You were quoted in the press as saying that you would not feel unhappy if there were no racing in Massachusetts? A—I wouldn't be. (Laughter.)

Q—Do you know Bayard Tuckman, Jr.? A—Yes, I met him a half a dozen times in a half a dozen years.

Q—And you talked with Tuckerman about racing in Massachusetts, didn't you? A—Well, that was secondary. I was talking with him about some other business.

Q—What attitude did you express toward the racing bill in Massachusetts? A—At that time I told him I was interested in racing in Massachusetts.

Q—You changed your mind after you operated Narragansett? A—Yes.

GOVERNOR BRINGS LAUGH

Crooker then started a new line of questioning.

Q—You are acquainted with the governor? A—I know Governor Ely.

Q—How long have you known him? A—About four and a half years.

Crooker here asked if O'Hara had conferred with Ely on the racing bill, but the governor interrupted and said he thought he could save Crooker some time.

"I had a sort of feeling," said Governor Ely, "that Mr. O'Hara didn't want the racing bill signed and he protested against it being signed, but it was signed."

Crooker said he would ask three more questions and at the same time he reminded O'Hara that he was under oath.

Q.—Have you not said to various persons, many of whom can be called as witnesses, that his excellency promised you he would not sign the racing bill? A.—I never said it.

Q—If you were confronted with these witnesses who claim that you said it, would that still be your answer? A—Yes. I didn't get into communication with the governor until after the bill was on his desk.

QUIZZED ON TELEGRAM

Here Crooker referred to an alleged telegram which O'Hara was purported to have sent to Ely after the bill had been signed. O'Hara said he could not remember the text of the telegram.

Q—What kind of language did you use? A—English. (Great laughter and applause.)

Q—You were pretty angry when the bill was signed? A—I wasn't pleased.

Q—Where was it you sent the telegram to the governor—Westfield? A—That I don't know.

Governor Ely broke in with:

"Have you any idea what was in the telegram?"

Crooker replied:

"Yes, to the best of my knowledge."

"It was not a pleasant telegram," said the governor.

ASKS ABOUT FUND

O'Hara next was asked by Crooker if he was interested in the Ely campaign in 1930. O'Hara admitted that he was.

Q. Did you pay $60,000 to his campaign fund?

Ely objected to the question as did Councillor Joseph B. Grossman of Quincy. Ely said to Crooker:

"You came here with a beautiful opening. May I ask you to refrain from indulging in sharp language and in trying to drag out a lot of dirty linen that arises out of a political campaign.

"GET DOWN TO POINT"

"You came here and stated that you have the highest regard for the integrity of this committee. If you have any specific reasons why this commission should not be confirmed, please let's get down to the point.

"I have been here four years and I know the place is full of gossip and rumor, I have heard some of it. Will you please extend me the courtesy of refraining from gossip and rumor."

Crooker replied:

"I don't consider it dirty linen if a gentleman has contributed to your campaign or anyone else's."

Governor Ely—"An account of my expenses has been filed and they were filed under oath. I would like to have you get down to the point."

ASKS ABOUT CONNORS

Q.—Do you know Charles F. Connors? A.—Yes.

Q.—How long? A.—Fifteen or 20 years.

Q.—Have you had any business relations with him? A.—No.

Q.—Did you suggest to anyone that he would make a good racing commissioner? A.—No, not before he was named.

Q.—Was Mr. Connors a guest of yours at the last meeting at Narragansett? A.—No.

Q—Did Mr. Connors have a season pass for your track? A—Yes.

9000 SEASON PASSES

Q—When did you give it to him? A—I gave it to him before the meetings opened. I gave away between 9000 and 10,000 season passes.

Q—Was General Cole among the 10,000? A—Yes he was.

Q—Was Mr. Ensign? A—I don't remember.

Q—Did you make the selection of those who should get season passes yourself? A—I passed on them.

Q—Did you make the selection? A—Well, they went mostly to politicians, bankers and persons of high standing.

Q—Did this council get them? A—Yes.

Q—Mr. Connors spoke to you about gettting his name on the racing commission? A—Yes.

WHAT IS A "GUEST"?

Q—When? A—Some time at the last meeting.

Q—He was your guest at the meeting? A—He was never my guest.

Q—Well, he had one of your passes, didn't he? A—Yes.

They entered into a discussion of what constitutes a guest, the governor finally interrupting with:

"Mr. Crooker, I'm sorry to interrupt again, but do you think the members of the commission could be bought with a pass? Do you think the council could be bought with a pass? Do you think the governor could be bought with a pass?"

"No," answered Crooker coldly.

CAME TO O'HARA'S OFFICE

O'Hara, questioned further, said that Connors came to the O'Hara office at the track and said he was a candidate for appointment to the commission.

"He told me," explained O'Hara, "he had one or two people speak to the governor in his behalf and he asked me if I would speak to the governor. I told him that I thought I would do more harm than good because the governor did not usually appoint anyone I was interested in."

Q. Was Mr. Connors a guest during the last week of the meeting? A. I think he was.

Q. Did you introduce him as one of the to-be commissioners? A. I do not recall.

Q—Do you know Mr. Ensign? A—Yes.

Q—Do you know Mr. Cole? A—I have known him for some time.

Q—Were you interested in the Cole campaign? A—No.

Q—Do you know J. Paul Keefe? A—Yes.

DENIES CONTRIBUTION

Q—Did you confer with Keefe in regard to the Cole campaign? A—I don't remember.

Q—Did you contribute to the Cole campaign? A—No.

Q—Were you in Boston on the 13th day of September? A—I don't recall the date.

Q—Do you recall meeting General Cole on that date? A—I don't recall.

Q—Did you, at any time during the campaign, say to Cole directly or indirectly that you were interested in his campaign? A—No.

Q. You never said it? A. I said no.

Q. Don't you recall any conversation that you had with Keefe regarding the campaign and how much money would be needed? A. No.

GOVERNOR INTERRUPTS

Q. Did you know that Bayard Tuckerman was opposed to the commission nominated by the governor? A. I understood that, but I did not know for sure.

Governor Ely broke in again and asked:

"What are you driving at?"

Councillor Coakley arose and went over to the governor. They conferred and then Governor Ely said:

"Continue, Mr. Crooker."

Q—Did you send anyone to see Tuckerman? A—No.

Q—Did you talk to C. F. Adams and ask him to go and see Tuckerman for you? A—No.

Q—It was stated to the press by you that you had been approached by the Eastern Horse Club—

Governor Ely interrupted once more.

"SMARTEST FOR JOB"

"Isn't it true, Mr. Crooker," asked the governor, "that you want to find out if Mr. O'Hara was capable of running a race track in Massachusetts?"

"He is the smartest guy to do the job," snapped back Crooker.

Q. Who approached you from the Eastern Horse Club? A. I received a telephone call and made an appointment for a meeting. I just don't recall what day it was, but we had a meeting and present at the meeting were Mr. Adams, Mr. Comerford, Mr. Macomber and myself.

Q—Were they opposed to the commission? A—Yes.

Q—Did they have the Norwood track in mind? A—I don't think so.

Q—Well, they had a track in mind, didn't they? A—Yes.

WAS JUST "SENT FOR"

Q—Didn't you say at this meeting, Mr. O'Hara, that you all should get together and talk it over? A—No.

Q—Why did you sit in? A—Because they sent for me.

Q—Did you sit in so the Eastern Horse Club would withdraw opposition to the commission if they were declared in on the track? A—No. The reason I sat in was because I thought I could run a race track better and more honestly than anybody in this state.

Q—Do you want the council to know that you were not interested? A—I wouldn't become a minority stockholder in any track. I wanted to operate it myself.

Q—At this conference, can you tell us who said that? A.—I don't know. The conference was, primarily, for us to get together and help racing in Massachusetts. The Eastern Horse Club members told me that they had been operating a meet annually out of Brookline at a loss and that they had more interest in the horse racing situation in this state than any other group.

BUILD BEST TRACK

"I told them I would build the best track and that I would be the most capable man to run it. Then they asked me if I would be interested in becoming associated with them in a track. I told them I would think it over."

Either Macomber or Adams said that they would be better off without Crooker leading this fight opposing the commission named by the Governor.

Q. You thought it would cease? A. Yes.

QUESTIONS HIS PURPOSE

Governor Ely then questioned the purpose of Crooker's last question. Crooker answered:

"I think the intent of the question is obvious to a seven-year-old boy."

"It must be apparent to me, then," the Governor said.

Crooker replied: "I am beginning to be convinced that the interrogation is being conducted from the bench for the purpose of protecting this witness."

Governor Ely answered: "If you have any such idea as that, I for one have no desire to hear you further."

BRINGS UP DOG RACES

Crooker then said: "In as much as I have to subject myself to the rule of His Excellency, I am ready to suspeng any time the Governor says."

Governor Ely said:

"Well, I don't want you to show your feeling. Go ahead an dexamine your witness."

Resuming his interrogation of O'Hara, Crooker asked:

Q—Do you intend to sit in with the people with whom you had a conference and help run a race track.

A—I haven't made a decision. I am a stockholder and director of the Boston Garden but the dog racing was not one of the considerations which prompted me to become affiliated with the Boston Garden. The dog racing had been considered by the officials of the Boston Garden for a time, but I understand Mr. Lapham had decided against it.

BRAVES FIELD DISCUSSED

Q. What interest, if any, have you in the Braves Field organization? A. None.

Q. Have you caused any examination to be made of Braves Field as a location suitable for dog racing? A. I have not.

Councillor Coakley interrupted and questioned O'Hara.

Q. Did you have any talk with the owners of Braves Field about dog racing. A. Judge Fuchs tried to interest me in dog racing at Braves Field, but I told him I had no interest.

Q. Was the conversation before or after the appointment of the commission? A. There were two conversations, one before and one after.

Crooker then took up the questioning and asked O'Hara if he knew George C. Funk, who was interested in the greyhound association which sought a charter for dog racing in Massachusetts.

COLE TAKES STAND

O'Hara replied that he did not know Funk intimately; that they had never met but once. O'Hara said Funk might have done some work for the engineer who did some construction work at Narragansett.

At this point, O'Hara was excused and General Charles H. Cole nominated by Governor Ely as chairman of the racing commission, took the stand and was sworn.

Q—(By Crooker) State what experience, if any, you have ever had in the administration of horse and dog racing? A—As far as actual experience, none.

Q—State what personal acquaintance, if any, you have had with racing administration conditions in New Hampshire or Rhode Island? A—I know very little about it. I attended Narragansett Park fife of six times this season and I also visited the Saratoga track. I have never been at Maryland or Florida tracks.

HAS STUDIED LAWS

Q—Do you know anything about the racing statutes of other states? A—I have examined some of them.

Q—Now, as a matter of fact, there are in the racing game certain owners, certain trainers and certain jockeys who are under suspicion. Are you familiar with this phase of the game? A—More or less.

"The duties of a commission are of an executive nature," said Cole. "The Secretary of War does not do professional soldiering; the police commissioner knows nothing about professional policing—therefore the members of the racing commission would be of a quasi-judicial character. It would be all executive work, the same as in any other work.

"I believe that a man who has not been connected with race tracks would be a more impartial official than one who was."

Cole said he knows Walter O'Hara, but has had no conversation with him as to who would be appointed to the racing commission. The witness did not know, he said, who suggested his appointment.

Asked if he knew Connors, the general said:

"I just met him, half an hour ago, here."

Cole said he had met Ensign at the Narragansett track. Asked if he had then been a guest of O'Hara at the track, he replied that he had.

Q. Were you O'Hara's guest in his penthouse over the clubhouse of the track? A. Yes, two or three times when I was down there.

Q. Did O'Hara say anything to you about going on the commission? A. Not a word.

J—Of your own knowledge, did O'Hara may any contribution to your primary campaign? A—No.

Q—Have you ever stated to anyone that you were reluctant to go on the commission, since some embarrassment would be caused you because of Mr. O'Hara's contribution to your campaign? A—No, I never did.

RETURNS TO CAMPAIGN

The witness was then questioned about his primary campaign committee.

"Did Mr. Keefe raise any money for your campaign? A—Mr. Keefe, in accepting the position, insisted that he should not be called upon to solicit funds.

Governor Ely interjected:

"You shouldn't go into a rambling question regarding General Cole's campaign committee and the raising of funds."

Crooker—"I am trying to find out what member, or merbers, of the committee solicited funds. Are you aware that the campaign committee has never filed notice of its organization with the office of the Secretary of State?

Governor Ely—"Why should this be asked?"

Crooker—"Because members of the committee may have solicited funds without General Cole's knowledge."

COULD FILE BY DEC. 6

Ely—"We are not trying the Cole committee. Assuming they were legally formed, by what date should they have filed returns?"

Crooker—"By December 6."

Ely—"Then they haven't failed in filing a return, assuming that they were legally organized."

Councillor Coakley said:

"Here we've spent a lot of time on this thing, when we could have disposed of it in one minute if the witness were allowed to answer. The public is entitled to get the answer. I don't think the impression should be given that the council is trying to conceal anything."

Ely smiled and said to Coakley:

"I accept your reprimand. Go ahead, Mr. Crooker."

$14,000 FOR CAMPAIGN

Q—You made a personal return of your campaign expenses? A—Yes.

Q—Have you any knowledge as to the amount of money and sources thereof, given in support of your campaign? A—Yes, around $14,000.

Q—Did any money come into that fund from O'Hara? A—No, to my knowledge.

Q—Why do your returns of campaign expenditures, as filedw ith the Secretary of State, not contain any item for disbursements to chairmen of town and city committees for getting out the vote? A—We had no funds for that purpose.

Cole than left the witness stand and William H. Ensign of Westfield, one of the commission nominees, was called and sworn. He was questioned by Crooker.

Q—What experience have you had with horse racing? A—None, only by attendance.

Q—Have you attended racing meets at Narragansett? A—I have.

Q—Have you any personal knowledge of pari-mutuel betting in any track outside of Rhode Island? A—No.

Q—Have you ever been to the tracks at Maryland? A—No.

Q—Have you ever been to the tracks at Saratoga? A—Many years ago.

Q—Then you have no personal knowledge of horse racing other than by your attendance at the Rhode Island track. A—I own several horses and many years ago I had an interest in a race horse.

JUST "HALF A HORSE"

Q.—You owned half of a horse? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was it the winning half? A.—I don't know.

It then developed that the horse was a trotter and not a runner.

Q—Mr. Ensign, you know there are many tricks about racing? A—I suppose so.

Q—Suppose you were at a track at Norwood, owned by Tuckerman and O'Hara, and a spectator said to you, "What kind of a steward have you got down there? He let that boy foul the other jockey." Would you know what he meant from the knowledge you have now? A—I would attempt to surround myself with information.

Q—Well, would you know from your own knowledge now? A—I don't know altogether.

KNEW OF APPOINTMENT

Q—Do you know anything of the vicious practice of doping horses? A—I have heard about it.

Q—Do you know of your own knowledge? A—No.

Q—With all respects to you and your ability as a business man, if you became a racing commissioner you would have to go to school to learn about racing; isn't that so? A—I don't know about that.

Ensign said that about the first of September Governor Ely told him that he nitended appointing him a member of the commission.

Q—Do you know whether anybody suggested your appointment to the governor? I mean so far as the horse interests of the state are concerned. A—Not that I know of.

Q—So far as you are aware, you are the governor's own selection? A—Yes.

CALLS "INVITED" LIST

Ensign testified that he met O'Hara at the Narragansett track when he went there with Governor Ely just before Labor Day. It was on that day the intimation came of Ensign's appointment to the commission.

This concludede Ensign's testimony. Crooker then asked Governor Ely and the council to summon the men on the list of those "invited" to testify at the hearing but who failed to appear.

"I'b going to lay my cards on the table," declared Crooker. "All these allegations came from the Tuckerman horse group. It is my inference that the Tuckerman hose group has gon to cover since the compromise with O'Hara.

"Tuckerman said that the commission stunk. I think that he should be brought up here to tell why he said it stunk."

Governor Ely said:

"What you want us to do is summon him in to justify your position. In other words, you want Mr. Tuckerman to eat his words."

Crooker—"I have no position in this. I don't think he will eat his words. I think he will tell you exactly what he told me."

Governor Ely—"You have made pertinent inquiry of the gentlemen you wanted here and asked under oath. And you've got your answers. The rest of it looks to me as if it might be a quarrel between you and Tuckerman. But, however, whatever the council wants to do will be done."

Here the hearing was adjourned until 2:30 p. m., with Ely stating:

"We will discuss the situation as it now stands, and whatever is the pleasure of the council will be my pleasure, as it has been on many other occasions. For myself I do not see why the council should be interested in a quarrel between you and Tuckerman or Tuckerman and O'Hara.

The hearing was still in progress.

Rescued From Flames

JUNE PATSTONE MRS. ARTHUR PATSTONE

7 Driven Out in Atlantic Fire

Five children and their parents were forced to flee in night clothing early today when fire swept their home at 44 Colby road, Atlantic. Loss was set at $1500.

The fire was discovered by David Osborne, who had been asleep in the upper floor of the cottage. He aroused his brother, Russell Osborne, and his half-brother, Wallace Patstone, who were asleep in adjoining rooms.

The three ran to the first floor and aroused June, 19, Marion, 13, and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Patstone. The family stood helplessly in the rain while the fire raged through the upper section of the house.

Munition Makers Aware 'World War Was Due'

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 4—Evidence that arms manufacturers knew as early as 1908 that "a tremendous conflict was brewing" in Europe was presented today to the Senate munitions committee.

The World War broke out six years later.

The committee also received evidence that the United States government assigned delivery on some of its munitions contracts to the British navy from 1914 to 1916.

A brief filed by the Colt Patent Firearms Company with the government in a tax case indicated the company's anticipation of the war, the committee said.

SAW WAR BREWING

"We knew a tremendous conflict was brewing and spent the money necessary to organize a sales force throughout Europe," the brief said.

S. M. Stone, president of the company who was testifying, said he did not have any more "definite knowledge" of the impending war than the average citizen.

Dr. Manley O. Hudson, Harvard law professor, said the proposed arms control plan recently submitted to the world by the United States represented the "high water mark of post-war effort" to control munitions of war.

It provided for licensing companies dealing in munitions and for full reports of such activities.

"GREAT STEP FORWARD"

Hudson, one of the senate committee's advisers, said:

"If such a treaty could be put into effect by the principal producing nations, and if it could be properly implemented by national legislation, it would constitute a great step forward."

He added that the United States had "fortunately" abandoned its "unsound position' of obstructing efforts to control manufacture of arms because of the belief that this country lacked constitutional power to act.

"Under President Roosevelt," he said, "we have now taken the lead in the whole effort. The treaty we proposed two weeks ago represents the high-water mark of this post-war effort."

TROOPERS FOR REVERE POLLS

Treasurer James M. O'Brien, both candidates, petitioned for them.

Mayor Andrew A. Casassa and Representative Thomas F. Carroll, the other candidates, were opposed to calling outside help. Both maintained that Revere authorities were quite capable of handling the situation.

In addition to the state troopers, the city of Lynn loaned Revere 10 police officers, and 20 special election supervisors, named by Governor Ely, were stationed at the voting booths.

It may be that tonight will see the mayor elected instead of merely nominated in Revere. Under its new election laws, if a primary candidate receives 51 per cent of the total vote, a candidate is automatically elected mayor, providing that 80 per cent of the total registered vote is cast.

That was what happened in Peabody in its primary a few weeks ago. It made a mayoralty election unnecessary in Peabody today, although this was regular election day.

Mayor Casassa of Revere, in a last minute statement, forecast his own victory under provisions of that new regulation.

Revere is nominating for 15 city offices in all, from mayor to school committee. The election is on December 18.

In the 12 other municipal elections, Chicopee, Leominster, Newburyport and Taunton are having "off-years." No mayoral contests are listed, but there is keen battling for lesser offices.

THEY ALL GET A LIFT WITH A CAMEL!

CIVIL ENGINEER. Says Captain Eric Loch: "Camels have been my cigarette for 9 years. The longer I smoke them the more I appreciate their rich, mild flavor. I smoke all I want and they never jangle my nerves."

NEWSPAPER MAN. Ray Baker of the INS says: "The most enjoyable way of easing strain that I know is smoking Camels. For my experience has been that whenever I feel 'all in' I can quickly restore my energy with a Camel."

EXPLORER. Mrs. Wm. LaVarre reports: "I am devoted to Camels. Any time I'm tired I stop and smoke a Camel. It wakes up my energy in no time. And here's an important point. Smoking Camels steadily, I find, does not affect one's nerves."

YOUNG STARS IN AIR FEATURE TONIGHT

By N. F. T.

There's a two-way entertainment effort entered upon the ether early this evening. By the aforementioned assertion is meant that a pair of popular young Boston performers have won duplicate placement in a program way. In fact, at 5:45, the talents of 13-year-old Helen Young and 11-year-old Gerard Graham come through (WNAC) and subsequently the same lad and lass win a double decker way into the Hub sound sanctum spotlight (WAAB) when 6:30 comes to pass.

It is especially significant that these juvenile artists are assigned to the air on Yankee Network air wave channels at an interval involving only 45 minutes. It so happens that the Yuletide season now approaching, affords an adequate opportunity for the aforementioned girl and boy team to broadcast their respective talents for a sponsor before 6 o'clock and again under Boston Evening American auspices, being "Secret Agent X-9" program guest personalities. Meaning lastly (WAAB) at 6:30 p. m.

"N. F. T."

Lawrence Tibbett takes occasion to demonstrate his striking song doings he has rehearsed for so long (WBZ) and which culminatiates, or perhaps it shuld be said, gets under way tonight at 8:30 p. m. Tibbett launches into his classic, Broadway and Southern folk song selections. Wilfred Pelletier directs the orchestra throughout.

* * *

Lots of talk around and about concerning the failure of Phil (Seth Parker) Lord to connect with this country since he packed off aboard his schooner for the South seas and distant ports down that way. It seems that Seth and his engineers broke a broadcasting transmitter coil. At least they declare the coil went haywire. At this hasty writing, it appears they have partially fixed the gadget. Tonight (WBZ) his globe girdling boat is strivng to send word over the ozone to us folks who happen to be having nothing else to do but dial down to that WBZ wave when 9:15 rolls around.

Donald Novis does the grand mannered "guest artist" honors (WNAC) while Isham Jones and his melody men move from border to border during the 9:30 to 10 o'clock half hour tonight . . . There's a brand new Hub highlight, which more than many morning hearers will be bound to hail if they catch the contents (WEEI) on Thursdays at 10:30 a. m. It's labeled "Parade of the Day" and Guy H. Tolman, enthusiastic head man for the sponsor, thinks he has hit upon a forenoon feature it will be difficult to touch, or perhaps even approach. Thus and so all home town backers of broadcasts have a challenge in the wind. Incidentally, and quite seriously, said "Parade of the Day," deal on the dial is genuinely impressive and an adequate pace setter for Hub program planners . . . Ben Bernie brings a gal named Maxine Doyle before the sound trap (WEEI) for his 30 minutes of coast to coasting tonight at 9 o'clock. Maxine has just completed a starring role opposite Joe E. Brown, the well known big-mouth of screenland, having "Six Day Bicycle Rider" for a film vehicle . . . There's some satire predicted and that usually means fun awaiting loudspeaker patrons who put in there (WEEI) between 10 and 11 o'clock for the "Beauty Box Theater" broadcast.

BORAH IS HIT IN G. O. P. ROW

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 4—Senator Borah, who demanded a reorganization of the Republican party received a challenge today from Senator Couzens (R.-Mich.) to take the chairmanship and suggest a new platform.

He said Borah, like Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, campaigned against aspects of the new deal but "neither one was successful because they offered no substitutes for the programs they criticized."

TheMichigan Senator's entry into the party controversy came shortly after Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the Republican National Committee, had flatly declined to resign at Borah's request.

To step out at this time, Fletcher said, "would plunge the party organization into confusion."

Representative Fisch (R.) of New York also took issue with Borah, saying that while the party should "liberalize and humanize its policies," Fletcher should not be called upon to resign, "provided he is willing to go along in favor of liberal policies."

Lynn Youth Faces Court

Marino Chiappini, 17, of Alley street, Lynn, will appear in Lynn court tomorrow for a continued hearing in connection with the death of John F. Barry, 54, a teamster of Prospect street.

Darting Towards Christmas Food

WIDOWS ASK BASKET FUND FOR AID

Here are more appeals received by the Christmas Basket Fund Editor. Every one of these cases has been investigated and found worthy of the help of Goodfellows who wish to see that no one lacks Christmas joy.

CASE 10

I am writing you this letter because I need your help very much. My husband died three years ago and left me with six children. My oldest that is 17 married secretly last month, which was a terrible shock to me for she brought an income to the house. I only get a few dollars from the welfare, but I need much more for expenses and the support of myself and my children. My youngest is five years old and now my oldest is 14.

I have five children to support now. I have been worrying very much for their happiness for Christmas because after I pay my important bills I cannot give the children enough to eat.

This mother lives in South Boston. Anyone wishing to help her may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. (10).

CASE 11

I am sending in my plea to you at this early date for a Christmas basket.

I am a mother of six children. I am a widow and it is very hard to support my children on what little I get. My children's whole soul is set on Christmas and it will be very disappointing if they have not a thing for their dinner. So I am asking you if you would remember us on Christmas with a basket. The children worry me so I hardly know what to do.

Ever since I lost my husband I have had nothing but hardships. Hardly enough to eat and little or no fire. So please do what you can to make my little ones happy on that one day of the year all children look forward to.

This mother loves in Hyde Park. Anyone wishing to help her may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. (11).

CASE 12

I am writing to you again this year asking for a Christmas Basket dinner for my wife and four children, as I am only working three days a week out in the ERA project and only earning $12 a week as a laborer and I have to pay 60 cents a week carfare out of my pay, leaving me $11.40. I have to pay my rent every week and also my grocery bill, not including my butcher. I have no one helping me, as my oldest boy is only 13 years and oldest girl 8 years last June, May is just 4 years old and the baby 19 months old.

I wish to thank you for your kindness last Christmas. I would not have a dinner on Christmas Day only for Boston American Fund.

Hoping that you will grant me this favor once more.

This father lives in South Boston. Anyone wishing to help him may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for case No. 12.

Writing you these few lines hoping you will not forget me this Christmas. My husband is on the welfare and our people are on the welfare, so we have no hopes of having a good dinner.

I am going to have a baby in January, between the fourth and the 12th. So you see I am very anxious to get a good Christmas dinner as I will be in the Boston City Hospital shortly afterwards.

I had a very poor Thanksgiving, we had canned hamburg, welfare meat. As you see we could not afford anything else because all my husband gets is $7 a week and we pay three for rent, then we pay a few odd bills.

This mother lives in Charlestown. Anyone wishing to help her may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 13.

STAGE, SCREEN STARS TO AID BASKET FUND

Already the Goodfellows of the land are mobilizing to aid the needy and luckless at Christmas time and to ease the worry of the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund director.

Great entertainments are being arranged at which, while you are having your fun, you can be happier in the thought that you are also helping those who otherwise would have little or no happiness during the holiday season—and children who might not even have enough to eat.

First is the big show scheduled for next Sunday night at the Mayfair in Broadway. Here the foremost stage, screen and radio stars who are in town will entertain, through courtesy of Benny Ginsburg, and here will be an opportunity to see your favorite entertainers close up.

BIG FLOOR SHOW

Sammy Liner and his snappy dance band will hold forth at the Mayfair; Joe Rines of the Gay Manner and The Cascades will be master of ceremonies and will bring over a Cascades act.

Governor-elect James M. Curley will be present, so why not you? Tickets are only $2.50 for the big show and are on sale today at the Mayfair, in Broadway, just off Stuart street. And after the show there will be dancing from midnight until 2 a. m.

SMITH CLUB AIDS

That is one big party in aid of the Christmas Basket Fund. Another will be a big vaudeville show in the Municipal Building, South Boston, on the night of December 18, arranged by the Alfred E. Smith Club of South Boston.

"The abundance of sunshine poured into homes that would otherwise be darkened during the past Christmas seasons was made possible in large measure by your kind acts of mercy," William V. Doherty, vice-president of the club, writes to the Christmas Basket Fund Editor.

"We feel sure that many, blessed during these days of distress, will find an outlet for their generosity by patronizing this noble cause."

Martin J. Quinn, president of the club, and Representative Robert V. Lee head the committee arranging this show, and many fine acts of vaudeville as well as individual stage and radio stars, including Ranny Weeks, will be in the Alfred E. Smith Club show.

YOUR OPPORTUNITY

So if you have a club, a society or a fraternity, why don't you, too, run a show or a dance or an entertainment for the benefit of the Christmas Basket Fund? You'll have a lot of fun, the patrons will have entertainment—and the needy will benefit at Christmas time.

Even if only $5 net goes into the Christmas Basket Fund, it will mean that much happiness at Christmas time to bring some family out of despair. If $100 is received, it means just so many more families.

Go to it — you Goodfellows in bridge clubs, in social clubs, in neighborhood organizations and in other associations!

KIDNAP NOTE BLAMED IN KILLING BY JUDGE'S SON

By Associated Press

Tulsa, Okla., Dec. 4—Phil Kennamer, 19-year-old son of a federal judge, was quoted today by Robert Thomas, 19, a companion, as saying he killed John F. Gorrell, Jr., because of an extortion note Kennamer said Gorrell wrote.

Thomas, in a signed statement, said Kennamer confided to him he shot and killed the 23-year-old dental student because of a note demanding $20,000 from Homer F. Wilcox, Sr., Tulsa oil man, under threat of kidnaping his daughter, Virginia Wilcox.

Kennamer, son of Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer, pleaded not guilty yesterday when arraigned on a charge of murder.

Thomas, in his statement to Conway, said Kennamer told him about the shooting last Thursday midnight at a suburban cafe about 15 minutes before Gorrell's body was found.

"He then said he killed Gorrell because of that extortion note," Thomas' statement said.

"'What extortion note?' I asked him. 'This one,' he said. 'Read it.' I told him I didn't want to read it. He insisted and handed me an envelope. It was soiled, but had never been mailed. I don't believe there was any name or address on the envelope. There were three sheets of writing paper in the envelope, I think. The letter was written in black ink. It wasn't typewritten.

"I didn't pay much attention to the note, but I remember it said if Mr. Wilcox didn't pay a $20,000 ransom they were going to kidnap his daughter, Virginia Wilcox."

New York, Dec. 4—Homer F. Wilcox, Tulsa, Okla., oil man, said today that his son, Homer F. Wilcox, Jr., wanted for questioning in connection with the mysterious slaying in Tulsa of John F. Gorrell, Jr., was "on a Christmas shopping trip and will be back in Tulsa in two or three days."

'beacon hill'

By Betty Alden

A LARGE GROUP of Junior League girls has been detailed to usher at the Emergency Campaign opening dinner on Thursday evening at the Statler Hotel . . . equipped with red badges and seating lists these leaders of the younger social set will be at the entrances of the ballroom to dispel any qualms the guests may have as to where their cover is laid or beside whom they are to be seated . . .

AMY LANG

Miss Rue French, executive secretary of the Junior League, will be in charge of the ushers, assisted by Miss Nathalie Appleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis H. Appleton, Jr.; Miss Sarah Foster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Foster; Miss Mary Elizabeth Lowe, whose parents are the George J. Lowes, Jr.; Miss Amy Lang, blonde and petite daughter of the Malcolm Langs; Miss Barbara E. Warner, who comes from Milton; Miss Marion Little and Miss Elizabeth Willett . . .

Dinner in Milton

MORE THAN 400 of Boston's social leaders have already made reservations for this inaugural dinner, where they will hear several nationally prominent speakers outline the purpose of the drive, which opens officially on January 14 . . .

Mrs. John Wells Farley and Mrs. J. Gardner Bradley will entertain together for Mrs. Robert Herrick, Mr. Bernard Weld, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Weld, Mrs. Bayard Thayer and Mrs. William Amory Parker, whose husband heads the special gifts committee . . .

Many distinguished guests will dine with Mrs. Thomas Motley, Jr., of the Cedars in Milton . . . in this party will be Mr. and Mrs. James A. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. H. Frederick Lesh, Mr. and Mrs. Orrin G. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cushman, Mr. and Mrs. Ripley Dana, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Morison, Mrs. Philip Caproni, Mrs. William H. Goodwin, Mr. Wilbur S. Grant, Mrs. Franklin Hobbs and Mr. and Mrs. Ernst M. Parsons . . .

Mrs. John Gorham Palfrey, who headed the women's division of last year's campaign, and who is active on the inaugural dinner committee, will entertain with Mr. Palfrey for Dr. and Mrs. James C. Ayer and Mrs. Harold Russell . . .

Another important group who will dine together will include Mrs. Robert M. Blackall and her guests, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus S. Nye of Hingham, Mrs. J. Sumner Draper, Mr. John B. Howard, Mr. Fred B. Lund, Jr., Mrs. John B. Osborn, Miss Helen L. Jones, Miss Myra B. Conover and Mrs. Davis K. Horton . . .

With all these important and philanthropically minded friends of charity working in the interests of the Emergency Campaign of 1935, the drive should certainly go over the top in even less than the allotted time . . .

Post-Debs to Attend Dance

WHILE THE DEBUTANTES and their gallants are toasting Jeannie Paine and Anne Fisher at the Somerset on Friday evening, the post-debs and marrieds of all ages will glide and sway in a silver fairy land setting at the Crystal Assembly in the ballroom of the Statler . . . Silver tinsel on evergreen trees, clusters of huge crystal grapes, silver balloons and white ribbons are all being used for decorations by the committee whose ambitions are to turn over a large sum of silver dollars to the M. S. P. C. C., one of society's pet charities . . .

Eleanor Gibson

The dance is affording a good excuse for dinner parties with many hostesses entertaining early in the evening . . . Miss Katherine Lane of Marlborough street will have a party of eight including Mr. and Mrs. Francis Lothrop, Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Sears, Jr., Dr. and Mrs. George Denney and Mr. Waldron Belknap . . .

Miss Eleanor Gibson, Miss Serita Bartlett, Miss Edith Parker, Miss Elsie Perkins, Miss Isabella Gardner and Miss Dorothy West are among the younger set who will entertain at dinners . . .

Other hosts and hostesses before the dance will be Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Danielson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Herrick, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Dabney, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Bernard C. Weld, Mr. and Mrs. Willliam D. Sohier, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Dane, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. John H. Marshall.

Bridge Teas To Aid Students' Society

MRS. CARL DREYFUS is opening her home tomorrow afternoon for a bridge tea sponsored by the Boston Wellesley College Club to benefit the Students' Aid Society.

Mrs. Robert Dodge, whose husband is president of the trustees of Wellesley, is assisting as hostess with Mrs. Edward Hale, district chairman for Boston. The following committee is assisting with the sale of tickets, Mrs. Douglas V. Brown, Mrs. J. P. Fiske, Mrs. E. John Luddigh and Mrs. Charles B. Rugg.

In Brookline, Mrs. Samuel C. Prescott of Tappan street will be hostess at a similar tea. Mrs. Theodore Haffenreffer, chairman of the district, is working with the following committee to assist at Mrs. Prescott's, Mrs. Lucius J. Barnett, Mrs. Matthew Brown, both of Brookline; Mrs. Ben Ames Williams, Mrs. Frederick Kingsley of Chestnut Hill, and Mrs. Ethelbert Grabill and Mrs. Percy Witherell of Jamaica Plain.

Mrs. George Brown of Brattle street will be the hostess for the Cambridge party with Mrs. Paul Means, Mrs. Samuel Cross and Mrs. James Mitchell assisting her. Mrs. Louis E. Boutwell, Mrs. George S. Miller and Mrs. Paul E. Troy will assist with the sale of tickets at this party.

Other benefit bridge teas for the same purpose have been arranged by Mrs. George N. Ricker, general chairman, to take place in Newton, Arlington and Wellesley Hills. Although the parties are arranged according to districts, one need not feel obliged to adhere to the group in her own community if she wishes to accompany friends from a neighboring district.

For the convenience of business alumnae, Miss Barbara Hall and Miss Elizabeth Wetherbee have arranged for a bridge tea to take place at the home of Miss Hall, Prospect street, Belmont, on Saturday, December 8, at 2:30.

Sorority Will Hold Bridge, Style Show

Finding an Entry in Bid of Three Notrump Is Explained

By Josephine Culbertson

Just as pawns or even more important pieces such as knights and bishops are sacrificed in Chess to gain winning positions, potential winning tricks are very often thrown away at Contract Bridge in an effort to gain an entry. For instance, when it is a matter of vital importance for the declarer to gain entry to his dummy, he quite frequently overtakes a high card, even though this overtaking play virtually sets up the suit for the opponents.

In the hand below South used his longest and strongest suit solely as a means of finding an entry, and fulfilled the three-notrump contract by use of this entry to cash his ninth trick in another suit.

South, Dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

North:
♠ A 6
♡ K 10 9 5 4

West:

East:
♠ 8 5 4
♡ J 8 2
◇ J 9 8 6
♣ 9 3 2

South:
♠ 10 7 3 2
♡ Q 6
◇ A K Q 2
♣ A K Q

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT (1)	Pass
Pass	Pass

(1) North raises to three notrump because his previous bid of one heart was in no way shaded. He recognizes South's jump to two notrump as a near force and quite properly decides that the length in the heart suit plus the additional Jack gives him sufficient values for the raise.

West made his normal opening lead of the spade King and the declarer, holding a potential second stopper in his own ten-spot, won the trick with the Ace in dummy. South immediately noticed that he had eight tricks in sight—one in spades, three in diamonds, three in clubs and one in hearts. The certain fourth trick in clubs no longer was sure as dummy's only positive card of re-entry had been removed by the opening lead. South saw, however, that if the heart Ace were in the right hand the heart King would provide this very much needed entry card, and dummy could thus be reached to cash the Jack of clubs.

South's next step, of course, was to unblock the club suit by playing out the Ace, King and Queen from his own hand. He now led the Queen of hearts, hoping that the trick would be won with the Ace on the first round and thus that the dummy could subsequently be entered with the King. West, however, was awake to the situation and quite properly did not play his Ace, basing this play on the hope that declarer had only two cards in the suit.

South, of course, now faced the crisis. He did not know which player held the heart Ace, and realized that either of the opponents (both of whom were better than average players) would have sense enough not to go up with this card on the first round. South knew, however, that his only hope, since the Queen had been led, was that the Ace lay in the West hand. He deliberately overtook the Queen with dummy's King, even though this play would automatically set up both the Ace and Jack for the opponents. Luckily, since West did hold the Ace, the King in dummy held the trick and South was able to cash the fourth club. The Ace, King and Queen of diamonds then provided the game-going tricks, and the contract was fulfilled.

In this situation South had an alternative line of play which he quite properly discarded. This was to lead a low heart on the first round of the suit and, assuming the West player played low, to play the ten from dummy. This line of play would work if the Jack were correctly located, but even then the Queen would have to be overtaken by dummy's King on the second round—the principle being the same. South's play of the Queen is a slightly better play as it does allow for the possibility of a defensive error, which would immediately solve all difficulties.

St. Elizabeth Guild Holds Food Sale

THE STATE SUITE AT THE Copley Plaza Hotel was a gay and busy place today when Christmas gifts of every kind, delectable foods, cakes and sweets, were sold by the Guild of St. Elizabeth to benefit the day nursery on Dudley street, which the Guild supports.

Miss Alice Falvey, president of the Guild, and Miss Alice Murray, treasurer, acted as cashiers. A group of the younger members served tea, coffee and refreshments all day, headed by Miss Dorothy Carney.

Miss Mary Reardon, assisted by Miss Alice Jantzen of Brookline served as bundle girls for the day. On committees, as chairmen, were Mrs. Matthew Fox, novelty table; Mrs. William Walton, useful gift table; Miss Louise Fitzgerald, flowers; Miss Alice Dunn, household table; Mrs. David Johnson, one price table; Mrs. William H. Taylor, toys and wrappings; and Mrs. Frederick Crosby assisting Miss Alice Falvey with cake and candy. Mrs. William H. Taylor of South Boston is in charge of publicity.

SUN-SOAKED BLUES AND REDS WITH CLEAR WHITES FOR SOUTHERN WEAR

Glamorous Evening Toiletries

By Prunella Wood

THIS is the edge of the season when large cities go completely off their heads in the matter of providing pleasant, formal diversions by night, and even the most rural communities think up a series of this or that kind of fun which will bring the tall coats and top hats out of the moth balls and the retired life.

IN New York, wives and mothers and sweethearts are thinking about toilettes for the opera, which will open the Saturday before Christmas. They know full well that it will be even more brilliant an occasion than customary, for the display of handsome gowns, as such, seems to be a passe matter—the 1935 idea is to look as if every night were a gala worth a special appearance, which offers a big challenge to the dressmakers for a really important date.

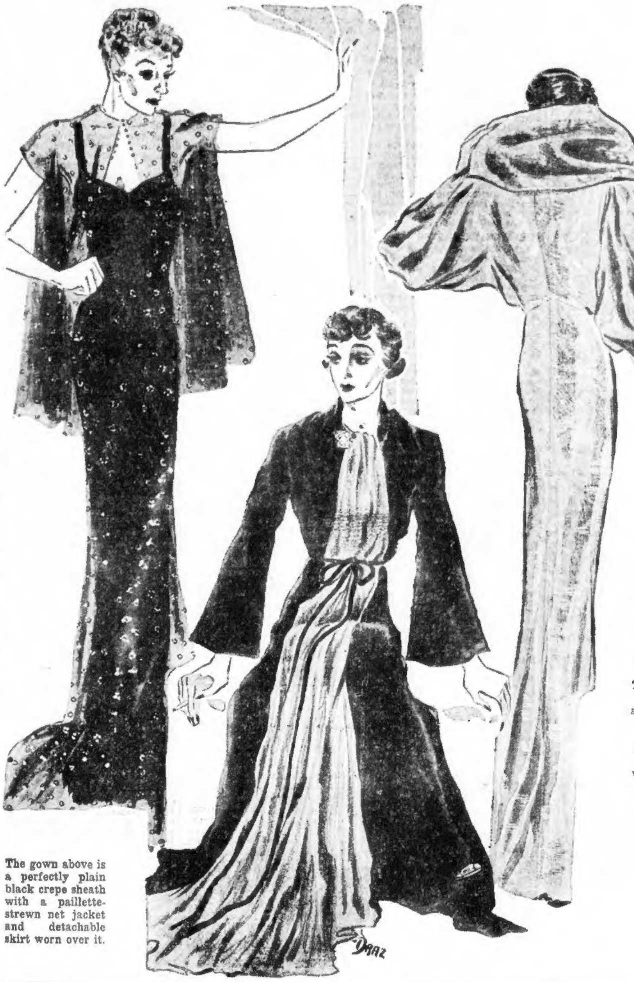
THE three models sketched here are all unusually distinctive, though no one could accuse them of being histrionic. That black net and crepe gown is one of the youngest all-black costumes shown this winter. The velvet gown, too, is almost picture-book naive in its simplicity. There is nothing particularly youthful about the wrap, however; it is a very sophisticated affair which will be as stunning in Palm Beach environs as it is in the foyer of the Metropolitan.



The gown above is a perfectly plain black crepe sheath with a paillette-strewn net jacket and detachable skirt worn over it.

Given in Marriage

By ADELE GARRISON

CHAPTER 208

THERE WAS something in Lee Chow's usually monotonous voice so tense, so fraught with some hidden meaning, that I put out my hand and gripped the back of a chair near me with the feeling that I needed actual physical support to keep me on my feet.

"But if Hugh asks you—go?" he had said, and the last word had been an explosive that it seemed almost as if a detonating cap were behind his voice.

He meant me to obey his suggestion. In fact, he was willing me to do it; and at the thought all my natural independence, the resentment of domination which is, perhaps, my strongest characteristic, or fault, asserted itself.

THE ULTIMATUM

The wily Chinese had overshot his mark. If he had said simply that he had changed his mind and wished to go to the beach, I might have accepted Hugh's invitation if, indeed, he decided to ask me, after Edith's rebuff. But the eagerness in Lee Chow's manner decided me. I would be no party to any scheme of his, no matter how much my piqued vanity clamored its sympathy with his proposal.

"I will not go to the beach tonight, under any circumstances."

"As you wish, of course," he said, bowing low. Then, to my infinite relief, he moved away from me, and my lively sense of terror began to abate.

I could not help a queer tingling feeling of expectancy. I knew that Hugh must be fiercely resentful of Dicky's action which, in masculine code, was a rather scurvy trick for one man to play upon another. Would he feed that resentment by repaying Dicky in kind, and asking me to go on the moonlight drive with him; or would he, as always, do the calm, judicial thing which seemed to him the best thing for me?

I never shall know the answer to that question, however. Avis Arlen did not even give Edith an opportunity to reply to Hugh's gallant proposal for a future drive in lieu of the one she had just declined. With a slithering, slinky movement of her slender figure, in its green and silver gown, she came up to him.

AVIS CAPTURES HUGH

"I hope that doesn't mean you're going to pass the rest of us up, just because Miss Fairfax cannot go with you," she said. "I've been just dying for a drive in this moonlight, but I can't bear to be rumpled so I didn't go with the crowd in the other car. Don't you think I might substitute for Miss Fairfax?"

There was only one answer, of course, to be made to such an entreaty, and Hugh made it.

"I shall be happy indeed," Hugh said, bowing from the waist, "if you will permit me to be your cavalier upon the drive. But you will need a wrap."

"Please come along and help me find one," Avis said, and putting out her hand in much the manner of a confiding child, she caught his, and drew him with her toward the house.

"Any more turtle doves yearning for twin coops?" Harry Underwood drawled.

"Are you by any chance trying to make a particularly bad pun?" Dicky demanded, and I guessed that he welcomed any diversion. "For if you are, you'll never leave this farm yard alive."

"No, I don't mean 'cou-pes'," Mr. Underwood retorted. "I know how to pronounce it, if you don't. Only a low-life like you would try to twist a really witty comment into a bad pun. But, as I was saying, how about the rest of us getting started in the big cars?"

They all seconded his suggestion with alacrity, and in another two minutes Lee Chow and I were left alone in the moonlit farm yard.

Martha Lee's Advice on Cake

By MARTHA LEE

It is none too soon to be thinking about fruit cake, getting the ingredients together and baking these delectable cakes, for they improve with age. The earlier made the better they will be by Christmas time, and then too, it is simpler to make up the fruit cake before the days get too rushed and busy. The making of fruit cake is no longer the involved job it was a few years ago, for fruits now come already packaged, cleaned and chopped; canned fruit juices may be used; nuts can be purchased shelled. We even have a very excellent ready-to-use fruit cake mix, which comes packed in a tin. All that is necessary to do is to add the liquid to the dry ingredients and bake in the tin, in which the mix comes. If you want to give this as a gift it is packed and ready to send.

Fruit cake is generally baked in a slow oven so that the mixture will not dry out before the cake is thoroughly baked. An improved way of baking is to pour the mixture into a casserole dish, cover and bake until thoroughly done, thus retaining all of the tenderness of the fruits. Brandy or wine may be used for part of the liquid in the fruit cake, or an even better way, we think, is to pour the brandy over the cake after it is baked, before putting away to ripen.

Here are some recipes for fruit cakes, ranging in price from a very inexpensive one, which uses only raisins, to a fancier kind using a variety of fruits and nuts.

INEXPENSIVE FRUIT CAKE

(Sent in by Mrs. Fineberg)

1 package raisins (1 pound)
1½ cups sugar
1½ cups water
1 cup (scant) shortening
4 eggs (beaten)
3 cups flour
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 teaspoons rum or brandy

Put raisins, sugar, water and shortening in a saucepan and boil for 10 minutes. Add the eggs to this mixture after it has cooled. Sift flour, nutmeg, cinnamon, baking soda, baking powder and add to rum or brandy. Walnuts and dates may be added in place of some of the raisins.

A FRUIT CAKE WITH HIDDEN FLAVORS

½ pound butter
1 cup light yellow sugar
1 teaspoon salt
4 eggs
⅓ cup molasses
2 teaspoons soda mixed with a little of the molasses
1¼ teaspoons strong pineapple flavoring
1 scant cup applesauce
½ teaspoon each cloves, cinnamon, mace and ginger
½ cup brandy
½ pound each currants, raisins, sultanas and mixed peel, all fresh
½ pound walnuts, broken in small pieces
⅛ pound blanched almonds, chopped
About 3½ cups flour

Mix the apple sauce and molasses and let stand until rest of cake is ready. Pour brandy over the prepared fruit and let stand also. Cream the butter and sugar thoroughly. Add the well-beaten egg, mix thoroughly. Add the soda dissolved in a little of the molasses. Then the apple sauce and molasses mixture and the pineapple flavoring, stir well. Now add the fruit and brandy mixture. Add the nuts. Combine the salt and spices with the flour and sift into the cake. Mix thoroughly. The oven should be heated gradually to 300 deg. before the cake is put in. Bake slowly until done (about 3 hours or less.)

and replace it with an apple, orange or lemon. Put a string of cranberries around the neck.

Question: Have you a recipe for English Mincemeat without meat? —Mrs. A. G., Dorchester.

Answer:

ENGLISH MINCEMEAT

5 pounds raisins, seeded
5 pounds suet
5 pounds apples
4 pounds citron
1½ pounds blanched almonds
5 pounds light brown sugar
5 pounds currants
½ teaspoon mace
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2½ cups brandy

Cook raisins, suet, apples, citron, currants and sugar slowly for one and one-half hours; then add almonds, spices and brandy.

Frilled Cotton Housefrock

By MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9113

Housewives who like their frocks to be daintily pretty as well as serviceable will appreciate the charm of the design illustrated today. They'll like the soft bodice effect, with frills to the shoulder and nicely moulded waistline—and they'll adore the perky puffed sleeves which make arms look so youthfully round and pretty. The slim skirt, with its frilled patch pockets, should come in for its share of "ohs and ahs," too. Make this frock of any delicately-sprigged cotton fabric—lawn, percale, broadcloth, gingham, muslin.

Pattern 9113 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3½ yards 36-inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

Club Sandwich Needs Fork

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me the proper way to eat a club sandwich? With the fingers, or with a knife and fork? L.

Eat the club sandwich with the knife and fork. It needs them! Cut off one mouthful of the sandwich and eat it before you cut off the next piece.

MAID OF HONOR

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me which is the greater honor, to be the maid of honor or the first bridesmaid? What are her duties at the ceremony? E.

It is a greater honor to be invited by the bride to be her maid of honor than to be one of her bridesmaids. The maid of honor is the "chief" attendant. The maid of honor holds the bride's bouquet during the ring part of the ceremony, and arranges the bride's train and veil as she turns to go down the aisle for the recessional.

Save Juice From Fruit

SAVE the juice from your fresh or canned fruits. You can use it for fruit drinks or for part of the liquid in your gelatine desserts.

IF CAKE becomes dried out, wrap in damp cloth and set in moderately warm oven until cloth is dry.

Flannel Shorts Acquire Side Splits

By Annice Brink

IF TO YOU King Winter seems like a chilly and uninteresting host, and you've found out how really little a holiday in Southern climes costs, then you probably rushed to the opening of cruise departments and shops all over town last week.

Openings are earlier this season, possibly for the convenience of those who migrate at the first wintry breath. For stay-at-homes or those whose plans are in the future, the cruise linens and sunny colors, the entrancing gadgets and accessories, bring a quick nostalgia for tropical places and sounds they've known, or hope some time to know . . .

LONG SHORTS

The jupe culotte, a trouser-skirt of vivid orange linen, is going to solve many bicycling problems. It's more comfortable and less conspicuous than shorts—and if you're planning to bicycle in Bermuda you'll find these new long shorts will make you wholly at ease anywhere in the Crown colony. It—or they, if you think of them as trousers—is buttoned down the back in such a way as to look exactly like a skirt. For bicycling, simply unbutton the back flaps and hitch both onto buttons on the sides. This accomplishes the dividing act.

The length is well below the knee.

Rumblings, last season, of the "going native" trend have erupted in one Boston cruise shop. Whereas the South Sea island pareos and sarongs originated by Heim in Paris cost as much as mother's wedding gown, today you can find wicked, brilliantly be-flowered little three-piece sets for something under ten dollars.

GOING NATIVE

They consist of cotton, printed in colors and designs wild enough to enchant any primitive, made into a loin-cloth (there is a brief pantie-short to be had if you can't quite go the loin-cloth) a sarong, or skimpy wrap-around skirt, and a separate bras arrangement that is not overly scant, since it follows a bolero line. There is an uplift front gathering on the bras.

Shorts, in general, are by no means longer—lest the description of the jupe culotte make you think so. One pair of gray flannel shorts follows dress fashion in that it has a split on the side of the leg! Which makes them shorter still.

Alpaca shorts, with more body than silk but much the same texture, are seen in a putty shade.

MEDITERRANEAN COLOR

Halters are more important than ever. And the halter plus shorts bathing suit is expected to lead, with plain swim suits, dressmaker suits, maillot, or skirtless suits, and rubber suits following in that order.

East Indian and peasant effects are going to be all over the lot . . . silks will look like linens, linen like silks . . . sun-soaked yellow-reds and purple blues of Mediterranean intensity will be of first importance, always with clear white accenting them . . . lastex crocheted sandal tops will be much easier on the toes than coarse linen or cotton string . . . a gold link bracelet with dangling chromium charms in the shape of sailboats, anchors and ships' wheels is nifty . . . and all this doesn't tell the tiniest portion of the cruise story! So there will be more later.

POSED BY DOLORES DEL RIO

By the Beauty Editor

IT'S REALLY A SERIOUS problem, this business of rushing home from the office, getting under the shower in preparation for an elegant evening, and then having your wave practically ruined and your make-up washed down the drain.

What, indeed, about that hour wasted at the hairdresser's, when you sat patiently under the dryer and had hot air blown into your ears and almost into your brain, to say nothing about that extra dollar you so grudgingly parted with for a very special facial that made you beautiful again!

This is the season of the year when we rarely think twice about the discomforts and expense of keeping beautiful as long as our goal is ultimately achieved — namely, being the sensation at holiday parties.

What to our mind is the cosmetic find of the season, has made its debut minus fanfare in a Boston department store. It is a new waterproof hood which sets atop the head, and magically protects hair, make-up and cosmetics while under the shower. It is light, transparent, and of course absolutely waterproof. It covers the entire head and face —down to the chin—so that you step out from the bath as fresh as when you stepped in. Not a curl is out of place and your make-up is just as it was when you left the beauty salon.

If you have been using a bathing cap for your under-shower dips, you know what a haphazard arrangement it always turns out to be. It is true, perhaps, that your hair is kept dry (in spots) but your wave has usually gone askew and your curls are everywhere but where the hairdresser intended.

If you are in a dither as to what to give Cousin Ted or Uncle James for Christmas, your problem should be solved. This waterproof hood is as excellent for men as for women, because it's the best safeguard against falling hair that I know of. No hair can survive daily hot and cold shocks under the shower. Many scalp specialists agree that daily shampoos are the contributing factors to baldness.

As this hood is priced under a dollar, it should certainly be included in your inexpensive Chirstmas gift list. You can feel assured that men will appreciate it as much as women.

To learn where this waterproof hood is sold, telephone the Beauty Editor, Liberty 4000. If you prefer writing for this information, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Beauty Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston.

Baking Soda as Deodorant

Question—Will dusting the arm pits with baking soda after the bath effect a cure for perspiration? Are deodorants quite safe to use? I. J., Boston.

Answer—Deodorants have been developed to a state of effectiveness. There is no danger in closing the pores, as millions of others elsewhere on the body will carry on. In mild cases of excessive perspiration, dusting the armpits with baking soda directly after the bath, will help. One thing to remember when treating moisture in the armpits is that soap and salt won't combine.

Helen and Walter Are Wedded and the Future Looms Up All Roseate Before Them

CHAPTER XVI

Carl Masker could never quite believe his good fortune. He had been a bookkeeper for Shmalhausen & Katz, wholesale grocers, when he met Agnes Riley at a meeting of the Poetry Society. Carl, in his leisure, wrote poetry after the manner of Longfellow and James Whitcomb Riley. His rhymes were simple and his sentiments homely, but poetry filled his esthetic needs and he found infinite solace in putting forth his romantic yearning in verse. He was honest and ambitious. By night he was an accounting student in his last year at New York University. He supported his widowed mother and little brother. He was earnest, plodding and religious.

He knew few people. George Coleman, practically his only friend, he had met at New York University. They had in common their accounting, their ambition, and a love of poetry. He had gone with George to the meeting of the Poetry Society where they had started a conversation with Agnes Riley and Bertha Crandall, her friend. George, who worked in the statistical department of a big store, took Bertha home and Carl asked if he could escort Agnes.

Agnes was the plainest of the Riley sisters. She was second from the eldest, and thirty-three when she met Carl and was a poorer and imperfect edition of the Rileys. She was shorter than all of them, inclined to be heavy below the hips and flat at the breast. Her skin was good but she hadn't the rich creamy coloring of the others.

A BEAUTIFUL NIGHT

She had the flat high Riley cheekbones and the wide-set eyes. The other girls had light eyes and dark coloring—a most effective combination—while Agnes had dark eyes and swarthy coloring. She was always beautifully groomed and had a low, carefully modulated voice.

"What a beautiful night," Agnes sighed. "Anything might happen on a night like this."

"On such a night stood Dido.
With a willow in her hand
Upon the wild sea banks and waft her love
To come again to Carthage."

quoted Carl, who remembered his Shakespeare from high school.

"On such a night did young Lorenzo swear he loved her well Stealing her soul with many vows of faith and ne'er a true one."

Agnes quoted in turn. They squeezed each other's arm in intellectual ecstasy.

But when Agnes led him to the imposing apartment on Park avenue, Carl Masker became tongue-tied with awe and respect. He hadn't realized until now that he was actually escorting Agnes Riley—one of the beauty parlor Rileys—to her home.

She invited him to call on her and then, while he hesitated because of her wealth and position, she encouragingly called him up. He liked her. She filled him with new and definite ambitions. She held in her hand the key to infinite possibilities. Two months later they were married.

STRAIN SHOWS ON HER

He was an excellent bookkeeper with a superlative amount of that quality attributed to genius—the ability to take infinite pains, which is in truth the quality that makes good bookkeepers. He was into the bargain a likeable, quiet, conscientious young Hungarian. Even the Riley sisters begrudgingly admitted his good points.

But to keep buoyant—to keep youthful—was a harder job than Agnes had supposed it to be. The strain began to show on her. It became almost more than she could bear . . .

A few days after their discussion they met at 10 o'clock at the Hall of Records building in Brooklyn. Helen had taken Belle along as witness. She had never met Walter, and she was nervous. Walter was a few minutes late. They waited silently. When he finally dashed up, he was too excited to kiss Helen.

She introduced her sister. Belle looked so young that Walter had doubts about her acceptability as a witness. Well, it was too late now to worry about that. He steered the two girls across the little park into the marriage license bureau. Walter was nervous and ill at ease.

They were married. It all took no more than half an hour. Walter kissed Helen and then awkwardly kissed Belle. They were chilled and oppressed in the presence of this matter-of-factness.

"WELL, WE'RE MARRIED"

"Let's get out of here, Mrs. Riley," Walter said jocularly, but his tone was flat. "We'll have a swell wedding breakfast. The St. Clair is near here and this afternoon I'll buy you a regular diamond wedding ring. I picked this gold band up at Fourteenth Street."

"I like it," Helen averred.

He started the car. The three sat squeezed in the front seat.

"Well, we're married, Helen. Happy, darling?"

"Very." Helen smiled bravely. There was a lump in her throat. She had an absurd desire to weep.

Belle declaimed in a hollow voice as if she had been rehearsing it in her mind, "I congratulate you both. May you have a long and beautiful life together."

"Thank you, dearest." Helen kissed her sister.

"Thank you, little sister. As soon as I find a place to park I'll kiss you too."

In the restaurant, he excused himself as soon as they found a table. The two girls were alone for a second.

"Do you like him, Belle?" Helen asked anxiously.

"He's wonderful," Belle replied fervently.

Helen smiled happily, drew a deep breath. "I want him to be glad he married me."

"He will all right! I only hope he makes you glad!" Belle declared bluntly.

There was no time for further confidences. He was back with two enormous corsages of orchids.

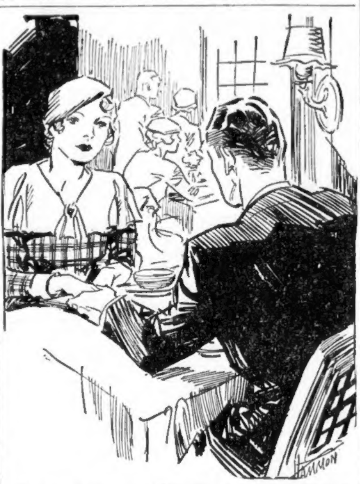
"FOR ALWAYS AND ALWAYS"

"Oh, Walter, thank you. How thoughtful you are!" Helen pinned the flowers on her dress. "Now I really feel like a bride," she laughed.

It would undoubtedly have been a difficult lunch but for the orchids. They talked valiantly about flowers all through it.

"What do we do now?" Helen asked.

"I'll tell you what. First we'll go and get rooms at the hotel. We're going to have a suite at the Plaza. We'll get the best small suite in the place and then we'll go shopping. I want to get you a diamond wedding ring and maybe we'll get engaged and I'll buy you an engagement ring."



"We'll have dinner at the Plaza, too. I've always wanted to eat there."

"Oh, but I really do like the gold wedding band, Walt."

"You can wear that every day. The other's for Sunday." He grinned. He pressed her arm. "Funny, I 'm beginning to feel better. More like our selves. That ceremony was pretty ghastly, wasn't it?"

She shuddered. "Am I really your wife, Walter?"

"For always and always," he said happily.

"Always and always," she echoed fervently.

"We'll have dinner at the Plaza, too. I've always wanted to eat there."

A SECOND HOME

"You'll buy yourself loads of clothes. Good you thought to bring a bag or else we couldn't get into the hotel."

"Couldn't we just show them the license?"

Walter grinned. "I never thought of that. We've got a license! No more necking in the old car."

"I love that car," Helen laughed. "It's been a second home for us. I shall always have a tender regard for that car."

They were still laughing as they drove up to the Plaza; then decorously Helen followed her husband into the lobby. She pulled off her glove and held her ringed hand on her cheek so the clerk would see they were really married.

As soon as they were alone in the two rooms, childishly they opened drawers and peered into closets. It was the first time Helen had ever been in a Fifth Avenue hotel, much less upstairs in a suite. She held her breath at the luxury—the draperies, soft rugs, the French chairs.

Walter was exploring on his own. He turned on the water in the shower and in the basin while Helen tried out the pens on the desk. Then he wandered into the bedroom and bounced on the bed.

"Swell bed," he observed sagely.

"Oh, Walter," she blushed.

He crushed her to him with a cry. "My blushing bride," he exulted. "My own sweet blushing bride."

BLOW AT PRESS SEEN IN LABOR BOARD RULING

By Universal Service

Washington, Dec. 4—The national labor relations board yesterday ordered reinstatement of Dean S. Jennings, a reporter, by the San Francisco Call-Bulletin, which Jennings alleged forced his resignation last May because of Newspaper Guild activities.

Commenting on the board's action, Howard Davis, president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, said last night:

"The decision of the national labor relations board today in the San Francisco Call-Bulletin case is a threat to a free press in the United States.

RULED MEANINGLESS

"It nullifies the freedom of the press reservation contained in the daily newspaper code. Article 7 of the code for the daily newspaper publishing business was written to preserve the constitutional guarantee of a free press.

"This article provides that no modification of the code as it affects any publisher shall be binding unless he consents to it.

"Without such a reservation in the code publishers felt that the press of the country might be subject to governmental control.

"This article was approved by the President on February 24, 1934, 'without modification, condition or qualification.'

"Today the National Labor Relations Board ruled that this provision is meaningless, stating that if the President should modify the code, such modification would be binding on the publishers signatory to the code despite their non-consent to the modification.

NULLIFIES FREEDOM

"If this decision is accepted by publishers who have signed the code, it nullifies the freedom of the press reservation in the daily newspaper code.

"The code provides a complete method for adjudication of controversies arising thereunder. The publisher of the San Francisco Call-Bulletin has been ready and willing to submit to that procedure. He declined to assent to other jurisdiction and in so doing maintained that he was within his rights under Article 7 of the code."

Schultz May Bare Police 'Payroll'

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 4—Crackling conflict between lawyers marked the attempt of Dutch Schultz, indicted racketeer, to obtain freedom on $75,000 bail pending trial for income tax fraud.

Meanwhile the Federal court hummed with reports the policy potentate plans to use his freedom preparing a payroll of police and political figures to whom he made "contributions" for good will.

POLICE RESCUE 2 AGED MEN

Two aged men were rescued by police early today, when sparks ignited a chimney on the roof of a three-story dwelling in Columbia road, Dorchester.

Myer Newpol, 85, and Louis Cohen, 78, who were asleep on the third floor, were partially overcome by smoke. Patrolmen Joseph Tuson, and John Dunn, who were passing by in the radio prowl car, rescued the men. Both officers suffered from smoke inhalation.

Other persons in the house including several small children were driven to the street in their night clothing. Damage to the building was slight.

CAPE COD CANAL 'BAIT' SET HIGH

In an effort to entice the three ships that go around Cape Cod to every one that goes through the canal to use the inland waterway, a total of $28,000,000 must be expended.

A group of Chamber of Commerce officials, industrialists, maritime and engineering experts and congressmen, went on a tour of inspection of the new work nearly completed on the huge ditch, and came to that conclusion.

The $5,718,000 originally allotted has been used for building the two tall vehicular bridges, 135 feet above high water, and the construction of the State pier at the Buzzards Bay end, except for about $700,000 left over.

This Is Life

ROBERT E. ROGERS

The other day while doing some reading in preparation for a talk on Noel Coward, which I gave on Sunday last as a part of the Drama League series in the Public Library Sunday afternoon lectures, I ran across a play of Coward's which I had never heard before and which I subsequently found had never been produced although it was comparatively recent. It was called Post Mortem and is to be found in the collected volume Play Parade (Doubleday Doran) published last year.

Robert E. Rogers

It has never been produced for several reasons. In the first place it is one of those ingenious and difficult kind of pieces full of instantaneous scene changes back and forth that demand revolving stages, or elevator stages or something equally inventive.

In the second place, it is an extraordinarily bitter and disillusioned satire about the aftermath of the Great War.

And in the third place it puts a pretty strong imaginative strain on the imagination of the average auditor, perhaps beyond his capacity to bear and enjoy. At least, Noel Coward seems to think so.

It opens in a dugout in France in the year 1916. There are four young officers; a fifth, their pal, has just been killed. Two of the living talk it over. One, Terry, is bitter. He believes there can be nothing good in the war, that this death and waste cannot be made good. The other, John, does not agree. He believes that the generation that survies will come to look back on the war as a great creative spiritual experience, that the survivors will be better men for having undergone it, that those whom the unlucky dead leave behind will remember them with reverence and idealism. Terry disagrees with every item on the list. John insists that the dying must have one moment of vision in which they will see the truth.

17 Years Later

Five minutes later John has been mortally wounded. In his last moments he assures Terry he is going to know the truth

POST MORTEM

The body of the play is John's visit back home in the year 1930, seventeen years later. Only his mother he finds strong, sweet and sane, as always. He finds his fiancee married to wealth, with no love left, surrounded by a group of post-war young rotters, who don't know what it is all about. Incidentally everyone takes John's appearance in trench uniform, mud, and dirt, as perfectly a matter of course. John's fiancee's husband asks him casually, "Weren't you killed in 1916?" and he replies as casually, "No, in 1917."

He gives up his fiancee as a bad job, a victim of post-war unmoral hysteria, and goes on to Terry whom he finds about to kill himself because he is about to be imprisoned for having written a seditious and treasonable book, the truth about the war. After hearing his story, John encourages him in suicide. Then he attends a meeting of the "best influences" in society, who are arranging a demonstration to burn Terry's book—a great newspaper publisher (obviouosly Northcliff), a bishop, and a blood-thirsty society woman. He curses them out but they are deaf to anything but praise and agreement and their own righteousness.

Then he finds his old companions in arms (Terry is somehow alive again) and they are all smug and prosperous and business-like. There is no trace of idealism in them.

Written in Anger

Then for a quick flash at the end you see John dying, his three brother officers leaning in agony over him. As he dies he whispers to Terry, "You were right, after all. That's the way it's going to be."

Noel Coward acknowledges that the play was written in anger and emotion, not very long after he had written "Cavalcade."

I should like to see it produced. It agrees so exactly with what so many people have been thinking during recent years about the futility of our post-war period and how little good in any creative sense the war did any individual or society. And it exhibits Noel Coward as distinctly a stronger person than the amusing, flippant, improper story-teller of "Private Lives" and "Design for Living." And since we expect to see two brand new pieces by this prolific young Englishman within the present month, right here in Boston, there is an added interest in knowing about "Post Mortem."

O.K. HERE Is Retort On SCHOOLS

FIRST LADY'S STAND HIT

CAMPBELL TELLS HOW YOUTH IS DEFENDED

When Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said that a survey showed "some appalling situations amongst our young people" in the high schools she, of course, didn't mean the fair city of Boston.

This was the answer made today by Superintendent of Boston public schools, Patrick Campbell.

Boston's high school youth, he said, was as exemplary as could be desired and that the morals of growing young Boston were beyond either repreach or criticism.

Commenting specifically on the statement made by the President's wife, Superintendent Campbell said:

"I don't know what Mrs. Roosevelt meant by her statement. It is unsafe to comment on a statement that is an indefinite as that but if we were to take the exact words literally, it does not apply to the conditions prevaling among the boys and girls in the public schools of Boston. Nor could it.

"There is no evidence that conditions in our high schools on moral grounds are anything but very satisfactory and have always been so here in Boston.

"We don't get a serious difficulty more than once or twice a year that requires unusual action."

Superintendent Campbell pointed out that it is part of school discipline to have grils and boys refrain from smoking and drinking.

They are taught the ill affects of them, he continued, and argued to maintain abstinence.

BRIDE, 20, SAYS SHE WED TO EVADE JAIL

Declaring that she most certainly would not have married William T. Nicholson, 74, of Providence, if he hadn't threatened to send her to Sherborn reformatory, Mrs. Hazel Estella Nicholson, 20, of Princeton street, East Boston, today in Suffolk Probate Court sought an annulment of her marriage.

After a short hearing before Judge William M. Prest, the case was continued until Dec. 20.

Letters allegedly written by Nicholson to various people were introduced by Attorney Jacob Sone at the recent hearing.

Under questioning by Judge Prest, Mrs. Nicholson declared that the charges brought against her and her girlhood swetheart, whom she intends to marry if the annulment is granted, were "framed" by her sister-in-law.

High Speed Love Trouble! Mady Meets It in Films

FALLING IN LOVE ON THE SCREEN IS SO DIFFICULT!

'HARD TO DEPICT LONG WOOING IN MINUTES'

By International News Service

Hollywood, Dec. 4—Love's hard to sell.

"Love is one of the most desired things in the world, but is the hardest thing in the world to sell," she said here.

By "selling" love, Miss Christians explained she meant the ability to portray love faithfully on the screen.

Condensation, she said, makes the task "delicate and difficult."

"Love," she declared, "is something that comes over people gradually—it takes days, weeks, maybe months. But on the screen you have to condense all this into a few minutes.

"All audiences don't believe in love at first sight—you can't give them anything as crude as that. Hence the problem is, how fast can you fall in love, cinematically speaking, and still 'sell' it to your audience as the real thing?"

In 15 Minutes

The quickest piece of "falling in love" that she ever did and still make it convincing was, she said, in "The Waltz Dream." It took 15 minutes of actual "playing time," but was broken into scenes interspersed among others so as to give a time lapse in all of about two weeks.

In the picture she now is making, Miss Christians has a love affair with Charles Bickford. Time lapses of several months are indicated by scenes cut into the actual love moments. There will be 10 minutes of actual love scenes between the two, intercut with other episodes.

"The first scenes," she said, "just hint at a possibility of the two people falling in love, then, after episodes showing a lapse of time, there is a short scene showing them more attracted to each other, then some more time lapse episodes, and, finally, the actual proposal and the big love moment.

"This love episode won't take more than 12 minutes, but having been built up to, with former scenes showing in quick flashes the progressive stages of it; we hope to be able to 'sell' it convincingly."

Lawrence Police to Practice Weekly

Lawrence, Dec. 4—A recent declaration by an organization interested in police marksmanship that in some Massachusetts cities officers had never fired a gun in their lives, will not be true here.

Every member of the police department must fire at least five shots a week, in accordance with a new regulation, issued by Public Safety Commissioner Thomas F. Gavin.

Hiker Killed

Springfield, Dec. 4—Alexander Andulsewicz, 46, of 634 Main street, is dead today after being struck while hitch-hiking along the Southwest cutoff to the veteran's CCC camp at Douglas. He had been home for Thanksgiving. According to police, the car which hit him was driven by Ernest Kinder of Webster.

SLIP ENDS LIFE

Malden Man Killed Underneath Auto

Nelson Ells, 25, of Carlson street, Everett, was found dead under his car which had slipped off jacks.

Peter Gallis of Canton street, Malden, a fellow employe at the service station on Medford street, Malden, where the accident happened, discovered him. He called help and the car was then jacked up and the body removed. Ells was pronounced dead at Malden Hospital.

U. S. Girl Totes Gun To Paris Club---Jailed

BATTLE OUTSIDE CABARET ENDS IN JAIL FOR HER

By International News Service

Paris, Dec. 4—Alternately laughing and crying hysterically, Mrs. Marguerite Chadwick, 26-year-old brunette of St. Louis, was held in the Champs Elysees police station today, charged with possessing a concealed weapon.

Wearing a low-necked purple evening gown, a fur neckpiece and silver slippers Mrs. Chadwick spent most of the night defeating her case with police.

Between 1 and 2 a. m. she appeared outside the chief night club in the fashionable Hotel George V and asked two policemen to help her hunt for a lost jade earring.

While the search was on in the street, Alexe [illegible], 27, Belgian orchestra leader, said by police to be a friend of Mrs. Chadwick, left the night club.

An argument started and, according to the police, she drew a [illegible] Austrian pistol and hit the maestro over the head. When she pointed the weapon at him, one of the policemen pulled his own pistol.

In the excitement, a shot was fired and Maurice Giegas, 34, a musician in the night club, was wounded in the shoulder. Examination of the bullet said it came from the policeman's pistol.

Mrs. Chadwick and the officer were both lodged in jail, but the latter was freed.

Mrs. Chadwick came to Paris in September, 1933. For the past months she has been living in a fashionable hotel in the Champs Elysees quarter.

Mrs. Chadwick was born in St. Louis. Her husband died in that city six years ago.

Police said she told them she carried the pistol because she was afraid of a porter in her hotel.

Well, this year you are in luck. No ned to fret and worry about the suitable gift. It's been selected for you. This is National Hamburger Week and, like Wimpy, everybody is saying it to everybody else with hamburgers. Give hamburgers now and be right!

Or perhaps you are not troubled about gifts. Maybe your teeth are worrying you, or thinning hair, or a short memory, or things that your best friends talk about to everybody but you. Get abreast of the times. Eat hamburger during National Hamburger Week and watch your [illegible] disappear.

Of course, if you happen to be one of those who can ever make the pay check stretch for beyond pay day you eat hamburger every blessed week of the year.

In that case, write to your congressman and ask him to have the President proclaim a national Filet Mignon Week.

O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK

DAY BY DAY

New York, Dec. 4—There are many theories as to the ultimate fate of that strange and caustic writing genius, Ambrose Bierce. Some believe he is living. But the majority do not. One thing is certain: the last seen of him was in old Mexico. This is the latest story going the rounds.

O. O. McIntyre

The professional soldier of fortune, Tex O'Reilly, was fighting in Mexico when Bierce, scouting about for adventure himself, left a note for him at a little hotel that he would see him that evening. O'Reilly happened to be busy and in turn left a note he would see Bierce next evening.

But Bierce never kept the engagement. Inquiry developed he had suddenly departed. Some weeks later O'Reilly on a march heard an American had been killed near and encamped to investigate. The description fitted Bierce. The body was exhumed and identification papers discovered.

O'Reilly is reputed to have stated at a recent gathering in New York he could go directly to the grave. Bierce, it was stated, had fallen in with bandits in a drinking bout. They became suspicious, lured him to a lonely spot and pistoled him with his own six-shooter.

No cul de sac in Manhattan is so old-worldly as Patchin Place on West 10th street in the Village. The tiny blind alley has an iron-gated entrance, three-foot-wide sidewalks flanked by meow brick buildings with gas-lit halls. There is a row of twisting wind-grieved trees, friendly window cats, door scrapers—a thin and unreal phantom of long ago in surrounding realty.

Taboo on Shoes

Hal Phyfe, photographer with a C. D. Gibson man profile and great grandson of Duncan Phyfe, is one of the stalwarts of the celebrity cocktail hour, the target of many admiring feminine glances. He has not worn shoes since 14. Instead he wears Indian moccasins. One advantage has been discovered. He has never visited a chiropodist.

Stage folk are generous patrons of the high-priced shoe-makers. Even in adversity the actor "favors his feet." George M. Cohan's shoe bill runs into more than a thousand a year. He goes in for every variety of high shoe, even those with buttons. Kyrle Bellew, when flush, used to go to London to be especially shod. John Drew left more than 300 pairs of slightly worn shoes and Ziegfeld was as extravagantly shod. Al Jolson, too, is a heavy purchaser. So is Damon Runyon, the writer. Dancers are notably conspicuous in taking pride in foot adornment.

For relaxation, James Montgomery Flagg makes charcoal studies of friends. He sits beside them, gets them talking, and before they know it, voila, the likeness! This chiaroscuro is a branch of his art he refuses to commercialize. Huge offers have not moved him. If he likes a person, it's his way of showing it. Handsome Jim will also drop pressing work to imprison the beauty of a snow storm on canvas. If he awakens in the night to find it snowing he will leap to his easel.

Pretty Music

A pioneer in magazine illustration and crony of Flagg's is the blue-collared, dependable Arthur William Brown. His drawings have graced magazine for 20 years. He was likely the only magazine artist to become a millionaire during boom days. But he did not change his manner of living. And when he lost it in 24 hours, it meant so little emotionally he did not lose a night's sleep.

In one of the beer stubes of Yorktown during the excitement of a football game via the radio recently there came timidly through the door a dear little jet bonneted and deaf grandmother of the old German [illegible]. She nodded, beamed and groped for the usual nickel. Five by the clock and just right for the afternoon's afternoon! Whispered the barkeep to the excited gridiron fans: "She come at fi' clock all through prohibition. I never charge her more fi' cents." While the radio braved she sat sipping. At the game's tense moment she arose, smoothed her dress, bowed and smirked on one and all. But at the threshold, she turned and in that metallic low pitch of the aurally touched said: "Pretty music, wasn't it?"

Phone in News Tips to the Boston American and Advertiser --- Win $50 Weekly in Prizes

Do you want to make some money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American and the Sunday Advertiser are presenting the opportunity. Every week a total of $50 in prizes will be given for news tips telephoned in to the News Tip Editor at Liberty 4000. And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an important meeting is scheduled for a certain date, that an accident has happened, that there is going to be a business merger, that a celebrity is coming to town? That's a news tip. There will be given $25 weekly for the best first exclusive news tip received, $10 for the next best, $5 for the next best and $1 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. This offer is now in effect. Remember that SPEED is the watchword. First to the telephone wins the award. News tips mean money.

ROBERT DONAT IS GIVEN LEAD IN NEW 'PETER IBBETSON' FILM

Paramount to Remake Famous Ibsen's Play; Paul Lukas Gets New M-G-M Contract

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service)

Los Angeles, Dec. 3—"Peter Ibbetson again!" After all these years Paramount is going to remake it with Robert Donat playing Ibbetson and Vincent Lawrence adapting Ibsen's famous play. I remember when John Barrymore appeared in the stage play. He was so marvelous the girls used to wait outside the theater just to see him. What a disillusionment when he walked out of the stage door wearing an old slouch hat, unpressed suit sans the red wig.

Louella O. Parsons

The silent movie made by Paramount was lacking in a certain ethereal quality which Barrymore, strangely enough, gave it. I believe Robert Donat is a splendid choice, for he has that quality that made Barrymore so perfect and he should be excellent as Peter Ibbetson.

I have always said one of these days somebody would discover what a really swell actor Paul Lukas is and give him a better story. I hope it will be Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer who signed him on a long term contract. It's up to them now to do with Lukas what so many of the companies have failed to do and that is, give him a picture that has a decent acting part. One of the most uninteresting pictures I have ever seen is "The Fountain" and yet Paul Lukas managed to keep it from being a total loss. His first for M-G-M is "Murder in the Opera House," written by Queena Mario of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and we'll be waiting to see what happens.

Mrs. McLaughlin

Irene Castle McLaughlin writes that she has the perfect Dolores for "The Great Ziegfeld." She, like many others, probably feels Toby Wing is not the right type for the tall, statuesque beauty who walked through the "Follies." Mrs. McLaughlin says she is sending me photographs of Loueen Buetler who is so like the Dolores chosen by Ziegfeld. "Dolores is a great personal friend of mine and I assure you that this girl's profile, particularly, is exactly like hers. She dances beautifully, has a lovely speaking voice, is well educated and has great refinement of manner," writes Mrs. McLaughlin.

Viola Mitchell in Symphony Concert

Of interest and importance in the musical world is the forthcoming appearance on next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening in Symphony Hall of the young American violinist, Viola Mitchell, who will make her formal debut in this country and play for the first time the new concerto by Malipiero.

Viola Mitchell

Pierre Monteux, former conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, heard Miss Mitchell's performance of the Malipiero concerto in Amsterdam and sent her to audition for Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, who engaged her to introduce this much-discussed work in Boston, and at the Boston orchestra's concert in New York early in January.

Miss Mitchell is an American girl who has studied in Europe with Sevcik, Auer and Ysaye, through whose prestige she made her professional debut with the Symphony Orchestra in Brussels at the age of 16, under the personal patronage of the Queen of the Belgians. She has played on concert stages in England, France, Holland and Italy, and played the Malipiero concerto with the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge festivals. She will be Mrs. Coolidge's guest at a reception here and also in Washington later in the season when she plays with Hans Kindler and the National Symphony Orchestra. She will also appear with the Chicago Symphony, the Minneapolis Orchestra and the Detroit Symphony.

Where can you find the leading Hollywood stars?

If you are an ardent "About Faces" follower you know that, each day, the Boston Evening American parades before you the favorite cinema stars as they appear at leading New England theaters.

Today, for example, the "About Faces" cartoon takes you to the very popular palace of entertainment, the RKO Keith Boston theater, where the screen offers "The Captain Hates the Sea" starring an array of today's actors and actresses. The stage show presents notable celebrities, in person. Ranny Weeks and the Greater Boston Orchestra still offer pleasing melodies.

Beneath each drawing you will find a block of squares. These squares equal the number of letters in the names of the celebrities. Use the letter "I" as a clue and your solutions should be forthcoming. Mail your entire week's solutions to The About Faces Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass.

Prizes totalling $25 in weekly cash awards will be given by the Boston Evening American to those who are successful in completing each "About Faces" series.

Enter this fascinating Hollywood game, NOW!

Joe Reichman to Statler

A representative gathering of prominent Bostonians will be guests at the Salle Moderne at the Hotel Statler Thursday evening to welcome to Boston Joe Reichman. Reichman and his orchestra come direct from the Hotel New Yorker in New York.

Joe Reichman

Reichman and his band are radio favorites from coast to coast and have won favor with dancers everywhere. The novel piano decorations by the conductor with an illuminated panel above the keyboard reflecting Reichman's pianistics are a unique feature of this popular band.

Swedish Play

Opening Thursday night at Tremont Temple is the famous romantic Swedish national play, "Varmlanningarna," for almost a century a favorite folk drama of the Scandinavian people.

The film is entirely in Swedish, with an especially composed musical score, and remarkable photography of the countryside and festivals of the nation. Two short Swedish subjects and the latest Swedish news reel complete the program, which will be presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with matinee performances at 2 30 and evening performances at 8 30.

Dave Wilson, 'American's Horse Author, Leaves On Winter Pilgrimage

M. I. T.'s Fast Movies Open New Research In Sport Operation

By AUSTEN LAKE

Austen Lake

This occasions much envy on the part of the type-pokers of this department, who have to stay behind to take the kiss of New England blizzards and wear prickly underwear with cockle burrs woven in. Because Mr. Wilson has never seen snow and ice and is always too busy accumulating rich coats of tropical tan with the pleasure people who inhabit the garden jungles and palmetto flats of Florida at this season.

Just now Mr. Wilson is sniffing the ammonia fragrance of the stables down in Charles Town, W. Va., which is the jumping-off place for the horse folk, where swipes, moochers, stooges and grifters go to chisel a little coin toward their Florida expenses.

Later he will work down to Hialeah, which is a tourist garden spot on the edge of primeval swamps

MR. WILSON IS NEVER CONCERNED with the hunting and fishing aspects of Florida's crowded waters and pine forests. He is strictly a horse track prowler, who has poked around dirt ovals and racing sheds since he was 12.

And if you chance to mention something about hockey or baseball, Mr. Wilson will say vague words with a faraway look in his eye about a good two-horse parlay he knows, but of which he can do nothing about on account of, at the moment, he is financially broke.

He is on easy terms with the low characters of the horse business, called Sleepy and Bottleneck, as well as Mr. Which and Mr. Those, the rich sportsmen and distinguished pillars of the American turf, who have contributed to his learning.

A Baltimore-bred youth with a farm boy manner and a disrespect for grammatical niceties, he is a full brother in the horse lodge and seems to have known everybody intimately all his life.

The physical strain of covering the horse tracks is not negligible, because Mr. Wilson will be up at 4:30 a. m., ticking off the shadowy forms of flying nags. His research findings, which he furnishes his readers at 2c a copy, are authentic, but he says frankly that, though you can beat a race, you cannot beat the races, and he is invariably as busted as the rest.

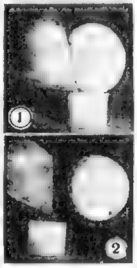
AT THE INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY, in the graduate laboratory of electrical engineering, they are studying the behavior of rapidly moving bodies, like golf balls when tagged on the nerve center of a brassie, or like baseball's hit on the sweet spot of ball bat.



They take movies of these things at the rate of 4200 pictures to the second and still life photos as fast as one seventy-five thousandth of a second.

Inserted you will note photos of the action of a golf ball, with (1) the full force of the club head meeting the ball, which is bulged into an egg shape, and (2) the ball flying off the face a split second later.

It serves to discredit the familiar golfing theory that the follow through is the most important feature of the golfing swing, since the photos prove that ball and club contact only within a half-inch space.

I INTEND TO ASK Dean Harry Lobdell's aid at M. I. T. in having some of these ultra-fast movies taken of various baseball operations next spring when the Red Sox and Braves return from Southern training.

Particularly I want to get a series of speed pictures of the weird knuckle ball, which floats through the air without any spin and comes up to the plate rolling and ducking like a drunken thing.

Some time ago I visited a certain college professor of physics who gave me the mathematical furmula for a curve ball, but refused to credit the antics of the knuckler, because he said a baseball had to spin to alter its course. The ducks and dodges of the knuckle ball, as I described it, he said was an optical illusion.

Yet in the spring seasons I have warmed up with various Braves pitchers and tried to handle this soft, teasing pitch, once reaching for it shoulder high and having it dip so suddenly that it him me on the knee cap.

SWIFT AND EAGER was the response to a recent item in this column about Cliff Battles, the Redskins' ghostly ball carrier, who I said could be had for commercial purposes in this city during the off season. He is going to work for Jordan Marsh . . . The baseball movie which the American League has been preparing all last season, entailing 100,000 feet of film before it passed through the cutting room, will have its premiere at the interleague meeting in New York December 11. The movie, which was made for propaganda purposes to foster new boy interest in the game, is available for school and club showings, together with Umpire George Moriarty, who furnishes the comment as the film unwinds. The only charge is a small fee for expense of the lecturer and his equipment.

GRAYSON TOPS HEARST 'ALL' GRID TEAM

By Garry Schumacher
International News Service Sports Writer

New York, Dec. 4—Another football season is ready to be filed away into the record book—and as its final chapter the Boston Evening American submits today the annual Hearst newspapers concensus All-America team, of the year

It isn't a simple task to select the best eleven or even the best hundred players from among the thousands who represented more than eight hundred colleges on the gridiron during the autumn campaign.

For one man it is a virtual impossibility; he would be certain to overlook numerous deserving players, or else be overimpressed by ballyhoo campaigns

Happily, the Hearst consensus system for the team selection overcomes these difficulties. More than 200 football experts, writers, editors, coaches and officials participated in the Hearst newspaper poll, and among them they personally saw in action every player of prominence in the nation.

GRAYSON POLLS HIGHEST

Of all the players listed Bobby Grayson polled the highest vote. He received a first team listing from 164 of the 207 observers who filed ballots. "Dixie" Howell of Alabama, Larsen and Lund of Minnesota and Robinson of Notre Dame were other strong favorites.

For the other positions the voting was very close. Monohan, the Ohio State guard; Don Hutson the Alabama end, and Berwanger and Weinstock among the backs missed first team recognition by only a narrow margin

More than three hundred candidates for the team were nominated by the various selectors. Naturally many of those received only a few votes, though it is true too, that several of those on the honorable mention list were only a few votes behind those players picked for the third team

3 MEMBERS OF 1933 TEAM

Incidentally, none of the players so honored received fewer than 20 votes and none was selected who did not receive a recommendation from a coach, official or writer outside his own district.

It is interesting to recall that three of the nominees were members of last year's Hearst consensus team

'Pug' Lund, the Minnesota backfield "ace" was a first team nomination last year, his wingman teammates, Swede Larsen was on the second team, and Duane Purvis of Purdue, a third team member last year year, has qualified this time for the second squad

Only one absentee is noted "Cotton" Warburton of Southern California, the first team quarterback last year failed to catch the selector's eye this year. Handicapped by a weak supporting cast, the diminutive Warburton flashed with his 1933 brilliance only in spots

Concerning the backfield alignment a word of explanation is necessary, all the first team backs with the exception of Howell were picked for two or more positions.

Grayson, for instance, was named as a quarterback, halfback and fullback. Lund collected votes as a halfback and fullback, and Borries as a halfback and quarterback.

'Ace' Bailey Returns, Enters Hospital

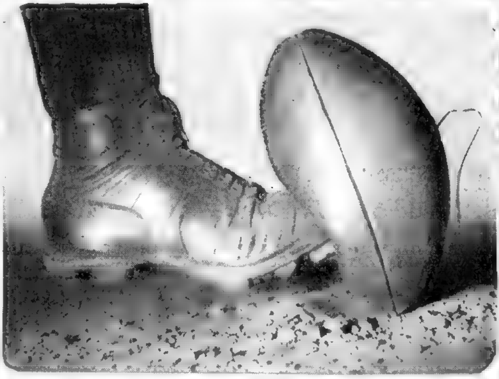
Ace Bailey, the principal actor in a near hockey tragedy last winter, arrived in town today with the Toronto Maple Leafs and immediately went to the City Hospital for observation.

While hospital officials refused to make any comment, and Dr. Donald Munro, who performed the operation which saved Bailey's life could not be reached, it was learned that the step was a routine one. The Ace merely sought medical advice on the progress he was making in his recovery from his skull fracture sustained on the Garden ice last year.

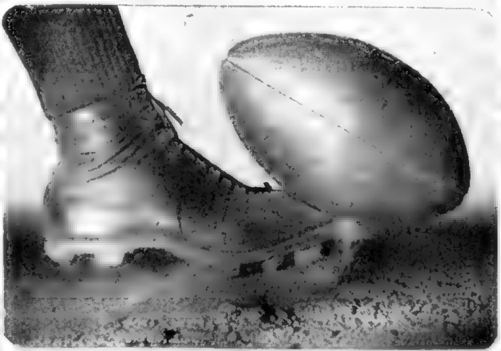
"Bailey is in good shape," Connie Smythe, leader of the Leafs, said. "He is merely going for observation to see whether he can return to serious work once more."

Ace is through with hockey in a competitive way but during the winter he coached amateur teams in Toronto.

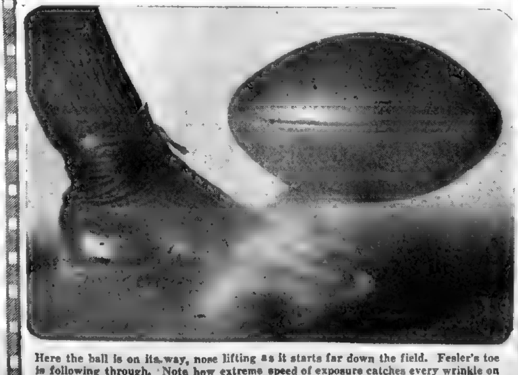
Where the Foot in Football Came From



Wes Fesler's good right toe sinks more than halfway through a fully inflated football, as Professor Harold E. Edgerton of M. I. T. photographs the action with a 100,000th of a second exposure. The football was inflated to the college standard of 13 pounds.



Note here the ball has regained its normal shape and is tilting back as it begins to rise. Dust halo and flecks of dirt, caught in midair, appear as if painted. All this the human eye has never seen, but it's easy for the M. I. T. scientist's camera.



Here the ball is on its way, nose lifting as it starts far down the field. Fesler's toe is following through. Note how extreme speed of exposure catches every wrinkle on shoe, every bit of dust on ground, and even stitches on ball.

Portland Teams With Williams on Defense

By Bill Grimes

Strengthened by the acquisition of Jack Portland and Burr Williams, the Bruins are all set for the first invasion of the Toronto Maple Leafs tonight at the Boston Garden.

The Bruins were taken over the jumps by the Leafs in the opening game of the season but they are not satisfied that Dick Irvin's crew are their betters. The Patricians were leading the Leafs going into the final period but wound up on the short end of a 5 and 3 encounter.

BRUINS	MAPLE LEAFS
Emms, lw	rw, Connacher
Barry, c	c, Metz
Clapper, rw	lw, H. Jackson
Siebert, ld	rd, Clancy
Shore, rd	ld, Horner
Thompson, g	g, Hainsworth

Faceoff at 8 30 p. m.

Since that first meeting with the Leafs the Bruins have improved greatly. They have smoothed out their attack and tightened defensively. Even more important they are hustling as never before

Portland and Williams are expected to strengthen the Bruins defense.

Portland has had only one year's experience in professional hockey. He is big and fast. Under Frank Patrick he should develop into a standout. He and Williams will comprise the relief defense spelling Eddie Shore and Babe Siebert

PRIMEAU STILL OUT

"Hap" Emms will be in the starting lineup. He has been assigned to left wing on the Barry line, replacing "Red" Beattie, who will team with Capt. Nels Stewart and Johnny Gagnon. Peggy O'Neil, Jack Sand and Art Giroux comprise the third line

Charlie Sands who has been out of the game since the Red Wings were here is expected to see action tonight against his old teammates

The Maple Leafs arrived this morning coming from Toronto where they stopped off for a few hours after the Detroit trip. Manager Connie Smythe reports that his players are all in good condition and that they will get back in their winning stride tonight.

The Leafs won their first eight games this year. Their defeat at Detroit last Sunday is their lone setback of the year

Joe Primeau the best play maker in the N. H. L. is still on the hospital list but Gus Metz and Buzz Boll are filling his shoes as capably as can be expected

The Leafs will show three kids just out of the junior amateur ranks Art Jackson brother of the famous Busher, Metz and Pep Kelly.

Connie Smythe has had these youngsters under his wing for three seasons and a year ago sent them to St. Michael's College, in Toronto, for development under Coach Jerry La Flamme

The St. Mike's junior of last season were rated superior to the old Marlboros which boasted such stars as Chuck Conacher, Joe Primeau, Harvey Jackson and Red Horner.

BRUINS TIED FOR LEAD

Although it is a long step from the juniors to the N. H. L., Metz Jackson and Kelly appear to have negotiated the gap. They have been played regularly by Coach Dick Irvin and are gaining more and more experience

6000 Camera Clicks Each Second

Blink an eyelash.

Just one-fortieth of a second was required for that single twinkle

Yet, there is a new camera, invented at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology by 30-year-old Professor Harold E. Edgerton, which can take pictures of that blink at the rate of 6000 per second, and requires but one five hundred thousandth of a second exposure to do it.

What split second difference at the barrier gives a racehorse a momentary lead as the barrier is lifted and the horses rush away? How much does Babe Ruth dent the horsehide spheroid as he cracks out a homer? Easy stuff for this Technology "eye."

News photographers may even be able to afford these as soon as improvements are made and they are manufactured commercially.

To think that a regulation football, inflated to the official intercollegiate pressure of 13 pounds per square inch is dented all the way to its midriff by the toe of a placement kicker

Never had this been realized until the M. I. T. camera showed how Wes Fesler's boot drove the oval inward to its mid-seam

Back of the scenes in the Tech laboratory Tech men who developed it, Professor Edgerton and his research assistant, Kenneth J. Germes Hausen, who helped perfect it, the action of the "eye" is explained

"An ordinary camera would suffice to take such a picture," says Prof. Edgerton. "It is the light equal in intensity to that of a bolt of lightning, only home made using a mercury arc, which makes pictures possible

"We concentrate a light equal in brightness to 40,000 electric light bulbs upon a very small area where the action is taking place And here, timing, just as in sports is what makes the picture possible

"The 'pulse' of the light waves is made to coincide with the speed of the film. In making motion pictures the film speeds past the lens at the rate of 200 miles an hour."

BOBBY BUXTON IN FIFTH WILSON'S BEST AT EPSOM DOWNS

BUD CHARLTON IS STANDOUT IN FIRST

By Dave Wilson

(Selections made for fast track)

BEST BET—BOBBY BUXTON

Bobby Buxton, a slated starter in the fifth race at Houston, is favored as the day's best betting proposition at Epsom Downs this afternoon.

Royal Leon, who was entered in the fifth race, was the writer's choice overnight but was declared out at scratch time this morning.

FIRST RACE

Bud Charlton, Mecat, Well Built

Just [illegible] BUD CHARLTON [illegible] chief of staff down [illegible] fog in slow [illegible] couple of weeks. MECAT is much better than his last race would suggest and may prove the more troublesome of the contenders.

SECOND RACE

Seymour, Brooksie, Highest Point

SEYMOUR is favored by an outside post position and will escape all early interference. On past record, he is fully capable of handling the issue. BROOKSIE is from a stable that is always trying and rates a good chance.

THIRD RACE

Jack Collins, Durga, Wise Eddie

Have a strong hunch that JACK COLLINS will prove a difficult thoroughbred to defeat in this affair. A duplicate of any one of his numerous good races is all that is needed to turn the trick. DURGA, a slow beginner, is right at home in [illegible] WISE E[illegible]

FOURTH RACE

[illegible] Chatterfol

[illegible] SEMESTER [illegible] as tre[illegible] on top [illegible] how [illegible] CHATTERFOL [illegible] figures.

FIFTH RACE

Bobby Buxton, Oufaly, [illegible]

SIXTH RACE

Cappoquin, Morris R., Pretty Peg

Anything can happen in an affair of this sort. I'm stringing along with CAPPOQUIN and hoping for the best. MORRIS R. and PRETTY PEG have been showing high speed in the mornings.

SEVENTH RACE

Dunbar, Homework, Chips

EIGHTH RACE

The Unanimous All-America

Bobby Grayson, star back of the Stanford football team, has been the general choice of practically all of the All-America elevens picked this season. ALABAMA SURE TO WIN IN BOWL, SAYS RUNYON

By Damon Runyon

(Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service)

New York, Dec. 4—Just as you were informed in this column weeks ago, Alabama is to go to the beautiful city of Pasadena to play Stanford in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day.

Alabama, football champion of the South, and perhaps one of the three best teams in the country, outranked only by Minnesota and [illegible] deserves [illegible] honor.

It has been to the Rose Bowl three times before, and has never been whipped. It defeated Washington and Washington State and [illegible] Stanford, the current [illegible]der.

[illegible] who have seen Alabama play pronounce it a high class football team, though perhaps not quite the equal of the great Crimson Tide of 1926 that the writer saw play in the Rose Bowl.

This pronouncement is not the writer's own. It comes from an Alabaman who has seen all of Alabama's teams for years past. The [illegible] the one that defeated Washington 20 to 19 in a most spectacular contest.

WANTED MINNESOTA

[illegible] been terrible.

A TAKE-IN, JUST THE SAME

[illegible] who have [illegible] Stanford, say [illegible] big team, and [illegible] that it does not [illegible] tough, fighting type of team.

[illegible] that the result of the New Year's game between Alabama and Stanford is a foregone conclusion unless something [illegible] to the Alabama [illegible] now and January 1 [illegible] game for the spec[illegible]

[illegible] know how to build up and [illegible] eye. They are great [illegible]. They have a lovely environment for their production.

Fuller and Cool to Fight Dec. 14

New York, Dec. 4 (INS)—Disappointed in not getting another chance to regain his lightweight title from Barney Ross, Tony Canzoneri today agreed to meet the winner of the Sammy Fuller-Eddie Cool fight in Madison Square Garden December 28. Cool and Fuller will battle December 14.

Kadlic Given Poe Trophy

Princeton, N. J., Dec. 4 (INS)—John P. (Kats) Kadlic, '35 of Bellaire, O., varsity quarterback at [illegible] three years [illegible] the proud possessor of the John Prentiss Poe Cup.

The cup was presented to him last night at the annual football banquet held at the Princeton Inn and attended by 300 members of the varsity, [illegible], freshman and lightweight squads, university officials and coaches.

Given in memory of John P. Poe, '95, third of the famous Poe brothers, who was killed during the World War, the cup is awarded annually to a member of the Princeton varsity eleven who has shown himself outstanding in loyalty, courage, modesty, per[illegible] good sportsmanship.

MARTIN CHOICE OVER MERCIER

Bull Martin will roar from his corner a slight choice to whip Al Mercier in the feature of Alex MacLean's wrestling show tomorrow night at the Boston Arena and to [illegible] N. E. championship bout with Bob "Sibber" McCoy.

The Bull has been spending long [illegible] gym with a pair of [illegible] sparring mates and he's [illegible] Mercier worried. The former N. E. champ and holder of the [illegible] studded belt until Mercier stopped him doesn't know what to expect.

[illegible] the Bull relies on his [illegible] strength and his assortment of brutalities—kicks, [illegible] gouges, strangles, bites and [illegible]. But Mercier fears something entirely new from the [illegible] hasn't been hiring those [illegible] matmen to work with for [illegible]g.

In the semifinal Rebel Bob Russell will meet Gene Ledoux. Special bouts will be Bull Komar, who takes a size 20 collar, vs. Red O'Dell and Leo Hyatt vs. Tommy Rae.

Brothers from East Boston, Frank and Bill Dyer will be in the prelims. Frank will face Eddie Edwards while Bill will collide with Phil Allen. Another prelim will be Fred Carrone vs. Jack Rose. MacLean is now seeking an opponent for Art Le Grand, newcomer from Montreal, who'll make his Arena debut.

Horses to Watch

Paper Profits—Sterling performer at New England tracks past season. Worth tabbing in second at Fair Grounds.

Black Mammy — Mammy how this one will romp home at Bay Meadows: Looks like the right day.

Zorana — My clocker's late special from Houston.

Jacobs Ladder — Better climb aboard this one.

True Buck — As true as gold. Should buck her way home first this afternoon in fifth at Epsom Downs.

CONACHER AND JACKSON SET SCORING PACE

By Associated Press

Montreal, Dec. 4—Despite the shut-out handed Toronto by the Detroit Red Wings Sunday, the Leafs star wingmen, Harvey Jackson and Chuck Conacher, continued to set the pace in the individual scoring during the past week in the National Hockey League.

Jackson scored one goal during the week for his tenth of the season, and with four assists held to his place at the top of the standings with 14 points. Conacher tallied two [illegible] his total [illegible] 12 [illegible] with five goals and seven assists.

The wings, who have scored 26 goals in nine games, hold the next three positions. With four goals and seven assists Johnny Sorrell has put together 11 points and is trailed with Cooney Weiland and Larry Aurie, with nine each. Conacher, Sorrell and Aurie ended the week in a three-day tie for the most number of assists, each having aided their teammates seven times.

The doubtful honor of leading in penalties found Red Horner of the Leafs still at the top with 33 minutes spent in the penalty box. He was followed by Ebbie Goodfellow, the highest scoring defenceman from Detroit, with 25 minutes. Marty Barrow, Boston, and Baldy Northcott, Maroons, rank next with 24 minutes each.

Theras Stake Winner

Leicester, Eng., Dec. 4 (AP)—J. Metcalf's Theras, carrying top weight, today won the Silbey Handicap steeplechase over two miles by a length from J. M. Little's Vicar's Cross and eight others. The American-owned horse was 200 to 30 in the betting.

Twenty Grand Speeds West for Comeback in Richest Race

By Bill Corum

New York, Dec. 4—Somewhere west of Chicago, rolling through the brown stubble fields of the Midwest aboard "The Chief," is the big horse.

It is fitting that the big horse should be making the fastest transcontinental rail trip ever made by a thoroughbred. Speed is his dish; his middle name. Yesterday he was munching his morning oats at Red Bank, N. J.

This morning he peered from his private car at the white caps of Lake Michigan. Thursday he will have his supper at the new Santa Anita race track, Los Angeles.

There, on the 23d day of February, if all goes well, he will be looking Equipoise, Cavalcade, Faireno and the like in the eye at the head of the stretch in the greatest horse race ever run in this or any other land.

And an American colt to make that gallant English gentleman, Cavalcade, run to the hilt at any distance race horses run. Granted, that is, that both can come back to the races at their top form.

RACE OUT OF BOOK

Twenty Grand returns to competition with one of the strangest stories of a sport that is packed with romance and human interest and the unusual. But first, let me tell you a little something about that $100,000 handicap at Santa Anita. Possibly you do not follow horse racing.

Well, if the horses which their owners and trainers are trying to get ready for this race answer the bugle, it will be the same as though you put Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney, Jim Corbett, John L. Sullivan, Jess Willard and Jack Johnson in one boxing ring.

It will be to racing what a ball game in which Ruth and Ty Cobb and Hans Wagner and Lou Gehrig faced Walter Johnson, Christy Mathewson, Ed Walsh, Eddie Plank, Rube Waaddell and Addie Joss.

It will be the same as an automobile race in which Oldfield and Rickenbacker were stepping on it against DePalma and Jimmy Murphy and Pete DePaolo and the like.

I repeat it will be a horse race out of a story book, a dream race. For as the big horse rolls through Kansas, his arch rival, Mate, is on the high seas returning from a successful invasion of Great Britain.

TRIUMPHAL PROCESSION

You see, last summer, Bob Smith started something by leading Cavalcade into the Grand Central station and insisting that he be taken as a passenger aboard the Twentieth Century.

Well, if Bob didn't actually lead his horse in, it came to virtually the same thing. The railroad people demurred.

"All right," said Bob, "all I can tell you is that more people will turn out to see this horse than any notable you've hauled on your railroad in many a year."

So the railroad finally yielded. Word went out that Cavalcade would be aboard the Century going West on such and such a day.

The story made only two or three lines in the papers at first, so perhaps you can imagine the surprise of the railroad people when anywhere from 2000 persons up jammed around their train at every stop between here and Chicago.

But when Mrs. Sloane was told of this triumphal tour of her horse she was disappointed.

"Why didn't you tell me?" she demanded of Trainer Smith. "I wouldn't have missed it for anything.

"The next time we ship him I'm going to have a room fixed up in his car and travel with him. I can't think of anything that would be more exciting."

So, unless she changes her mind, Mrs. Sloane will be aboard Cavalcade's train when the brown colt follows the big bay west in quest of Santa Anita's hundred thousand dollar golden fleece.

The Santa Anita track itself also comes out of a story book, or so those who have seen it tell me. They say it outdoes Hialeah both in beauty and convenience for the [illegible] turf fan. If that's true, it's some track.

T. G. PICKS UP

My only regret about Santa Anita is that Joe Smoot, whose idea it was, didn't last long enough to put it across. If it fails to prove a gold mine for the first few years, I shall be greatly surprised.

Now for that strange story of how Twenty Grand chances to be coming back to the races at all. Useless as a sire, the strapping son of St. Germans fell into a mysterious decline after his last retirement a season or so back.

He lost weight; he didn't "do" (eat in horse language) properly; his coat grew rough and poor-looking. Like a sick man, he seemed to lose interest in life.

Famous veterinarians and horsemen looked him over, tried this and that remedy, and finally despaired of effecting a cure.

Here was one of the greatest horses of all time slowly turning into a broken-down rack of skin and bones. Then one day a little-known vet in Lexington, Ky., met Major Beard, who is in charge of the Whitney horses, and said: "I've got some medicine that will fix that horse okay."

The major invited him to go ahead and try it. Beard didn't have much confidence that it would do any good, but there was nothing to lose. Within a week Twenty Grand was showing improvement.

MILE IN 1:39 1-5

A month and his coat was taking on its old gloss. He was full of pep. It came to the point where something had to be done with him, he was so full of life and spirits. What more natural than that they throw a saddle on him and let him gallop.

Mind you, at this time there wasn't the slightest idea of returning him to the races. But T. G. was fairly tearing the reins out of a big, heavy exercise boy's hands.

So one day somebody said: "Take him a mile and let him run a little."

Run a little, eh? He doesn't know how to run a little. Before they could get him waved down and pulled up, he had galloped out a mile on a new and deep track in 1.39 1-5.

Horses in mid-season form, on lightning fast tracks, don't work much faster. Most of 'em can't.

Bonthron Plans Winter Campaign

New York, Dec. 4 (INS)—William R. Bonthron, Princeton's famous miler, whose stirring duels with Glenn Cunningham will long be remembered, is planning to appear in a number of winter meets, it was revealed today.

Bonthron, who announced his retirement following his return from Europe some months ago, has been training at the New York A. C., and when he returns to the track it will doubtless be in the colors of the Winged-Foot organization.

KIPKE RUMORED AS NEW COACH AT HARVARD

By International News Service

Harry Kipke, coach of the University of Michigan football team, may be the new Harvard gridiron mentor, according to unconfirmed rumors today.

Reports that Kipke would succeed present coach Eddie Casey came after a meeting of the Harvard committee on the regulation of athletic sports. The committee was silent as to its deliberations, but it is believed that changes in the 1935 coaching staff and the makeup of the 1936 gridiron schedule were discussed. Expected announcement of the 1936 schedule was eagerly awaited.

Following are the theories which have been expressed concerning the Crimson's 1936 list of gridiron engagements:

Harvard will play Army and Navy in alternate years. Harvard will drop Holy Cross and play both Army and Navy in the same year; Virginia or some similar team will take the Holy Cross place on the schedule; Michigan or some other Western team may replace Holy Cross.

Meanwhile, the Harvard gridmen prepared to elect a captain for next year. Shaun Kelly, Jr., end, and Bob Haley, quarterback, were the chief candidates.

Sugar Bowl Bid Accepted by Temple

By International News Service

New Orleans, Dec. 4—The Owls of Temple University, coached by Pop Warner, will journey south to meet the green wave of Tulane in New Orleans' first Sugar Bowl classic to be played here on New Year's day.

This was announced today by the Sugar Bowl committee after receiving acceptances from both teams.

Temple, rated as one of the outstanding teams of the east, was invited because of its impressive record under the direction of Coach Warner, originator of the "double wingback system." The Owls were undefeated this year, although in ties with Indiana and Bucknell.

Tulane, which won the right to represent the South as the home team by virtue of the green wave victory last Saturday over Louisiana State University, went through the season undefeated in the Southeastern Conference, but was beaten by Colgate.

Salem, Gloucester May Play Saturday

Salem and Gloucester high elevens are considering playing a post-season game next Saturday. The proposal came from Bill Broderick, coach of the Witches, and Dave Ross, Gloucester mentor, is at Salem this afternoon discussing the affair.

EAST BOSTON WAIL HEARD TODAY

By Bill Connell

A probe of the East Boston Alumni Association protest regarding the eligibility of certain Hyde Park athletes gets under way today.

Albert West of the East Boston alumni group has asked Bertram C. Richardson, East Boston headmaster, to protest the game which the team lost to Hyde Park, 6 to 0, this [illegible]

West's letter mentions Tony Staruski, end, and Art Dray, fullback, as being ineligible and states that since they played this year against East Boston the latter should be awarded the game with Hyde Park by forfeit.

West's letter also names four more Hyde Park gridmen, Warren MacInnes, William Kenney, Dexter Goodwin and William Dunn, as being in school more than four years.

Since it is not at all unusual for high school boys to remain in school a few extra semesters to make up needed graduation points, it is difficult to see why the four should be mentioned. Since there is not even a claim that they are ineligible.

If Hyde Park has used ineligible players, it will forfeit games in which the boys saw action. There's nothing uncommon about this. Lynn Classical forfeited several games this year because an ineligible boy [illegible]. Similar cases occur several times each school year.

No coach or set of school officials can recall offhand the complete records of any schoolboy. The whole thing resolves into a matter for the conscience of the individual boy.

As long as school sports are conducted with the present large numbers competing, there will be cases of ineligibility discovered. Considering the thousands of school athletes, the percentage of such cases is remarkably low.

Loss of five varsity squad stars through injuries was a major contributing cause in the Everett decision not to play Malden again. Everett really is not in shape for [illegible]

And apart from officials' angles, the boys themselves of both Malden and Everett are satisfied with their scoreless tie and have no desire to battle again.

There's no chance of another Haverhill game. With Salem or anyone else. Haverhill considers the season closed, its hundred-odd suits have been sent to the laundry, shoes and other equipment have been cleaned, and packed away until 1935.

And Waltham doesn't want to play anyone. Malden's best bet is for a game with New Britain. The opening also exists for a New Britain-Arlington game. Which would undoubtedly draw well, and furnish a colorful contest.

The post season game chatter might be termed strictly commercial, another year. But this season the early October rains washed out many games so that many teams which considered extra clashes were a game or two short of a full season. Salem lost out on a couple of dates, and Arlington likewise. Thus a game between the two would not be too taxing on the boys.

Official All-School Football Team in American

Official American All Scholastic football players will be named within a few days. Watch for this great feature, appearing exclusively in the sports pages of the Boston Evening American.

The team will be named by the American All-Scholastic Board, including Bill Broderick of Salem, Fred Ostergren of Arlington, Charles Dickerman of Somerville, James Mansfield of Haverhill, William Ohrenberger of Boston English, and Edward Sherlock of Hyde Park.

Mr. Boston Says:—

Shepherd for Redskins
George vs. Macaluso
$100,000 for Londos

By Jack Conway

SPEAKING OF news: Bill Shepherd, brilliant halfback on the West Maryland team, who was named on many of the All-America teams, is headed for the Redskins.

There will be a house cleaning in the camp of the Redskins before the season opens next fall. George Marshall was not satisfied with the showing of his team during the past campaign.

Mr. Boston

The loss of Jim Musick knocked the Redskins out of what chance they had to finish in first place.

Boston and New England will send a delegation of football fans to New York to see the Giants and Bears battle in the playoff next Sunday. The Bears are the favorites.

George Against Macaluso

ED DON George has signed to meet Len Macaluso in a return mat bout at the Garden on December 14. Macaluso is confident he will be able to lift George's title in their return go.

Macaluso stepped out to Waltham on Sunday and proved he still can play football. He made several brilliant runs which reminded the fans of the days when Len was an All-America back at Colgate.

* * *

The Redskins tried to sign Macaluso to take Jim Musick's place in their backfield, but he decided to devote his time to wrestling. Macaluso wants to become wrestling champion.

He is making five times as much money as a wrestling headliner as Cliff Battles gets from the Redskins.

Wrestlers, unlike football players, are able to keep putting in the coin of the realm for 12 months of each year.

Jim Londos has made over $100,000 during the past year. He has wrestled as often as five times a week.

Back in boom days Londos made as high as $400,000 in a year.

Londos, next to Gus Sonnenberg, has been the biggest box office attraction in wrestling. Sonnenberg shattered all box office records following his defeat of Strangler Lewis at the Garden.

Random Shots at Target

DAVE WILSON tells me many of the horsemen and jockeys were without funds when the race meeting at Charles Town, West Virginia, was postponed until Thursday. Charles Town is rated with the cheaper tracks and few of the horses entered for the meeting have had much success at the major tracks . . . Owners and trainers of losing horses have their difficulties meeting board and feed bills not to mention transportation . . . Boston bookmakers tell me most of the local play is on the races at Epsom Downs with Bay Meadows running second and New Orleans third. Many horses which showed at Rockingham and at Narragansett are racing at Epsom Downs which explains the interest in that track . . . Harvard's football authorities will reveal their 1935 plans after their meeting tomorrow . . . There is considerable speculation as to who will replace Eddie Casey as head coach.

Tony Papalino, champion, vs. Winn Robbins. For light heavyweight championship of the world.

With Jack Sharkey in the role of an official and a gala ten-bout mat card, Charlie Gordon stages his fourth anniversary wrestling show at Mechanics Building this evening.

Tony Papalino, light heavyweight champion, defends his title bed when he combats the Penn State flash, Winn Robbins, in the feature match.

The special will be a ten round English style battle royal with Sharkey the referee. Four of the toughest grapplers in the business clash in the free-for-all. They include Dan Carey, Dutch Schmidt, Melsheka and Young Dempsey.

Al Mannino Coming Ring Champion

Followers of the Irish-American A. A. amateur bouts will see a budding champion in act on Thursday night at South Boston. He is Al Mannino, popular little 126-pounder from the West End.

Al Mannino

This lad is said to be the best thing to enter amateur ranks since Sammy Fuller's debut more than a decade ago.

Mannino has appeared in only three fights in his short career but ringside critics see in him a throwback to the era when fighters fought with their fists.

He has won two of his bouts by knockouts. The third he lost on decision because of inexperience.

Others of the amateur elite who will box in the Thursday show are Walter Gardner of Providence and Alex Belusko, 160-pound class. Bill DeMarzio of Norwood, Eddie Grygiel of Cambridge and Francis Meehan of Athol, heavyweights.

Competition this week will be held in the 126, 135, 147, 160-pound and heavyweight classes, all open.

WALKER KAYOED FIRST TIME

By Associated Press

Philadelphia, Dec 4.—After winning two world's championships fighting all weights from welter to heavies, Mickey Walker has suffered his first knockout.

The Shrewsbury, Mass., N. J. veteran lost to the younger and more agile Paul Pirrone of Cleveland, at Convention Hall last night when two short chops on the chin sent him down at the end of two minutes and 19 seconds of the 11th of what was to have been a 12-round fight.

With bleeding cuts over two half-closed eyes, Walker was defenseless as the 11th chukker began. Then 11,000 spectators saw him take the count for the first time after being down for the count of nine in the second.

Walker tried to stem Pirrone's onslaught for ten rounds. His left eye was cut in an early round and his right eye in the sixth but he fought gamely on, winning the eighth, ninth and tenth rounds. He smacked Pirrone solidly on the ribs in the 11th just before the winner made the heavy charge.

Pirrone, who was credited with getting most of the rounds, weighed in at 159, while Walker tipped the scales at 162.

[illegible] Nova Scotia [illegible] George [illegible]

"Warrenton looks like a hitter," said Fuller. "He has tremendous chest and shoulder development. I like the way he walks in and lets his punches breeze. Look at that left hook. It almost lifted Morris' head off his shoulders."

BUILT LIKE BERLENBACH

Harry Kelley [illegible] popped out as he watched the Nova Scotia sensation.

"Warrenton is built like Paul Berlenbach," declared Kelley. "He has great power in his short punches. He is the best built light heavyweight I have seen. Anybody who can punch like Warrenton is certain to go places in the ring."

Warrenton weighs 171 pounds. He doesn't carry an ounce of extra weight.

"We'll get a good line on Terry when he battles Steve Carr Friday night," said Kelley.

"Carr is a tough fellow. He gave Johnny Rossi a hard battle, and has been in there with other first class opponents.

"Warrenton is the talk of the gym. It has been a long time since the place has been so crowded with ring followers.

"I think Fuller's two great fights in New York, and Lou Brouillard's win over Gainer have helped instill new interest in boxing."

CALLAHAN AT BUCKLEY'S

Warrenton will work out at Kelley & Hayes gym today and tomorrow. If you think you can fool Warrenton he'll give you a job as a sparring partner. He needs plenty of punch fodder.

Andy Callahan, "Irish Hand Grenade," is training at Jerry Buckley's gym for his 10-round go with Jackie Davis of Cleveland. Callahan is eager to get a bout with Jimmy McLarnin, and will try to stop Davis.

Davis gave Callahan a furious battle at Worcester. The decision in favor of Callahan wasn't a bit popular with the fans.

The Greek Terror, Fanis Tzanatopoulus, is also training at Buckley's Gym. He's been a knockout sensation at Lynn and Salem and will try to pin a kayo smash on Buster Price's chin Friday night.

Matchmaker Ray Cass says the advance sale is rolling along merrily.

"It looks as if happy days have returned to the boxing game," said Cass.

First Basemen Steal Batting Spotlight in Junior Loop

By Joe Cashman

First basemen had a gala season in batting in runs, the official American League records for 1934 reveal.

The first four tally manufacturers in the loop are all initial sackers. On top, of course, is Lou Gehrig of the Yankees, who also won the batting and home runs crowns.

The runner-up was Hal Trosky, Cleveland rookie, with 142. Next, in order came "Hank" Greenberg of the Tigers and Jimmy Foxx of the Athletics, with 139 and 130, respectively.

The keenest opposition encountered by the first base quartet was [illegible] Charlie Gehringer, Tiger second baseman, and Roy Johnson, Red Sox flychaser, who [illegible] off fifth and sixth places. The former with 127 and the latter with 119.

Strangely enough, both Cronin, Rogell and Billy Myer [illegible] of the Sox were far ahead of [illegible] Werber, who was the leading [illegible] of the Fenway flock.

CRONIN IS TENTH

Al Simmons of the White Sox, by knocking in 104 runs, established a league record of having driven in 100 runs or more for 11 consecutive seasons.

Three players who failed to hit [illegible] knocked in more than 100 runs, included Joe Cronin, new Red Sox manager, Billy Rogell of the Tigers, and Ray Pepper of the Browns. Frisco Joe, though he batted for only .284, was tenth among the marker producers.

The champion walker during the last campaign was Jimmy Foxx, who received free transportation to first 111 times. Gehrig drew 109 passes. Others to get more than 100 were Babe Ruth and Buddy Myer.

Max Bishop, long the best walker in the league, topped the Red Sox in walks with 82, though he played in less than 100 games. One behind him was Eddie Morgan.

LARY FANS 51 TIMES

Harlan Clift, young third-sacker of the Browns, had the dubious distinction of striking out 100 times.

The next easiest to fool was "Hank" Greenberg, who whiffed on 93 occasions, not counting, of course, the third strikes that were breezed by him by the Brothers Dean and other Cardinal pitchers in the World Series.

Lyn Lary was the Sox most powerful fanner, going down swinging 51 times, once more than "Moose" Solters.

Frank Crosetti of the Yanks and Frankie Pytlak of the Indians were each hit by pitched balls five times to lead the list of "bean ball" victims. Manager Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox, hit 12 times the year before, escaped with only four blows.

The figures of the leaders and Red Sox:

TROJANS SHADE MULES, 29-26, IN CAGE TEST

By Bob Ahearn

Dotty Saunders of the Trojans and Mary Johansen of the Swampscott Maroons, captains and forwards of their respective quintets, gave 2500 fans who attended the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund Basketball doubleheader at the Arena plenty of thrills.

Saunders made good a foul shot and then sank a basket from the floor with only 25 seconds left to play to give the hard fighting and scrappy Trojans a brilliant 29-26 win over the Newark Americans in an American League [illegible] counter.

To open the win Nat H[illegible] made good a floor goal with five seconds of the finish.

Pretty blonde Mary Johansen was responsible for the Maroons' [illegible] team of Swampscott's [illegible] victory over the St. Mary's Girls of Lynn.

It took two overtime periods to decide the outcome.

Miss Johansen, as clever a girl player as has played hereabouts in years, sank a basket with less than a minute to go.

Newport Pros, with a galaxy of former collegiate players in their [illegible] play, lost to the Boston Trojans [illegible] Sunday. Jack Egan and Jimmy Ryan are sponsoring the game. Entry blanks for membership in the Park Department League have been distributed by Billy McKeon, director of the league. Registration closes Saturday, December 15 . . . The local college season opens tomorrow with Wes Feese's Harvard five entertaining the Boston University hoopsters . . . Northeastern meets Brown on Saturday at the Boston Y. M. C. A. court. Heath Morse, forward and high scorer last season, is the only Husky veteran . . . Gilchrist Company plays the Hagan Club at the Southern Junior High School, Somerville, this evening . . . The Irwin Club of East Boston, new entrant in the Greater Boston Amateur League, opens tomorrow night at the East Boston Gym. McCarthy Club of Winthrop will be the opposition . . . Bill Fackley will captain the Al Smith Club quintet. He is a former Somerville High and Boston Academy leader . . . Five veterans reported to the initial practice session of the Tufts varsity five. They are Johnny Grinnell, Izzy Nutte, James Kavanaugh, Andy Radvilas and Roy Wood . . . The Boston Retail Basketball League is scheduled to open the first Thursday in January . . . Fred Ellis, one-time Tufts four letter star, is now playing for the Converse Rubber cagers. They square off with the Al Smith Club, Thursday evening.

Terrier '38 Eleven Elects Co-Captains

Gary Famiglietti and Frank LaCivita, Boston University's freshman football stars, were the recipients of a post season honor when they were elected co-captains of the Terrier yearlings for the past season.

Although the post is non-active it is a tribute of the squad to two of the best prospects the Terriers have ever had. Famiglietti was an outstanding fullback at Medford High and Brighton Academy before entering Boston University, and LaCivita made quite a name for himself as an end at Stoughton and St Anselm's.

Tech Ice Election Over to Thursday

Election of captain of the M. I. T. hockey six which was to have been held this morning, was put over until after the Thursday practice session of the team. Coach George Owen was unable to be present at this morning's workout.

WHY GET ON CHARLIE DICKERMAN'S NECK

By Bill Grimes

Now that their winning streak has been broken, Toronto Maple Leafs will be far more dangerous tonight against the Bruins than they would have been while trying for their 10th consecutive win. Whether it be a pro or amateur club, any team tightens when it is about to establish a new record, and the weaker sisters slump after a setback. But there is nothing weak about the Leafs, and they will tear after the Bruins tonight from the opening face off.

Manager Frank Patrick will show the Bruin fans his latest acquisitions, Jack Portland and Burr Williams. Portland acquired his hockey inspiration watching his fellowtownsman, Jimmy "Sailor" Herbert, trip the light fantastic up in Collingwood, Ont. Williams, with years of minor league experience, should know what it is all about.

Chicago Bears and New York Giants meet next Sunday in Gotham in the first game of the play offs. Harry Newman scouted the B'ars in Detroit on Thanksgiving, and he saw plenty. Back in 1902, Knox College, which has lost 27 straight games, defeated Notre Dame, Northwestern and Kansas . . . Somebody spoke out of turn at Trapelo on Sunday, and Jesse Guilford riled to such an extent that he hit one 375 yards off the 10th tee.

I'm at a loss to understand why anyone should be "gunning" for Charlie Dickerman of Somerville high. There's so much politics in Somerville that all branches of athletics are suffering . . . Cliff Montgomery, of Rose Bowl fame, has had his fill of professional football . . . He frankly admits it is no game for a man of his physique . . . That $50,000 offer made by St. Louis for Harvey "Busher" Jackson wreaks of the hooey . . . Moreover, unless St. Louis starts to win a few games, it may be necessary to shift the team back to Ottawa . . .

There'll be little left of the University of Vermont squad after the Army game next fall. The Green Mountain institution has not enough man-power to even offer its squad as a "breather" for the Kaydets . . . There's a number of Greater Boston schools which could use a coach of Chick Shea's ability to advantage . . . In the three years Shea has been at New Britain high, he has lost only three games . . . Joe Demyanovitch, Alabama's bone crushing line plunger, who hails from New Jersey, never played football until he joins the 'Bamas . . .

The B. U. football season drew to a close almost three weeks ago, but Coach "Pat" Hanley is still very much on the job trying to line up positions for members of his freshman squad, who are in need of financial assistance . . . Jim Hendry, the veteran Manchester, N. H., C. C. pro, is in San Juan, Porto Rica, teaching the native and winter members of the Berwind Country Club the art of playing golf . . .

After two weeks of strenuous scribing, Linda Fowler is resting in Florida with Bill Danforth . . . Bill "Flash" Hollett was disappointed that the Chamber of Commerce was not at the Huntington avenue station when he and the Toronto Maple Leafs arrived in town . . . If that post season Arlington High-New Britain High game is arranged, it will be one of the best attractions ever staged in these parts. The Nutmeg state football fans are anxious to see how Coach Chick Shea's New Britain squad compares with that which Coach Fred Ostergren developed to represent Arlington.

Fred J. Wright, Jr., six time winner of the Massachusetts amateur championship, is in need of some road work before it becomes necessary for him to shift from an upright to a flat swing . . . The Bruins obtained a coming star in Jack Portland, the Canadian Olympic high jumper. Portland is the type that is a credit to any professional sport . . . Saw Bill Hanna, former chairman of the M. G. A. handicap committee, Freddie Corcoran, Fred Wright and Bob Graham in a huddle down town. They were headed for Frank Craven's sport shop to purchase black ties for the passing out of the old Albemarle Golf Club . . . Then bumped into Ted Learnard, "Tod" Plummer and "Pop" Sanderson discussing the rejuvenation of football at Dartmouth.

Jim Howard, Framingham, has retired to Palm Beach for the winter. Jim dropped in on Freddie Corcoran before starting South to get his 1935 state handicap card . . . Miami is going in for golf in a big way this winter . . . And I don't mean Romie Turrel, who, as usual, is sunning himself in Florida . . . Jack Hanoify, Longmeadow Country Club, is one of the most up and coming golf professionals in New England. He is right on the job 12 months in the year and is doing all right by himself.

Baked potatoes do not agree with Harold Ely, the 260-pound Brooklyn Dodger tackle. He must have them mashed . . . And the same goes for the Fall River boat . . . W. H. Penhaligan, the well known purveyor of golf equipment, is back in the well known "pink" . . . "Pen" was in bad shape last summer but is now back listening to the moans of the pros, who did not do so well last season.

Grains Lower in Chicago Trading

Chicago, Dec. 4 (AP)—Profit-taking developed in the grain market today and prices averaged lower, an advance in the last week of 4 cents in corn and 2 cents in wheat proving attractive to sellers.

Moderate weakness at Liverpool, [illegible] in part the recession here yesterday, was a disquieting influence. Opening unchanged to [illegible] lower, May 99¼-⅜, wheat later lost more. Corn started unchanged to [illegible] down, May 90⅛-¼, and subsequently went lower.

Cotton Steady in New York Trading

New York, Dec. 4 (INS)—The cotton market was a listless affair today with trading mostly of a professional character, but the list displayed a steady undertone and ruled slightly above previous closings throughout the forenoon.

At midday futures were up 2 to 4 points, with January up 3 at 12.4[illegible] March up 3 at 12.47, [illegible] up 3 at 12.40, and October up 4 at 12.1[illegible]

BUREAUCRATS ARE UNFAIR, SAYS FORBES

By B. C. FORBES

[illegible]

B. C. Forbes

"How is business going to co-operate with the President when he and his subordinates are doing everything they can to antagonize business? Actions count, not words.

"What good does it do for Mr. Roper and Mr. Richberg to assure the business men that the government intends to co-operate with them when the government is engaged in 250 different kinds of business competing with taxpayers?

"For example, nearly every man, woman and child in the United States is interested in public utility securities through savings bank accounts, life insurance policies, etc.

"Do you think business can co-operate with the government as long as the government is fostering the doctrine that everybody who has a dollar is dishonest?

"The national Democratic platform of 1932 was the most constructive and conservative adopted by the Democratic party in my lifetime.

"Suppose it had declared for the killing of pigs, the ploughing under of cotton and wheat, the destruction of property, the teaching of the doctrine that one ought to loaf, spend what he does not have, and borrow what he cannot repay, the repudiation by the government of its contracts, going off the gold standard, engaging in all sorts of business in competition with private industry, the recognition of Russia, teaching the doctrine that every man who has a dollar is dishonest, etc., etc.—how many states do you suppose the Democratic party would have carried? Yet all the above is now being done by the so-called Democratic party.

"Mind you, I am a Democrat and supported Mr. Roosevelt.

"We are going to have no different condition of affairs until the Supreme Court reaffirms views and principles that the bench and bar have thought for years were settled. Nothing else will bring order out of chaos . . .

"This letter is confidential. We are Russianized now and no man who is in business can afford to publicize his views. I never thought that this country would arrive at that condition."

I've encountered that view time and time again since I began urging men of affairs to accept Washington's proffered hand of friendship.

As I see it, however, business and industrial leaders should take Washington at its word and act wholeheartedly on the assumption that Washington is absolutely on the level. If such faith should prove unwarranted, well, the upshot [illegible] could [illegible]

But [illegible] co-operation, not [illegible] government.

RAIL SHARES LEAD RALLY IN MARKET

New York, Dec. 4—Rumors of private as well as governmental moves to aid railroads brought a sharp rally in the carrier shares today.

One rumor was that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would shortly set minimum prices for railroad bonds and provide for their conversion into some sort of government guaranteed obligation.

BANK RUMOR

The other rumor involved one of the most important banking houses in the street which in the past has been actively identified with railroad financing. The report had it that this firm had worked out an important piece of financing for one of the leading systemsi n financial difficulties.

Gains in the rail stocks ran to more than 2 points, with Atchison and Union Pacific setting the pace, while several of the lower-priced issues such as New York Central, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Southern Railway and Great Northern scored lesser gains.

Industrials, including United States Steel, Westinghouse, American, Bethlehem and General Electric, were in fair demand and advanced fractionally.

American Telephone was outstanding in the utility division with a 2-point gain. Other power and light shares, including Consolidated Gas, Public Service, United Gas Improvement and American Water Works, were firm around their previous closing levels.

REFLECT OPTIMISM

A number of special, extra and regular dividend declarations helped to brighten the picture. Communications stocks reflected optimism over the federal hearings now in progress. The aircraft group found a following on expectations of government consideration and continued gains in air traffic.

Brokers reported that the recent various price readjustments in stocks apparently represented some shifting of positions on the part of a few large interests rather than any broad distribution foreshadowing general weakness.

Nervousness in some quarters over the European situation was greatly allayed by the French-German agreement on the Saar which, in the opinion of most foreign observers, precludes any serious incident which might have followed the elections in that territory next month.

The markets saw renewed hope in governmental estimates that Christmas trade this year would be the best since 1930. Administration statisticians based their conclusions on increased farm income, higher factory payrolls, increased government emergency expenditures, more stable bank conditions and what they interpreted as growing public confidence.

BOSTON 'L' HAS NET LOSS

In connection with petition of the Boston Elevated Railway Co. for approval of a proposed issue of $6,309,000 refunding bonds there has been filed with the Public Utilities Commission financial statement of the road as follows:

OPPORTUNITY FOR MILADY

(Personal—Sat. Review of Lit.)

Will women be crushed? Not if they organize and cooperate. We are a group of intelligent young women who are shocked and insulted by the growing attitude of masculine scorn. If you are willing to contribute your ideas and join us as we begin, please write to The League of Independent Women. Box 32-A.

"After all," sighs Genevieve, the kitchen cynic, "you can't blame nations for being cold to each other's suggestions. That's what the other's suggestions always leave them out in."

Q. and A. DEPARTMENT

Dear, Helpful Aunt Bella:

For years and years I have been trying to grow hair on top of my head. I have tried every known remedy, but I remain bald as an egg. What can I do?

Perturbed.

Ans.—You might have your face lifted and stop shaving.

A. ("Twinkle in the Eye") Bella.

BIG IDEA DEPARTMENT

Sir—

Although I have been reading a lot about old-age pensions lately, none of the plans I have "conned," as the fella says, seem to adequately grasp the situation. What I mean is it all puts me in mind of the old saying "A man is as old as he feels." Will a pension starting precisely at sixty or sixty-five cover this angle of the situation? Obviously not! What we really need, and I am sure all thinking people will think as I think, is an adjustable sliding scale, sure fire, day-to-day old-age pension system which will provide for all those who feel sixty or over on a given day to be beneficiaries for that day. Getting down to an even more practical basis, we might split the day—with delightful results in a great many cases—and pay ½ day old-age pensions to those who merely feel aged during the morning from 7 a. m. to 12. Thanking you in advance, I remain

Elmer Z. Doakes, 25.

ANYWAY, THERE WAS SOME EXCITEMENT

(From the Lamar, Missouri, Democrat)

There was some excitement at the Woodman Hall, when Chas. Regan was having a dance Saturday night. It came up over the prize to the best waltzers. Charlie's story is this:

"The judges awarded the prize to Alf. Andrews. Pretty soon somebody said Clarence Meade was abusing Lucille Stahl, one of the judges. I told Clarance to go sit down. Pretty soon he told me I had him to fight. I told him I had always been his friend. But he told me flat I had to fight. I picked up a stick and struck at him."

Mrs. Mead's version is different. "When the waltz prize had been awarded Charlie came up to Clarence and handed him an all day sucker. 'Here's your prize,' he said. The way he said it seemed like an insult. Clarence told him so. Lucille began to slur Clarence by saying nasty things about the family. This naturally aroused Clarence.

"Charlie went to his overcoat pocket and got a club. It looked like the end of an ax handle. He then beat Clarence over the head."

After all, Senator Long's idea of removing Louisiana from the Union is not so bad as some he's had.

And it'd certainly be a feather in Huey's cap—if he could secede where others have failed.

U. S. Government Must Conquer Crime—Corrupt Local Agencies Have Failed Strong Federal Secret Service Needed!

To the Editor,
BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN:

WE SHOULD begin now making constant and vigorous editorial campaign for extensive Federal secret service organization to combat crime in the United States.

We cannot depend at all on incompetent and corrupt local agencies.

We could accomplish something with well-trained State constabulary with high morale, but the State constabulary when and where we might have it could only be especially effective as accessory to a central Federal secret service.

Underworld criminal activity, underworld corruption of police machinery, is nation wide.

The fight to save the country from crime and corruption must be nation wide and must be backed by the formidable power and purpose, and the still more formidable incorruptibility, of the Federal Government.

Sincerely yours,
WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

FOR years, crime of all kinds has been steadily increasing in this country, until today its frightful prevalence in all parts of the nation has become a problem and a menace of the first magnitude.

Temporarily, of course, the depression seemed a more difficult problem.

The depression, however, will pass away.

But crime will not pass away—crime will continue to spread itself and to poison our whole social and economic existence, becoming finally an incurable and fatal disease—unless something drastic and unprecedented is done about it.

IT MUST BE ERADICATED — RUTHLESSLY AND ENTIRELY.

IN terms of economic losses, the cost of crime has already grown colossal.

It is MORE than the total of the lost war debts which Europe owes to America.

It is FIVE TIMES the investment cost of the Panama canal.

The combined population of these test communities was 49,470,686.

The penal returns showed in these communities A TOTAL OF 805,275 HIGH CRIMES AND MISDEMEANORS for the year 1933 alone—not including little crimes and minor offenses.

For the United States as a whole, the survey indicated at least ONE MILLION active criminals, varying from sneak thieves to murderers.

And the crime rate is no less alarming to contemplate—on the basis of the Department of Justice statistics, A VIOLENT CRIME IS COMMITTED SOMEWHERE IN THE UNITED STATES EVERY SEVEN MINUTES YEAR IN AND YEAR OUT.

For example, the national crime commission estimates that every year the following crimes are committed in America:

Twelve thousand murders.
Three thousand kidnapings.
Fifty thousand robberies.
Five thousand cases of arson.
One hundred thousand assaults.
Forty thousand burglaries.

As Earle W. Evans said last spring, speaking as president of the American Bar Association:

"Crime not only threatens the prosperity and happiness of our people, but THE VERY LIFE OF THE NATION ITSELF.

"It exacts an appalling yearly toll—some twelve billion dollars in money, and more—vastly more than can be measured in money—in misery, death and weakened morale."

In sum, America's desperate crime situation must be regarded as A GRAVE NATIONAL EMERGENCY—and national emergencies call for NATIONAL LEADERSHIP and for NATIONAL ACTION.

Since Franklin D. Roosevelt became President and Homer D. Cummings became his attorney-general, the country has been seeing some action.

The last Congress passed a number of bills enlarging slightly the federal government's jurisdiction in the suppression of crime.

Making courageous and brilliant use of this limited authority, the division of investigation under J. Edgar Hoover has surprised and heartened the American people by proving that laws CAN BE enforced and that justice CAN BE vindicated.

Of foremost importance, the Department of Justice has proved unimpeachably that FEDERAL LAW ENFORCEMENT is better than anything of the kind the country has ever before known.

More even than this, the department has demonstrated that, if crime is to be extirpated in the United States, THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT MUST DO IT.

As Mr. Hearst points out in his letter which accompanies this editorial:

"We cannot depend at all on incompetent and corrupt local agencies.

"The fight to save the country from crime and corruption must be NATION WIDE and must be backed by the formidable power and purpose, AND THE STILL MORE FORMIDABLE INCORRUPTIBILITY, of the Federal Government."

HOW can this be accomplished?

Easily—and immediately!

On the tenth day of this month President Roosevelt will open at Washington, D. C., a national crime conference, called by the attorney-general and to be attended by the governors of the states.

Let THIS CONFERENCE declare itself in favor of federal law enforcement, and let CONGRESS, when it meets in January, enact the necessary laws and appropriate the necessary money.

Nothing less will do!

THERE IS NO OTHER SOLUTION OF THE DESTRUCTIVE AND CORROSIVE AMERICAN CRIME PROBLEM!

More Study Needed

Job Insurance Big Problem for Our New Legislature

SIX of the seven members of the Special Commission for Investigation of Unemployment Insurance have completed a report for the Legislature soon to convene on Beacon Hill.

This plan would not aid those now idle. Neither would the lone dissenter's plan, which calls for unemployment reserves by individual employers.

It is indeed interesting to note that each of the reports attacks the plan offered in the other.

News of the commission's findings is made public, by odd coincidence, along with one on unemployment insurance from the headquarters of Associated Industries of Massachusetts.

This report deals with the British plan's experience in unemployment insurancce.

The initial conclusion is that it is NOT a remedy for depressional unemployment.

It is also declared that statutory relief tends in Britain to make permanent the casual and seasonal unemployment.

Another finding is that unemployment insurance has no chance of success WITHOUT AN EFFICIENT AND HONEST ADMINISTRATIVE FORCE.

This last is very important. It is probably the key explanation of the failure of many good ideas which have been enacted by various legislative bodies.

It is hard to find available men who are both honest and efficient along desired lines when political and other considerations interfere with selections.

Study of the various reports is apt to lead to the decision that a lot more study of this important matter is needed before we act. A good cause deserves the best plan.

Cambridge Sets Pace

"Always Superior" Good Motto

Cambridge—as any good Harvard man will tell you—has always been superior.

The records of the football field may not bear the idea out.

But the Cambridge superiority relates to things of the mind, and Cambridge history furnishes sustaining proofs.

In fact, the very study of the mind has been one of Cambridge's great preoccupations. It was Cambridge, where Hugo Munsterberg dissected psychology, discovering many oddities, and where William James perceived the difference between "tough-minded" and "tender-minded" people—preferring the former, as a true Yankee should.

So why need anybody be surprised at this news out of Cambridge?

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology has announced a new mechaniccal mind which can "do" 50,000 subtractions a minute.

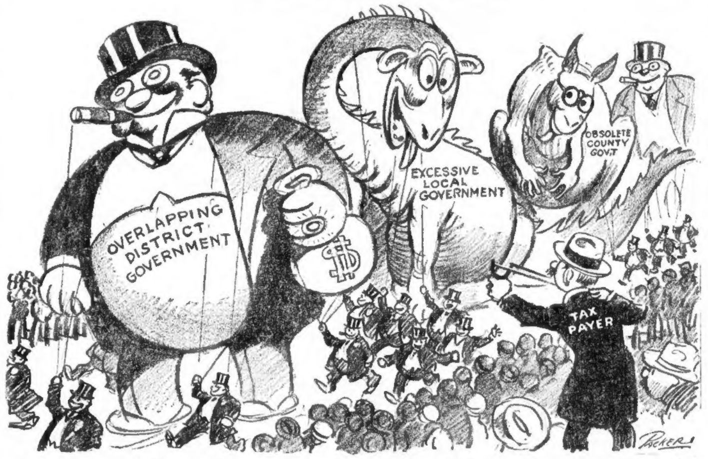
The achievement is tinged with that Cambridgian pride. In effect, Cambridge says:

"We'll show the rest of you robots!"

So the old supremacy remains true. Not even the "machine age" can blight it.

Psychic and mechanical alike, the Cambridge mind simply will not be beaten.

We Must Deflate Them!



Local government in this country has not been rationally designed. Like Topsy, it "just growed." Beginning in a Colonial mistake, it has swelled into an oppressive monstrosity.

The dead hand of an old Duke of York rests heavily upon us all.

For the system of county government follows the pattern laid down for what is now the State of New York when that region was the Duke's private estate.

And within the clumsy framework, as it has spread over most of the country, we now have 3053 counties, 16,366 cities and villages, 20,262 towns and townships, 127,108 school districts and 8580 other district units—a total of 175,418 units, all levying taxes, and many of them overlapping as much as ten layers deep!

The vast horde of politicians and tax collectors living upon the public constitutes, as President Roosevelt has said, our "permanent army of occupation."

All this must be abolished. Inflated overgovernment must be deflated, and political parasites will have to shift for themselves, as the taxpayers do.

Human Side of the News -:- -:- By Edwin C. Hill

STORY OF WHALING DAYS

In these days of intimate confessions, one may make bold admissions. Regardless of consequences, here's mine. All my life I have wanted to be a scrimshawner.

Today's news that the American whaling fleet had shrunk from last year, filled me with strange nostalgia, which I could not understand until I related it to my frustrated urge for scrimshawning—the art of carving, painting or otherwise embellishing whales' teeth.

Olaf Larsen ran a little tattooing parlor on New York's Battery, and his dingy and odorous backroom was the Metropolitan museum of the sea, a gallery of bold and bucko carvings on whale's teeth, brave and flamboyant, or perhaps sensitively portraying the mood of a lonely sailor, brooding in the crow's nest in desolate seas.

The last of the clipper ships were coming in then, with three skys'l yards and maybe st'nsails, each with a bone in its teeth, and the Whitehall boatmen racing out hell for leather to board them.

I remember once a roaring big fight of Olaf's whale tooth atelier, between two rival schools of scrimshawning critique. Both schools were somewhat pie-eyed, and, as usual, the police wagons gathered them in a perfunctory way.

Great floating factories are the whaling ships now, only one registered from New England and 14 on the Pacific coast.

Kipling made an epic of steam, in "The Ship That Found Herself," but one knows with certainty that no "Moby Dick" will come from these voyages. They have cost accounting on these modern whalers. A missed shot sets the company back from $1000 to $5000 and so the gunners rarely miss. Nearly 95 per cent of the shots go home.

The harpoons weigh 120 to 150 pounds. In the head of each is a charge of explosive, detonated as the harpoon is sunk in the whale, releasing iron flukes which flare out, making escape impossible. There is a lead line of several hundred feet, sometimes a mile, of two-inch hauser.

The whale is drawn alongside and pumped full of air. As thoroughly and efficiently as the Chicago stock yards, the whalers take their complete toll of profit —oil, at around $90 a ton, spermaceti for making cosmetics, bones ground up for fertilizer.

The Norwegians have shoved ahead in Antarctic whaling trade, with monster steel motor ships with a wide sailing range and gunners and machinery which leave no house percentage for the whale whatsoever. Down around South Africa, the British have also developed a high degree of machine technique, with great floating arsenals to bombard Leviathan. On the Pacific coast, our whalers work with the Canadians off the coast of British Columbia and Alaska.

Stars and Stripes

Europe has decided to agree about wheat, so all that now remains is for it to disagree about the decision.

The Townsend plan, offering $200 a month without work, may, if adopted, forment discontent. A lot of enterprising Americans may insist on having work to do.

Governor Ely advocates a lower wage for the building industries. We notice the party campaigning is all over.

Scientists have found that upflowing sap pulls with the power of many tons. But think of the "saps" who refuse to pull with the powers working for recovery.

Admiral Byrd of Boston finds a large new (old) area in the Antarctic and claims it for the United States. Now who can say this country isn't growing?

Paging Public Enemy No. 1! No answer.

Japan would have us believe her naval aims are only Pacific.

Looks like all they do in Hollywood is kiss and make up.

Advice to Christmas shoppers, "If at first you don't succeed, buy, buy again."

Writer says Detroit auto factories are "running neck and neck" and going at "breakneck speed." They are not worrying about their necks, however, they only hope they don't break a leg.

WRITES ABOUT

Red-Caps and Taxi Men

Hendrik van Loon

When strangers come to New York we are apt to show them the high houses and take them to the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Museum of Natural History and Mr. Rockefeller's incredible lunch-club on top of the world.

But other cities too are possessed of marvelous collections of stuffed animals and defunct pictures and interesting skylines and expensive restaurants, where one may eat amusing dinners.

Whereas no town has ever produced anything to compare with two classes of human beings that are the most typical product of modern New York—our taxi-drivers and our red-caps.

WHERE FRENCH LEAD

I know there are taxi-drivers in Paris who far surpass our own in their knowledge of the more subtle details of blasphemy. And the porters of London are men to whom I would cheerfully confide the cares of the British Empire, for I have never met with another group of people at once so intelligent, so humorous and so obliging.

But the red-caps of New York and the fellows who guide us through the mazes of New York's complicated traffic are a race by and in and for themselves, like the seaweed of Tristan da Cunha or the double-barrelled coconuts of the Seychelle Islands.

I have a secret belief that both of them are products of the depression. Or perhaps they existed long before the days of the great Hoover flop and we have merely discovered them now because we have a little leisure in which to study our fellow-men.

The taxi-drivers are recruited from every walk of life, from former Professors of Philosophy to Salesmen of Kosher Sausages. And the red-caps are the victims of a system which insists that anybody with a black or chocolate skin should be rigorously excluded from all of the higher professions.

BRAIN OF THE BLACK

Regardless of the prevailing notions in the southern parts of our Republic about the limited mental capacities of the born Blackamoor (to borrow an expression from Brother Mencken's picturesque vocabulary), the Negro, as any unbiased educator will tell you, has just as good a brain as his white neighbor.

But this world being what it is, he finds all doors closed to him the moment he tries to function in one of the more agreeable and honorable employments that are supposed to be the birthright of the race with the bleached faces.

And as he has to live, he dons the well-known gray garb of the hewers of wood and drawers of fire-water, and carries the baggage of his more fortunate fellow-citizens, whom the accident of birth has set free from that particular burden.

Both the taxi-fellows and the red-caps must be possessed of a great deal of leisure time, and it is my guess that they while away their idle hours reading a better sort of literature than the people whom they serve.

For I have found them alert and well-informed upon a very wide number of subjects, and I have discovered that practically all of them have a very definite and on the whole a very intelligent idea about the events that are now shaping our destinies with such startling rapidity.

The rest of the world may continue to go to the Taj Mahal and to climb Fuji and to descend into the bowels of Vesuvius or climb Kebnekaise to see the sun rise over Lapland. But I for one shall stay put right here.

For the wise man, as Confucius said (or if he did not actually say it, he could very easily have made this remark), goes forth into distant places merely to enlarge his knowledge about his fellowmen.

And why should I proceed to the ends of the world when I can have my red-caps and my taxi-drivers for the mere trouble of taking a train from Riverside to the Grand Central station of New York.

Listen, World' -:- By Elsie Robinson

You Build Your Own Will Power

Elsie Robinson

You envy "strong-willed" people. You wish you were like that. What a lot you'd accomplish! People wouldn't take advantage of you then.

You wouldn't take advantage of yourself—drift aimlessly along the way you do now . . . unable to decide just what you want to do.

But what do you mean by "will power"? What do you think "strong-willed" people have which you lack? Some sort of mental clamp which keeps them from wobbling?

Some sort of contraption in the body—as real and distinct as the stomach or liver—which enables them to make decisions or hold firmly to a purpose? Is that the way you picture will power? Probably—but you're wrong.

ACTUALLY THERE IS NO SUCH THING AS "A WILL."

The thing we call "will power" is only a TRAINED ATTITUDE. And that attitude we make and train for ourselves by our own countless decisions.

Life is just one decision after another. From the moment we're born we're confronted with the necessity of making up our minds. The baby's soft hand wavers aimlessly between the blue ball and the red one.
